MORAN TO MANAGE CINCINNATI TEAM

WILL BE APPOINTED TODAY

President Herrmann Fails to Hear from Big Six in France—Reds' Chances Are Bright.

Pat Moran, who was signed by Manager McGraw on Jan. 8 to coach the Giants' pitchers, will be appointed manager of the Cincinnati Reds today, to succeed Christy Mathewson, who is now a Captain in the Gas and Chemical Division in France. Moran, with the permission of the New York club, went to Cincinnati last night and will talk business with August Herrmann's club today.

Manager McGraw of the Giants, while he was reluctant to part with such a valuable addition to his club, did not care to stand in Moran's way, when it was learned that Cincinnati wanted Pat for manager. The Giants willingly gave up their claim on Moran, in order to permit him to take a better job. The only thing which will stand in the way of Moran's taking the position will be an eleventh hour cablegram from Mathewson that he can be discharged from the service in time to get back to take the Reds on their training trip. As no word has been heard from Matty, it is not believed that he will be back in time.

President Herrmann of the Reds has been trying for some time to find just when Matty will be discharged from the service, but has not been able to find out definitely. As it is necessary to make plans at once for the coming season, Herrmann decided to wait no longer. A few days ago he started negotiations with the New York club for Moran. Several probable candidates have been mentioned for the job, among them being Clarence Rowland, former manager of the White Sox, and Bill Clymer, former manager of the Louisville Club. Heine Groh, the Reds' third baseman, was also mentioned as a candidate.

Mathewson became manager of the Reds during the season of 1917 and while he had a first-class ball club, its efficiency was lessened by internal dissension among the players. Last season in August, conditions became so bad among the players that Mathewson brought about the suspension of Hal Chase, the club's first baseman, who is to be given a hearing today by the National League.

Moran's remarkable success with the Philadelphia club, when he took the management in 1915, stamped him as one of the best leaders in the game. In four years, he won a pennant in Philadelphia and finished in second place twice. His release by President William F. Baker was one of the big surprises of the season. Moran has the faculty of keeping harmony among his players and getting the best sort of work out of them. With the excellent talent he will have in Cincinnati, it is expected that the Reds will have the best season that they have had for many years.

The withdrawal of Mathewson as manager of the Reds may bring about a prediction which was made several years ago by Manager McGraw that Matty would some day be a coach for the Giants. It is believed that if he desires to stay in the game the place of chief adviser will be offered to him. The Giants have never had a player who enjoyed the popularity of Mathewson here, and his engagement as coach would be a popular move. His friends, however, say that Matty is through with baseball, and will retire from the game.

With the Yankees and the Brooklyns training in Jacksonville, the clubs will both have opportunities for practice which major league clubs do not usually enjoy on Southern trips. Each will train at a different park, but Managers Huggins and Robinson will arrange to get their clubs together two or three times a week, and instead of having bush league practice, the clubs will have the benefit of real major league baseball. It is expected by both clubs this great benefit will be derived from this kind of training.

Not only will the Yanks and Dodgers practice behind closed gates during the week, but each Saturday they will play games, to which an admission will be charged. These exhibition games will be played on March 29 and April 5 and 12. The clubs will start back home on April 14, and will play in one or two of the Southern cities on the way North. The Yanks are now negotiating for a game at the Polo Grounds on the Saturday before the opening of the championship season. Secretary Harry Sparrow is trying to interest several college nines in this project.

The Hal Chase hearing before President John A. Heydler of the National League will be held at league headquarters today. John Conway Toole, counsel for the National League, will sit with Mr. Heydler, while Chase will be represented by counsel. It will be a private hearing.

While the exact charges against Chase never have been made public, Chase himself has said that the charges which Manager Mathewson made against him were that he tried to influence the result of games and placed bets accordingly. These charges Chase denies. President Herrmann of the Cincinnati club asked for Chase's suspension last August on the charges made by Mathewson. Among the witnesses in the case will be Manager McGraw of the Giants and Pol Perritt, the Giants' pitcher. Several of the Cincinnati players have also been called as witnesses.

It is several years since a baseball player has been up before the league on such charges. The last case of this kind was that of Jack Taylor of the St. Louis Club. He was exonerated from the charges against him. In the early days of professional baseball, back in 1877, four players of the Louisville club were expelled from the game for "throwing" games. These were Craver, Hall, Nichols, and Devlin.

COCHRAN TAKES THE LEAD.

Jake Schaefer Trails in Opening Games of Billiard Match.

Welker Cochran, young challenger for Willie Hoppe's 18.2 balkline billiard title, advanced to a lead of 129 points in the first day's play of his 1,800-point match of 18.2 balkline billiards with Jake Schaefer yesterday at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. The young Chicagoan, giving a splendid exhibition of ability in the evening game, led Schaefer by a count of 387 to 171 in eleven innings. This rally on the part of Cochran enabled him to retrieve a setback he had suffered in the afternoon match. As a result, the Chicagoan left the table at the end of the evening play in the lead by a score of 600 to 471.

Coming after getting off to a bad start in the afternoon game, showed marked improvement in the evening match. He was always master of the situation and led Schaefer throughout. The young Chicagoan returned double figures for all his innings with the exception of the ninth, when he missed after making 2. He had a high run of 69. Schaefer's form was way off when compared to his playing in the afternoon block. He returned a high run of 66.

Schaefer showed to advantage in the afternoon and won by a score of 300 to 213 in six innings of interesting play. The scores:

CRESCENT FIVE IN FRONT.

New Mooners Defeat Aviators by Score of 34 to 25.

The Crescent A. C. basket ball team was forced at top speed to defeat the U. S. Naval Air Station, Rockaway, L. I., quintet last night on the Crescent's court, in Brooklyn. The C. A. C. five won by a score of 34 to 25. Throughout the sailor-aviators gave the club team a stiff tilt, and almost up to the final whistle the result was in doubt. In the first half, particularly, the play was close.

Nicklas, Captain of last year's New Moon team, got back into the game in the second half. The former Crescent five leader has just been mustered out of the naval aviation service.

The lineup:

Cresc. A. C. (34.)	Position.	Air Station (25.)

UPTON BOXERS WIN BOUTS.

ERASMUS HALL FIVE WINS.

Defeats Adelphi Academy Quintet by 23 to 11 Score.

Erasmus Hall High School's basket ball team added another victory to its season's string yesterday when it trounced the Adelphi Academy five on the Adelphi court, by a score of 23 to 11. Excellent guarding work at critical moments by the Adelphi lads prevented an overwhelming Erasmus Hall score.

In the first half the Erasmus Hall representatives rolled up a lead of 16 to 3. McMullen's shooting was an important factor in Erasmus Hall's victory. He shot six field goals. Knipe scored all of Adelphi's points.

NEUSTADT IS BEST IN BILLIARD MATCH

Joseph Neustadt, holder of the high average record for the national Class C 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament, at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn, gave another demonstration of his unusual ability last night, when he defeated James F. Blaisdell in the final round play by a score of 150 to 67. Neustadt completed his string in twenty-nine innings for an average of 5 5-29. He had a high run of 29, and another of 16.

The victor was in front practically over the entire game. From start to finish Neustadt's display of form was surprising, and never was his advantage over Blaisdell seriously threatened after the fifth inning. Blaisdell, on the other hand, played in the erratic form he has shown since the final round began early this week. Although the ivories were several times lined up in what appeared to be favorable formation, Blaisdell invariably failed to take advantage of the layout before him. The ivories just seemed to ignore his stroke entirely, and there was no response.

For the first five innings the play was close. At the fifth inning both players had twenty points to their scores. Thereafter, however, the match developed into a walkaway for Neustadt. He clicked off points with a consistency which was monotonous at times, and always he increased his advantage over the faltering Blaisdell. In behalf of the latter it can be said that never during the match did he approach the form which he displayed in some of his elimination round matches.

In another game, Ferdinand Unger, the title holder, accounted for his third victory. The champion defeated Sydney Brussell after a decidedly long-drawn-out game. The score was 150 to 125, Unger requiring fifty-seven innings to complete his string. This contest was unusual for the calibre of play it produced. Both made difficult shots when the occasion demanded, which meant practically the entire game.

The ivories, however, failed to respond to the efforts of either contestant so that much of the interest was detracted from the match. Invariably each player would start his different turns at the table with a successful negotiation of a hard shot, only to have the ivories line up on him in such a position that a count was well nigh impossible. Unger's average was 2 36-57, his lowest for the tournament.

A high run of twenty-one. Brussell's average showed 2 11-57.

Brussell kept within reach of his title-holder rival up to the fiftieth inning, when the score favored Unger by 107 to 105. Thereafter Unger received more of the "breaks" of the game and had better success in scoring until he completed his string.

The scores:

The Meadowlarks polo trio defeated the Foxhunters last night in the Victory Cup tournament at Durland's Riding Academy by a score of 10 to 4. The victorious trio gained the lead almost from the start and led throughout, outriding and outgeneraling the Foxhunters. All of the Foxhunters' goals came in the opening period, which ended with the score in favor of the Meadowlarks by 7 to 4. Max Phillips and Earle Hopping did all of the victorious team's scoring, each accounting for five goals.

The lineup:

MEADOWLARKS.	10.	FOXHUNTERS.	4.
No. 1—Dr. Biers.		No. 1—Goodman.
No. 2—M. Phillips.		No. 2—M. Guggenheim.

Samuels Winner in Cue Game.

In the A. A. B. A. three-cushion carom billiard tournament at Thum's Academy last night S. Samuels defeated F. Becker by a count of 35 to 34. The contest required seventy innings. Both players had high runs of three points.

TITLE BOUTS SCHEDULED.

Metropolitan A. A. U. Committee Awards Amateur Championships.

The Metropolitan A. A. U. boxing championship tournament was awarded yesterday to the American Railway Express Employes' Association, to be held at the organization's headquarters in Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, March 27 and 29. The Metropolitan A. A. U. will assist in promoting the tournament.

It is expected that the competition will be a success, for the club is admirably fitted for boxing bouts. The preliminaries will be held March 27 and the semi-finals and finals March 29.

The New York State championship tournament was awarded to the City A. C., and will be held either before March 15 or after April 8. No definite date has been set. The provisions made by the committee were adopted to prevent a conflict with the annual national championship tournament, which will be held in Boston, probably April 8.

No disposition was made of the New Jersey State title tourney, which also is conducted under the auspices of the Metropolitan A. A. U. Applications for this tournament were lacking. George Mehnert, representing the National Turn Verein of Newark, N. J., declared that his club was prepared to promote the tournament, although a definite decision has not yet been reached. A meeting of the club's committee will be held tomorrow when, it is expected, the Newark organization will decide in favor of holding the bouts.

TO WITHDRAW FROM A. A. U.

The Hollywood Inn A. A. of Yonkers and the National Turn Verein of Newark, N. J., will probably soon withdraw from membership in the Metropolitan A. A. U. Officials of these two organizations last night served notice on the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan A. A. U. that the clubs were prepared to resign from the A. A. U. in preference to discontinuing their basket ball activities. The Registration Committee rendered no decision in the matter. The case will be referred to the Metropolitan A. A. U. Board of Governors.

The club officials were called upon to answer charges of sponsoring professional basket ball teams. The clubs maintained that their chief source of revenue was the professional basket ball games.

James Tully, New York State amateur boxing champion, who was brought up on charges of professionalism, was reinstated. Tully, it was charged, some time ago was billed for a professional bout, which was widely advertised. In answer to the charges against him Tully disclaimed knowledge of the proposed bout, and declared he had never lent his name for advertising purposes to any such bout. Ed Laino, a wrestler, also charged with professionalism, was reinstated.

ANNAPOLIS WINS THIRTEEN.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 29.—The Naval Academy basket ball team won its thirteenth consecutive victory this afternoon by defeating St. Joseph's College of Philadelphia, 49 to 20. The midshipmen did not use Farwell, their best punt maker.

Deringer was the big scorer for the navy, netting the ball nine times, though he retired early in the second period.

OLD MAN COURTNEY AGAIN IN HARNESS

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 29.—Organization of the Cornell crew coaching staff as announced today shows that Charles E. Courtney, though 70 years old, will be head coach of the Cornell Navy, that John L. Collyer will continue to serve as associate coach, coming here to help a few weeks before the Spring racing season opens, and that after an absence of two years John Hoyle comes back to the coaching fold as Courtney's assistant and all-around man.

These two men, who have been closely associated with Cornell rowing for many years, are brought together again, and Collyer, a young man in whom Courtney has much confidence, will contribute as much of his time as he can to the cause. All rowing—Varsity, freshman, and intercollegiate—will be in charge of this trio.

Courntye at 70 is head coach and will have the final say, but the others will take from his shoulders much of the physical burden that his age will not permit him to carry. Hoyle will look after the boathouse and will probably handle the freshman crew. During the Winter he and Courtney will have charge of the rowing on the machines. Collyer will come up about a month before the season opens. Cornell hopes for two races. There is keen interest in rowing and large numbers of men are registering for the crews.

TO PLAY INTERCITY TENNIS.

Miss Bjurstedt and Alexander to Play Boston Pair at Longwood.

New York tennis players will take part in the indoor matches at the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill, Boston, on Saturday. Mixed doubles will hold the centre of the stage with Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Frederick B. Alexander playing Mrs. George W. Wrightman and Harry C. Johnson, while in another match another Boston pair, Miss Marion Zinderstein and Nat W. Niles, will play Miss Eleanor Goss and Walter Merrill Hall of this city.

A year ago, Miss Bjurstedt and Alexander defeated Mrs. Wrightman and Johnson in a hard-fought five set match, which was said to be the closest mixed doubles battles ever witnessed in Boston. Another match, which has been arranged will bring together Julian S. Myrick and Fred Alexander against Edwin Shaefe, President of the Longwood Club and George Wrightman.

Kirby Beats Barton at Doyle's.

Edward Kirby defeated George Barton last night in the final game of the A. A. B. A. pocket billiard championship tournament at Doyle's Academy by a score of 100 to 85 in fourteen frames. Kirby made a high run of 20 and Barton had one of 15. Kirby, through his victory, gained the first leg on a trophy which is offered by the A. A. B. A. He won five games and did not sustain a defeat.

Hendricks Goes to Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 29.—Jack Hendricks, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, will manage the Indianapolis American Association Club this season, James C. McGill, owner of the club, announced tonight. Agreement was reached in a five-minute conference. Hendricks left later in the evening for Chicago, where he will begin negotiating

That's the number Clydesdale owners and drivers call upon they need help. And they get it quickly.

Accidents don't keep the Clydesdale out of service any longer than it takes us to get on the job. And we make it our business to keep your trucks running.

It's a fine thing to know that you have service actually within reach of your hand.

Our work is not half finished when we have sold a man a Clydesdale Truck. We know when a business house purchases a Clydesdale they are not just buying so many pounds of metal and rubber. They are buying quicker, safer, more economical transportation for their goods.

The Clydesdale factory has done all in their power to build a good truck, and have, we believe, built the most reliable truck on the market today.

Now it is up to us to see that buyers in this territory get out of the truck all of the good quality and improved transportation which the factory has built into it.

We must see to it that the truck is operated in the most efficient manner possible.

We must see to it that it is kept on the job day and night if required, and that even accidents don't delay it one moment longer than is absolutely necessary.

This is our ideal of service—an ideal which we are living up to—an ideal which we are carrying out by maintaining a service station that is second to none.

It will certainly pay you to investigate the Clydesdale Truck and our Clydesdale service.

Let us tell you about our service and just how we take care of our customers.

SAYS GREEKS WANT AMERICAN COLLEGE

EXPLAINS ENTRY INTO WAR

Returns Home to Handle Grecian Relations with the United States.

Speaking last night at the farewell dinner tendered him at Sherry's by the American-Hellenic Society George Roussos, Minister of Greece to the United States, said he hoped to see at the foot of the Acropolis an American college which would be instrumental in interpreting American ideas and ideals to the Greeks, and gave the reasons why the Greeks overthrew their pro-German King Constantine and entered the war on the side of the Allies.

Minister Roussos will sail soon for Paris, where he will assist Prime Minister Venizelos at the Peace Conference. Then he will go to Athens to have special charge of the political and economic relations between Greece and America. The speakers last night were Alfred Marling, head of the New York State Chamber of Commerce; Marcel Knecht of the French Information Bureau, and Job Hedges. Nicholas Murray Butler was Chairman.

Narrating the factors that caused Greece to enter the war, Minister Roussos said:

"When called upon to choose between a peace with dishonor and war with all its horrors, the Greek people, through regular elections, according to the Constitution, voted for war.

"When its desire, thus expressed, was willfully misinterpreted by a sovereign who believed in absolute power, it revolted against the tyrant. It followed to Saloniki the man who, leaving his family and his fortune at the mercy of Constantine, demanded of the Greeks the most costly sacrifices. The Greeks assumed the burden of these sacrifices in order to wipe out the stain which the policy of Constantine had destined to impose upon the national honor.

"They entered the war in order to keep the engagement which they had entered into with Serbia, their gallant ally. Freed from this pro-German King, the Greek people in its entirety aligned itself on the side of honor.

"We seek the benefit of America's prodigious energy and activity, that we may more rapidly exploit the vast riches of the Orient, that we may capture and place at the service of man the natural forces that are today being wasted. Above all, it is your moral support of which we are in need. We wish to see, at the foot of the Acropolis, an American college which shall bring to us American ways of thinking, which shall teach that American idealism which is so happily combined with practicalism. Instruction should be in the hands of American professors, imbued with your ideas and capable of implanting them in the young Greek soul."

The admiration of Americans and of the French for Greece was voiced by Dr. Butler, Mr. Hedges and Mr. Knecht. Among those present were Paul D. Cravath, F. Cunliffe-Owen, Cass Gilbert, A. Barton Hepburn, Louis Wiley, Francis K. Pendleton, Henry A. Gildersleeve, Charles R. Miller, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Theodore P. Shonts, R. A. C. Smith, George T. Wilson, Police Commissioner R. E. Enright, Frank Munsey, F. D. Kalopothakis, Frederick D. Underwood, E. Travlos and K. Constantinides.

ZIONISTS RAISE $1,000,000.

One-Third of Amount Sought in Campaign Now Subscribed.

One-third of the amount, $1,000,000, was collected and pledged in the first week of the campaign by the Zionist Organization of America for the raising of the $3,000,000 Palestine Restoration Fund, which is being waged through the country. At headquarters, 55 Fifth Avenue, it was announced yesterday that they have every prospect that the quota would be well oversubscribed when the drive comes to an end. An appeal for the Palestine Fund was made last Sunday night by Jacob H. Schiff at a banquet given to Judge Julian W. Mack, President of the Zionist Organization. Mr. Schiff said in part:

"There was a time when I was thought a great opponent of Zionism; but this world-war has been a great teacher. Russia has been for some centuries the home of the Jewish people, or for the large majority of our people, but now Palestine is to be the homeland. The ideal of Zionism has made great progress during the last year or two.

"It is perhaps unwise to speak now of a Jewish sovereign State in Palestine. First we must have a majority of the Jewish people in Palestine, then we will be able to speak of a sovereign State. We must prepare the country just as thousands of years ago it was prepared for our forefathers who left Egypt in slavery to go into Palestine. We must first prepare educational and agricultural possibilities and we must lay the ground work for everything that can make a people happy and prosperous. To do this we need funds, and if we do not have these funds we cannot have any Jewish Palestine for many years to come."

On the committee working on the fund are Jacob Fishman, Clarence Y. Palitz, Edward Reuben, Louis Posner, Professor Mordecai, Professor Kaplan, and Mrs. Julius Dreyfus.

FOOD PRICES STILL FALLING.

The wholesale price of butter dropped again yesterday in the local market, declining 3½ cents a pound, making a decrease of 8½ cents this week. The wholesale price of extra creamery butter was quoted yesterday at 46½ to 47 cents, which probably means that butter to the consumer will drop to 53 to 55 cents within a few days.

Eggs remain at 65 to 70 cents a dozen, a reduction of 5 to 10 cents a dozen over the price a week ago. Cheese has declined and pork and other meats continue a downward tendency, although to no marked degree. Chickens are down to 32 and 33 cents a pound for the small and 35 cents for the large variety, a slump from around 48 and 50 cents a week ago. There is said to be several times as much food in storage here now as at this time last year, and predictions are freely made that there will soon be further reductions in nearly all food commodities.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—Victims of the high cost of living found further satisfaction today in the trend of produce prices. Butter at wholesale dropped 3 to 4 cents since yesterday and potatoes declined 5 to 10 cents a bushel. Cheese and eggs showed no material change.

27TH MEN TO GIVE SHOW.

"Let's Beat It" to be Staged After Return of New York Division.

Immediately after the return of the 27th (New York) Division from France, it was announced yesterday, a musical show written and played by the men of the division will be staged in a local theatre. It will be entitled "Let's Beat It," and will be acted by many of the men who were seen here in "You Know Me, Al," prior to their departure for France.

The new show, much of which is said to have been written under fire, is the work of Lieutenant William A. Halloran, Jr., and Private Harry Gribble, with music by Privates William Wittman, Burton Hamilton, Syd Marion, and Eric Krebs.

"Oberon" Sung Again to Big House.

"Oberon" in English sold out the Metropolitan Opera House last evening, standing room and all, for the fourth time in as many weeks, a record unmatched in all Mr. Gatti's many revivals of recent years. The nectar of Weber's melodies, the honeyed voices of Ponselle, Sundelius, Delaunois, Howard—who replaced the indisposed Miss Gentle with noteworthy success last evening—along with Martinelli, Althouse, Reiss, Rothier, Schlegel, and the rest, made an evening of fantasy far from the roaring veristic operas of today, and the great house enjoyed it. Mr. Bodanzky conducted his rearrangements of the score with distinguished skill and devotion, and there was infectious jollification in the fairy ballets.

Aircraft to be Exhibited.

The annual Aeronautical Exposition of the Manufacturers' Aircraft Association will be held in Madison Square Garden and the 69th Regiment Armory March 1 to 15, according to an announcement made yesterday. A feature of the show will be the exhibition of mail-carrying airplanes, which have been used on the New York-Washington route.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Little Simplicity" will end its engagement at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre next week, and Al Jolson, in "Sinbad," will be transferred to that house from the Winter Garden on Feb. 10. A new Winter Garden show will be produced soon afterward.

"Tish," a play made by Edward E. Rose from the stories of Mary Roberts Rinehart, will be produced out of town next month by Augustus Pitou, with May Robson as the star. The play will be brought to New York after a short tour.

"Tillie," which ends its engagement at Henry Miller's Theatre this Saturday night, will resume its run on Feb. 10 at a theatre yet to be announced. It will be seen next week at the Standard.

The complete cast of "Adam and Eva," now in rehearsal, includes Ruth Shepley, Otto Kruger, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Courtney Foote, William B. Mack, Harry Harwood, Roberta Arnold, Reginald Mason, Adelaide Prince, and Jean Shelby. The play is a comedy by George Middleton and Guy Bolton.

A second company of "Cappy Ricks" is now being organized, and will be seen in Chicago. William H. Crane has received an offer to play the leading role.

A new musical comedy with Charlotte Greenwood as its star will be tried out in Los Angeles this Summer by Oliver Morosco. Miss Greenwood has been appearing for several seasons in "So Long Letty."

Florence Walton, the dancer, will sail for France on the Lorraine on Saturday. With Maurice, she will be seen in a Parisian revue.

MUSIC

Russian Symphony Orchestra.

When a pianist of the artistic magnitude of Serge Rachmaninoff plays a composition of his own it is always a joy redoubled. At Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon he repeated his performance of the previous evening under the baton of Modeste Altschuler and with the accompaniment of the Russian Symphony Society Orchestra. His concerto in G minor, No. 1, Opus 1, remodelled, was his offering, and effective music it proved under his fleet fingers and with his mastery of dynamics. An early work, it betrays many influences generously levied upon, yet bearing the imprint of this Russian's individuality. Tschaikovsky is in the opening; the charming figuration often suggests Chopin. The Andante is a nocturne, almost a soliloquy, and not pregnant with meaning, the finale vivacious and brilliant. Naturally we prefer the second concerto. This first concerto received its initial performance in this city with the Dutch virtuoso, Martinus Sieveking, at the keyboard in 1900, and at Carnegie Hall. Sieveking, who is an extraordinarily powerful pianist, also played the composition with success at Vienna 1901, Berlin 1907, and Aix-les-Bains 1900. It is singularly effective and written in the idiom of the pianoforte. The composer received an ovation yesterday, being recalled a half dozen times. It would seem that this is a Rachmaninoff season.

The most enjoyable orchestral work of the afternoon was not Stravinsky's first symphony in E flat, but a suite by Rimski-Korsakoff, "Tsar-Saltan," which was produced as an opera based on Poushkin folk poems, and at Moscow Nov. 10, 1900. It by no means equals in interest either the Scheherazade Suite or "Le Coq d'Or," but it is characteristic Rimski-Korsakoff, the music chiefly martial and the scoring highly colored. Before it the Stravinsky and Scriabin music paled. The symphony of Stravinsky boasts a clever, chattering scherzo, which might have been utilised as a Gilbert and Sullivan patter song. The linto has the melancholy of the Slav, but the other two movements are academic. The idyl from Scriabin's symphony No. 2 was not representative, being largely excerpts from "Tristan und Isolde." We were glad to hear several finger-slips made by Rachmaninoff in the massive cadenza to the opening allegro of his concerto. They proved him a man, not a machine. His cantilena is not luscious, yet it is penetratingly musical. He handles his instrument orchestrally.

Godowsky Plays.

A note on the program of the meeting and concert of the Humanitarian Cult at Carnegie Hall last night read thus: "This program will be carried out as printed. No interruptions or discussions permitted." Involuntarily we looked around to choose our exit. Anarchs! Plain clothes men! And what had Leopold Godowsky to do with all this "uplift"? Under the first-tier boxes placards hung that respectively urged no conscription, the abolishment of consumption, no poverty, no—well, it read like "prohibition," but closer inspection brought out "philanthropy"! Not much difference. And Chopin—where did he come in? Nor were we reassured by the spectacle of five solemn persons of both sexes sitting on the stage.

It brought us back to Moody and Sankey, especially as one gentleman wore whiskers à la Burnside as did the "sweet singer of hymns" in the old revival days. We looked for the antique melodeon. We were almost touched, and then the real Godowsky began Grieg's Norwegian Variations and the only unhappy people in the hall were the aforesaid speakers who were yet to speak. Naturally, what with the interruptions, the talkative audience, the superlative art of the great pianist was obscured. Therefore criticism is not to be thought of; music and conversation do not mix well. But we did hear the Liszt transcription of Chopin's two Polish songs exquisitely played by the supreme master of nuance in the art of pianoforte playing. We wish for Godowsky in a straightforward recital without cults and other cheerful inutilities.

MIURA SINGS BUTTERFLY.

Coals to Newcastle and "Madame Butterfly" to New York, where three opera companies of artistic rank are giving Puccini's Japanese-American favorite in three days. Last night the inimitable Tamaki Miura sang with the Chicago stars at the Lexington. Today Claudia Muzio will have her first trial as a Metropolitan heroine, in place of Farrar, who cannot sing this afternoon, while Friday at the Park there is Marcella Craft with the American Singers. The "Star-Spangled Banner" that Italy's composer quoted in his opera certainly does wave.

Not to have seen Mme. Miura as Cio Cio San is to have missed something unique in the most seasoned operagoer's experience, something that brings back the real Japan to those who've been there and come West, "homesick forever," as Mark Twain wrote of some nearer Pacific isles in the sunny days of "Roughing It." Ambassadress of her country in strange lands and arts, as Koscak Yamada is in Western music's ways, and as Sada Yacco was in Oriental drama, Mme. Miura first sang Butterfly here at the Manhattan, Oct. 28, 1915, and the following year at the Lexington, where on Nov. 9, 1916, she gave her unforgettable performance also of Mascagni's "Iris."

Miura last night, with Forrest Lamont, the clearest voiced young tenor heard in this opera in years, sang the "Chrysanthème" love duet to admiration. She has always lived rather than acted the part, a creation in her case of vital imagination, fired by impassioned artistic enthusiasm, that has won in five years here a wider public than any Western woman who sings the rôle. A big, brilliant audience gave the little Nippon beauty a great ovation at every curtain.

There was a welcoming hand for Conductor Polacco in the pit. Bouilliez was the Consul, and Pavloska, Peterson, Trevisan, Defrere, Oliviero, and Nicolay completed the cast. In the house were many Japanese, including Consul General Yada and other dignitaries in a double stage-box.

Make the sick-room as safe as a hospital

You know that grippe, pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid and many other diseases will attack one member of a household after another.

Contagion does not run riot within a hospital because most hospitals prevent the spread of disease with

Lysol Disinfectant

Do likewise. When there is sickness in your home keep Lysol solution always in the bed pan. Boil all eating utensils used by the patient in Lysol solution of proper strength. Wipe daily all woodwork in the sick-room—floor, window frames, doors, etc., with water to which Lysol has been added.

In the case of highly infectious disease, boil thoroughly all clothing worn by the patient and all bed-clothing in water containing Lysol.

You will then go a long way in protecting the rest of the family from contagion.

Never forget that there is but one, true Lysol; the product made, bottled, signed and sealed by Lehn & Fink.

Lysol Toilet Soap Contains Lysol, and therefore protects the skin from germ infection. It is refreshingly soothing and healing and helpful for improving the skin. Ask your dealer. If he hasn't it, ask him to order it for you.

Lysol Shaving Cream Contains Lysol, and kills germs on razor and shaving-brush (where germs abound), guards the tiny cuts from infection, and gives the antiseptic shave. If your dealer hasn't it, ask him to order a supply for you.

GERMAN COLONIES.

In Africa the natives distinguish between "white men" and "Germans." That is a sufficient commentary on German colonial rule, whose cruelties to the subject populations, whose intrigues and military preparations against neighbor possessions, are notorious. They must not be returned to Germany. The voice of their peoples would forbid that. About their future disposition and administration, Mr. WILSON'S Fifth Point lays down the general principles:

> A free, open-minded, and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims, based upon a strict observance of the principle that, in determining all such questions of sovereignty, the interests of the populations concerned must have equal weight with the equitable claims of the Government whose title is to be determined.

The acceptance of Mr. WILSON'S First Point, which prohibits "private international understandings of any kind," prevents such secret disposal of colonies and their peoples as in the days of the old diplomacy shortly before the war enabled Great Britain and Germany to settle the future destiny of the Portuguese colonies in Africa, and, in the emergencies of war and alliance, alienated colonial or other territories by secret treaty. For the future peace of the world the African colonies with their wealth of raw materials must not again be made the cause of encroachment, threatening war. For more than a generation there has been an international scramble for them. England and France came almost to the edge of war. Only seven years ago Germany jockeyed France out of a great African region by the Morocco policy of bluster and blackmail. A German colony was always a source of disturbance. The policy of administering colonies humanely, tolerantly, with observance of the rights and interests of the natives, is followed by the two great colonial Powers, France and Great Britain. If the older rule of revenue first has been maintained in the Dutch colonies, it has been touched with the modern more liberal policy.

Before the war the German colonies, protectorates, and regions dependent on Germany or under its influence included more than a million square miles. Most of this was African. The Pacific possessions amounted to nearly 100,000 square miles. The population, vaguely estimated, was about 14,000,000.

If Italy has further colonial ambitions in East Africa, they have not been formulated definitely. France, if she wishes it, is entitled to the 100,000 square miles or more she ceded to Germany in 1911. Great Britain, "a weary Titan" so far as colonies go, wants nothing. Presumably Belgium may ask some additions to the Belgian Congo. Portugal has all she can deal with. Australia wants German New Guinea and the Bismarck Archipelago, New Zealand the two German Samoan Islands, the Union of South Africa the neighbor State of German East Africa, China the restoration of Kiao-Chau and of the German concessions in Tientsin and elsewhere. The Japanese program is not definitely known, but Japan is said to desire the Caroline, Marshall, and Marianne Islands in the Pacific, and some of the Chinese attribute to her the wish to assert claims in former German territory in China.

The United States, while a great Pacific Power, has shown the greatest reluctance to continue the colonial activities that were thrust upon her. She has so far displayed no interest in colonial government. She sits at the peace table absolutely without a claim to or thought of territorial gain. Under Mr. WILSON'S plans for the control of the German colonies by the League of Nations, the government of each by authority conferred by the League, the United States has nothing to gain save the furthering of the great purposes of the League. If she should be called upon to take a hand in the carrying out of this or other plans of internationalization, it is a burden that she will assume cheerfully for the general good unselfishly.

The disposition of the German colonies is one of the hardest international problems, one of the richest in points of difference, clashing of ambitions and interests, international jealousies. A condition precedent of a satisfactory settlement is to put by the old way of looking at Pacific and African questions. Germany, militarism, secret diplomacy out of the way, the League of Nations in effect, islands and bays are no longer strategic colgns of vantage, submarine bases. Australia and New Zealand and South Africa no longer need fear the interruption of their communications, the destruction of their commerce, invasion. Australia might very well rule German New Guinea and the Bismarck Archipelago, if the League so decides; the Union of South Africa rule German East Africa. There is to be no condominium, with its infinite sources of friction. Each possession is to be ruled separately under a mandate from the League, the ultimate source of the government of all, for the benefit of the natives and with a view presumably to their ultimate self-government in the measure of their fitness.

Mr. WILSON'S plan is novel, far-reaching, but is it not practicable?

WHERE THINGS ARE BETTER.

Dispatches from Prague (which perhaps we had better begin to call Praha, as its inhabitants do) indicate that the new Czechoslovak republic is an island of comparative happiness in a sea of more or less intense misery. War, Bolshevism, and starvation have afflicted all Bohemia's neighbors to a greater or less extent, and even the Czechoslovaks have some minor troubles, such as frontier skirmishes with Magyars and Poles and the more distant but more weighty peril of Bolshevist invasion from Russia. Nevertheless, business is actually going on among the Czechoslovaks, and on a sound basis which seems to have won the confidence of a good part of the German minority. The two great needs are bread and coal; the mines are not yet working at full capacity, and until they are doing better there will be a shortage of fuel for heating and for the full re-establishment of Bohemian industry. The trouble at the mines is indirectly responsible for the food shortage, for German Austria wants coal which the Czechs are unable to spare, and until that coal is provided the Austrians are likely to be unaccommodating as to the shipment of food through their territory from ships in the Adriatic.

However, the economic situation among the Czechoslovaks shines brightly by adjacent comparisons; and on the foundation of this relative prosperity is built a towering superstructure of joy over the triumphant success of the national revolution. Theatres are doing big business. EMMY DESTINN, kept from New York by an Austrian Government which disliked her because she was a patriotic Czech, has been freed from this honorable internment and is singing at the opera. Americans are intensely popular; while the Czechoslovak Arts Club is giving concerts of Czechoslovak music in New York, an American artist in Prague is giving recitals of American music. Streets and bridges have been named for President WILSON; vehicular traffic on them is somewhat sparse at present, for the Austrians stole all the horses and automobiles, but the Czechs will soon get more. And the story of life in this happy valley is fitly capped by the presence of the well-known coloratura propagandist, Mr. GEORGE CREEL, sojourning among the Czechs before beginning a tour of Central Europe. No coal, but DESTINN; no taxicabs, but CREEL; the substitutions should satisfy an artistic people.

BRITISH NAVAL PLANS SUSPENDED.

From "an authoritative source" THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent in London learns that while work in British naval yards has not stopped "there has been an extensive modification of plans." The Admiralty is marking time, waiting for the Peace Conference to shape the "international situation." A week ago Admiral BEATTY stated that the Grand Fleet would soon be dispersed, but the announcement was premature. Nothing will be done probably "until the statesmen have determined what "work they have for the sailors to do." For the first time in something like ten years the British Government does not have to consider the strategic employment of its sea power. British interests are secure in all waters and concentration of a great battle fleet on the home station is no longer necessary. "The British fleet," wrote Admiral MAHAN in 1911, "is concentrated in the North Sea. There it defends all British interests, the British Islands, British commerce, and the colonies; and, offensively, commands Germany's commercial routes." The previous year Admiral MAHAN sounded the warning: "A German navy, supreme by the fall of Great Britain, with a supreme German army able to spare readily a large expeditionary force for overseas operations, is one of the possibilities of the future." The great historian and critic did not live long enough to witness the collapse and ruin of German sea power and the supreme demonstration of the soundness of his theories of naval strategy.

It is no longer necessary for Great Britain to maintain a great naval force in home waters; there is no German menace now, no sea power problem to worry the Admiralty. Elsewhere in the world her argosies can come and go, needing, for the present, no protection from a warship. The problem is how to distribute the fleet, what work to find for it to do. And it becomes a question whether naval expansion, even the replacing of every obsolete warship with one of a modern type, shall go on at all. The reduction of armaments, not only by Great Britain but by other sea Powers, may be imminent—it depends upon the deliberations of the Peace Conference. A working plan of a League of Nations would permit a scaling down of naval units, particularly if it were decided to banish submarines and prohibit the dropping of explosives by aircraft. That Great Britain, or the United States, or any other Power with a commerce, coasts, and isolated possessions to defend in the case of breaches of faith or of calculated aggression, would part with its navy is not imaginable. The millennium is still remote. But navies are not maintained for the sake of show and to gratify national vanity—they cost too much for that; and if the leading Powers league themselves together to substitute arbitration for war and jointly to police the seas of the world for the common security, thus making great wars impossible, since they cannot be carried on without manifestations of sea power, then there can be a considerable reduction of armaments with a welcome lightening of the burden of taxation.

What should be the naval strength of each member of the league could be determined by agreement. Necessarily it would be measured by the needs and responsibilities of the parties to the compact. In the nature of things Great Britain and the United States would have to maintain the largest naval establishments, but rivalry between them would offend against the foundation principles of a League of Nations. Accordingly, Great Britain, whose navy is the most powerful in the world and greater than her present or prospective requirements, is taking thought of the opportunity opening to her and to her allies in the negotiations at the peace table. She has no naval expansion program and is "going slow" on construction in her yards. It is not idealism but rational policy.

THE STEEL RECORD.

The gentlemen who draw "curves" of financial movements would find their task easier with the skyline of New York than with the earnings or dividends of the Steel Corporation. In the seventeen years of its life it has only once had a dividend deficit, but it has come near doing so several times. An income which has an annual range between nothing and $383,574,177 net earnings shows considerable success in defying stabilization. The truer comparison is not between the good and bad years, but between the conditions in the industry before and after the trust was organized. Although the corporation's record shows canyons and peaks, there has been no return of the distress for both labor and capital which existed before the industry was "integrated," a word of reproach for the cynical which has justified itself to practical men. It is not easy to believe that the corporation can ever fall hereafter to earn its minimum of net earnings made in the first year of the war, $71,663,614. With that as a minimum, representing the "pauper" state of the industry, and with the demonstration that the "prince" stage survives, too, the outlook offers an assurance justifying the ideas of its founders.

A stabilizing influence additional to conservative management is found in the tax deduction. For the past year it was $274,288,797, leaving for the company $198,834,569. That deduction is a handicap even for the billion-dollar corporation, and explanation enough for the deduction of one-half from the 2 per cent. extra common dividend, or addition to the regular rate. Even if business should decline there is likely to be an offset in the reduction of the tax burden, for business in general cannot always endure the burdens now put upon it. Taxation must be at a maximum when the tax burden exceeds the remnant for the owners. The Steel Corporation is an epitome of the basic trade, and is better worth considering as such than as an individual enterprise subject to discriminating assault by prosecutors and taxlayers, a shining mark at which shafts are aimed which hit others, and which even have some characteristics of the boomerang.

THE CUT IN SHIP FREIGHTS.

The reduction of two-thirds in British ship freights has unexpected reactions which illustrate the difference between economic and statutory regulation of trade. The profit and loss entry in the balance sheet includes more contingencies than it is possible for human intelligence to foresee, and explains why business enterprise must be allowed a surplus as a regulator of policy. It may be a coincidence only, and yet there is an appearance of cause and effect in the announcement on the same day with the reduction of freights that 1,250,000 tons had been struck from our shipbuilding program. We and the world certainly need ships less since the armistice, and the reduction in freights warns us that the loss of a billion dollars in costly construction is only a beginning if our ships are to be run on the world's highest basis of cost.

The reduction in freights is a boon which offers a challenge to the other alleged boon of a compulsory increase of wages under the Furuseth seamen's law, which it is proposed to fasten upon the world as an item in the program of labor's internationale. In the railway matter lower rates were promised and higher wages, and we see the result of riding horses going in opposite directions. In the shipping case there are resemblances as well as differences, one being that the ship freight cut is by British private owners, and is met by our governmental agency. It is not agreeable to think of a "war" of rates practically between Governments, for the British shipowners would certainly find support if our competition survived its burden to us enough to embarrass them. It may not be affirmed that the reduction of rates is the British reply to Mr. HURLEY'S declaration that our competition with British shipping would be so friendly that there would be no friction, but that would be a natural inference.

The freedom of the seas has a mercantile as well as a military meaning, and the first lesson is offered for our instruction. Will our subsidists increase their demand for cash as England reduces the cost of freight? Cheapness and private enterprise would be opposed to dearness and Government operation if the two programs were continued to their logical result. Or will there be an agreement to pool both fleets, in the manner in which it is proposed to allow our railways to pool their differences and earnings after having forbidden it?

The plainer lesson is that there are so many surprises in business that the loss Governments meddle with it the better. It is better to allow private profits with risk to investors than to fasten sure loss upon taxpayers. There are quarrels even between partners, and men who might have been friends risk bitterness if their interests collide. Our shipbuilding enterprise is bad business as it stands, economically speaking. That calls for no reproach, for the loss is justified by the conditions, and is one particularly fit for Government to assume. But our loss need not be made unnecessarily large, and we should not enter into an uneconomic cutting of rates, with England as our competitor. Perplexities and costs are large enough all round without taking any unnecessarily.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

By Them America Is Judged.

In Right About, the excellent paper published by and for the soldier patients in the debarkation hospitals of this city, there is printed with well-deserved commendation a memorandum to the officers recently issued by the commander of the American naval forces in French waters. In this memorandum the Admiral emphatically stated the fact that upon every one of these officers rested heavy responsibilities, incidental to his representative capacity—that on his character and conduct depended not only the judgment that foreigners would form of the American people, but in a large measure the obligation which the men under them would feel by their own actions to avoid criticism and earn praise as Americans.

He told them, too, that, abroad as at home, they were under the moral law of their own country, and that, as picked men, leaders trained and educated, it was their duty to avoid even the appearance of evil, to be clean, temperate, and discreet in bearing and associations, by habit, bearing, and language winning confidence and respect. These responsibilities, he said, were to be considered an honor, not a burden, and the man who avoided or forgot them incurred a guilt far heavier than would an ordinary civilian who did or failed to do the things he had in mind.

Like Duties Rest on Privates.

All of the American Admiral's advice and exhortation to his officers, Right About declared, should be taken to themselves by all the men, no matter of what rank, who wear the American uniform. Every one of them also has his representative capacity, for he, too, though a private, is a picked man, as the unfit were not accepted for service. He is also a marked man, "in the sense that when he does anything wrong it reflects discredit not only upon himself but upon the service, upon the comrades who shared with him the hardships of war, and upon the brave dead." Whether a soldier went abroad and was in the fighting, or whether, for one or another of many good reasons, he remained on this side of the sea, the obligation imposed by his uniform remained precisely the same, and weaknesses or faults displayed by him were judged, and rightly judged, with a severity proportioned to the credit he gets when his conduct is exemplary.

More than abstention from the graver infractions of law is expected from men in uniform, and transgressions that in other men are venal acquire a special gravity when they bring disgrace on a company, a regiment, or a division—on our whole army, in short.

The duties assumed by the soldier are active duties—he must be the exemplar of discipline, the living proof that it has made him a better man than those who have not been subjected to it, who have not taken a special oath to maintain their country's honor and defend its safety. Drunkenness, lamentable enough in any man, in a soldier is a form of treason, as it incapacitates him for the service he has sworn to render, and for him to participate in disorder or sedition really is treason in every sense of the word except the most technical.

Payments Made and Delayed.

Nothing could be much better calculated to produce resentment in the mind of an officer or private soldier whose pay is many weeks or several months in arrears than to read in the papers that all of the so-called conscientious objectors who were released the other day from Fort Leavenworth went away with their pockets well filled with the money that became legally due to them when they were restored to the service before discharge. Resentment thus excited, however, is hardly justified by the facts, and it is not justified at all if it has for basis the assumption that the $33,000 paid to the conscientious objectors was so promptly forthcoming because of any special friendliness felt for those strange creatures by anybody in the War Department. They got their money, of course, because the law said they should have it, and they got it promptly because to pay them was a task that involved none of the difficulties that often have attended the payment of men in active service, subject to frequent transfer from division to division or from hospital to hospital.

The only safe deduction to be drawn from the contrast between the payment of the conscientious objectors and the frequent delays in paying the men who did or were willing to do the fighting for their country, which, in case of need, is every citizen's first duty, is that the War Department's disbursing system has not proved adequate to meet the requirements placed on it by a great war conducted on the other side of the Atlantic. Criticism of that failure should not be too harsh, and it should take account of human possibilities in conditions obviously most trying.

Two things are sure—there was no lack of money and none of good intentions. That there has been something of incompetence is clear from the number and nature of the complaints that everybody is hearing from penniless soldiers, but in the circumstances of this war something of incompetence was inevitable. It does seem, though, that there has been too much of this particular form of incompetence and that it has continued too long.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Today returned to us, after evident months of use on the sea, a pair of binoculars loaned to the Government in December, 1917. They were accompanied by a courteous note from the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, stating, among other things, that "a certificate evidencing the participation of this article in the war * * * will be forwarded to you." The glasses are their own certificate. Their lenses are nearly intact, but every other surface is as battered, nicked, and abraded as leather and hard rubber can be. They bear the tag "U. S. S. Pueblo, 12-27, '18." The notches filed in the rims by their sailor owner to permit removal and cleansing of the lenses show that sharp eyes were needed and kept ready for the German terror.

We were fond of these glasses for the fun they had given us in long-ago days when we peacefully hunted Kentucky warblers, but now they are literally "more precious than rubies." X.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In November, 1917, I read in your paper a request from the Navy Department through Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary, that all idle binoculars (not opera glasses) in the hands of citizens should be lent to the department, as they had no other way of meeting the emergency and supplying the ships with glasses to watch for the submarines. It will no doubt be interesting to many readers to know how this plan worked out, so I am pleased to state that my glasses were returned today, very carefully packed and registered, and showing only slight wear from careful usage. Furthermore, as promised by the Secretary, they have affixed a metal tag giving name of donor and the number, (352,) and also have affixed a linen tag bearing the name of the ship, the U. S. S. Pueblo, thus making quite a welcome keepsake.

Considering the hustle and trials of war and the promptness and perfection to which the Navy Department works out even these small details we have one clear explanation of its efficiency—the remarkable protection we give to our troopships bound for France. No wonder we are all proud of it.

Prohibition at Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The prohibitionists are to be congratulated on their success in making the country safe for hypocrisy. None but the most verdantly unsophisticated believes that our legislators, national and State, will practice the total abstinence from intoxicants which they are forcing on the people. Already Senators and Representatives here are rapidly providing cases for the future Sahara. Lockers in the Capitol and cellars in homes are being replenished. Limousines roll in from Baltimore daily with the precious freight, and the Adams Express office, transformed into a wholesale liquor establishment, is a social gathering place where the best-gowned women in Washington wait patiently to receive their packages. Which means that the Solons of every State, as well as of the nation, as well as all other persons of sufficient means, will be able to procure, before prohibition becomes effective, enough liquid solace for a long time ahead—in the case of the wealthy for the remainder of their lives. The great mass of the plain people, the mechanic, the poorly paid clerk, the small storekeeper, whose drab lot of hard toil or monotonous occupation is somewhat relieved and brightened by an occasional glass of beer partaken in cheerful and congenial company, will be deprived of what their more fortunate fellow-citizens can still enjoy—those to whom many sources of physical and mental exhilaration—travel, golf, art, opera—are open. A year from now Senator Croxens will have ten thousand dollars' worth of champagne in his cellar; John Smith will, maybe, have a dozen bottles of beer in his ice chest. Is this a square deal? Is John Smith going to submit to it?

A CLERGYMAN.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28, 1919.

THE MESSAGE.

I cannot sleep at night for the crying voices
Of all the dead, starved mothers overseas,
Calling to me "Safe mother, happy mother
With rosy children sleeping quietly,
"Ours were as yours, until war came, and famine,
And day by day we saw them wane and fade;
And first our babies died, and then we followed,
Our bread all given to the little ones who stayed.
Even though we hold again the babes who died,
When through the worlds we hear our moaning children,
Upon a cross of hunger crucified?"
So in the night their voices keep me waking,
Crying "Speak for us now, we cannot wait.
You that can help, you that can speed your plenty,

By HON. H. Y. BRADDON, M. L. C.
Commissioner for Australia in America.

Australia feels whole-heartedly that it would be an injustice and a menace to the European and native inhabitants of the South Pacific if the German colonies of that region were to be returned to Germany after the signing of the treaty of peace. That is the paramount consideration. As a secondary consideration Australia feels that the retention of the islands by the British Empire would probably be a happier solution, and would make for the future security of the Commonwealth and the neighboring lands.

Australia has a strong case for presentation to the world and to the Peace Conference, which has just begun its sittings in Paris.

"The Case for Australia," reads a report recently drawn up by several Australian experts, "may be stated under the following heads:

"1. The retention of the German islands by the British Empire is necessary for the future security of Australia and the South Pacific world, because:

"It will be conducive to the future peace of the world;

"It will be in the interests of the native races;

"It will promote the development of the islands by their own original inhabitants;

"It will tend to prevent the exclusion of any nation from the available supplies of raw material.

"The change of itself will not inflict any hardship either on the colonists or on the original inhabitants.

"2. Return of the islands to Germany gives her an opportunity:

"To hatch further imperialistic schemes;

"To use the harbors of the islands as submarine and naval bases for operation in the South Pacific;

"To menace Australia's safety and the safety of nearby domains;

"To continue to mistreat, and eventually to eradicate, the native populations of the islands;

"To apply to the Pacific a doctrine which would have the same evil effect as the 'Mitteleuropa' schemes as applied to territories from Berlin to Bagdad;

The Commonwealth is actuated by the very human principle of self-preservation. She knows that the German islands question must be answered—will be answered—but she wants an answer that will forever assure her safety. And that means the colonies must not be returned to Germany. This is of first importance. Of second importance is the problem, "To whom shall they be given?"

Although not moved by any imperialistic impulse, the Commonwealth of Australia feels that the British Empire would probably be the best guardian of the islands. This is arrived at by a process of elimination. It has been suggested that the United States might assume a protectorate over German New Guinea and Samoa, with the consent of the allied nations. This, it is felt, though it would probably be approved by Australia, would not find favor in America. The United States, it is very generally understood, does not desire extended interests in the Pacific. As a matter of fact she would probably find them an inconvenience; and their guardianship would be opposed to even a modified interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine.

This leaves Japan, France, and Great Britain as the only other powers which might conceivably assume supervision of the islands. France is in effect eliminated—because all her resources and attention will be devoted for some time to the restoration of her own land and its industrial activities. Japan has expressed no desire for Germany's possessions so far south in the Pacific. Her sphere of influence as outlined by her own statesmen has been in an eastern direction from her own territories in the Northern Pacific.

Australia, by natural fitness, by interest, and by the necessity to protect her very existence, stands out as the most logical country to assume control of the islands.

"It is necessary to stipulate at the outset," continues the experts' report, "that advocacy of the retention of the German possessions in the Pacific on behalf of Australia does not imply a claim that any of them must necessarily remain forever in the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth."

Intelligent Australian opinion senses clearly that the best fate for the islands would be ultimate independence with nominal inclusion in the British Empire. Australia and her sister Commonwealth, New Zealand, are willing to undertake the work of setting these islands in the path leading to that independence. It is not wholly altruism which prompts this course, but rather an enlightened sense of self-protection.

Proceeding to develop the points in the case, the report says:

"Ever since 1883 the Australian people have recognised that if the harbors of the Pacific, and especially those of New Guinea, were fortified against them or held by an unfriendly power, the coast of Queensland would be exposed to attack with disastrous consequences to its social and economic life; whereas, if the islands were in their own hands, the harbors might remain unfortified and Australia relieved of the great part of the expenditure otherwise necessary for naval and military defense.

"It is said that these fears have been answered by the ease with which the German possessions were occupied at the outbreak of the war, but this will not stand close examination. The Carolines, which constituted the outer frontier of the dominions, sheltered an enemy fleet which was strong enough to defeat a British squadron; that enemy fleet was only brought to battle—destroyed—by the combined operations of the Japanese, British, and Australian navies.

"The war has completely altered the conditions of strategy in favor of aggression by the weaker naval power. The islands before the war constituted a frontier for Australia, consisting of an outer and inner ring, of which the outer would be used as a screen for the enemy's fleet and the inner as the starting point for invasion. Today each island and each harbor is a possible submarine base from which to cut off the trade and transport of Australia to the East, to the Panama Canal, and to British India.

"The argument might be advanced that questions of defense will be completely solved by the League of Nations after its formation. Australia, a stanch believer in the League of Nations-to-be, knowing that the purpose of the League will be to prevent future wars, gives an added impetus to that purpose by demonstrating that, given the islands, war will be done away with in the South Pacific. In short, the Commonwealth advances the firm belief, based on facts, that possession of the islands is a necessary adjustment attendant upon the formation of the League.

"Germany has offered to disarm and to become a partner in the League of Nations. It will be for the Peace Conference to decide the weight to be attached immediately to such an offer. We are entitled to affirm that it is a deathbed repentance that is not by any means indorsed by the whole German people, and that there are no signs of any permanent disposition to agree to the abnegation of sovereignty and subordination of policy which honest membership in such a league would entail. * * *

"For the protection of native races two factors are necessary—character and capacity in administrators, and a high standard of public opinion at home. * * *

"Australia has recognised that a people which assumes control of a tropical country takes on itself a two-fold obligation. It must have regard for the welfare of the native inhabitants and it must endeavor to assure an adequate contribution from the country controlled to the common stock of the world. Australia's administration of Papua, from the time of Sir William MacGregor onward, has demonstrated that she has lived up to the obligations involved. * * *

"It should also be noted that in the Fiji Islands and other islands in the Pacific under British control the decline of population has been arrested and many of the causes to which it had been attributed have been removed.

"The Pacific Islands under the German flag have meant the Pacific Islands for the Germans. The exclusive policy adopted by German, shipping firms illustrates this point. Many disputes arose over this policy of exclusion.

"No better guarantee that the islands under the empire would be open to the world for commerce is needed than the already known British policy. * * *

"German advocates may argue that the reasons against her return to the Pacific are outweighed by the hardships which a change of Government would inflict on her individual colonists. Such an argument, however, cannot apply to the Pacific. New Guinea is the oldest colony of any importance formerly belonging to Germany. The possession of Samoa and the outer islands dated from the present century and the Spanish-American war. In New Guinea, which was annexed in 1884, there has been no extensive settlement. In 1913 the European population in the Bismarck Archipelago was 597. There were also 88 Japanese and 1,141 Chinamen. Of the European population 85 were Government officials, 162 planters, and 88 merchants. The missionaries, with their wives and staff, numbered 293. The Papuan returns for the same year show a white population of 1,219, of whom 118 were Government officers, 109 missionaries, 151 planters, 126 shopkeepers and clerks, and 172 miners.

"There were also 262 colored mission teachers, mostly from Samoa. It is clear that only a miscroscopic section of the German population has sought a home in the islands. It must also be remembered that this section has recently lived under an Australian Military Governor and has administered its affairs through him, with great prosperity and satisfaction, during the last four years."

Part 2 of "The Case for Australia" is mainly an indictment of German methods in international and colonial intercourse. An indictment against Germany is no new thing in these days. Germany has been so infamous during the last four years that any reasonably stated case against her carries immediate conviction throughout the world. Judged by her past, as her actions in the Pacific must be, Germany stands convicted.

It is hardly necessary to develop Part 2 any further. It may prove interesting, however, to comment briefly on the last two subheads, namely, "Return of the colonies to Germany gives her an opportunity:

"To apply to the Pacific a doctrine which would have the same evil effect as the 'Mitteleuropa' schemes as applied to the territories from Berlin to Bagdad;

Germany's famous "Mitteleuropa" plan was a heinous piece of diplomacy. Back of the plan lay an understanding of the physical principle of the wedge and the Bismarckian principle, "Keep your enemies in misunderstanding." "Mitteleuropa" was to consist of a union of Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, Bulgaria, and those parts of the Balkans which were to be conquered, thus separating East Europe from the west. The wedge would hold these sections apart, making possible a diplomacy designed to keep other powers in a state of perpetual suspense, such as Bismarck practiced with success until the formation of the Entente Cordiale. As to its economic value much can be said. The proposed railroad from Bagdad to Berlin would tap the area traversed, as well as the Near East, and would at the southern terminal be the radius for Far Eastern antennae of exploitation—for instance, India.

An identical method applied to the Pacific would constitute a wedge between Australia, Japan, and the United States, making it easy, as Germany would conceive it, to sow misunderstanding among these three countries.

The world is agreed that Germany should be punished for her part in the war. There are differences of opinion only as to the extent and nature of that punishment. Clearly, however, Germany should be compelled to pay in a currency she has available and which would not destroy her future ability to pay. Her colonies are such a currency.

The preliminary meetings of the representatives of the great powers in Paris seem to indicate that the conferees understand Australia's relations to the German colonies in the Pacific. Australia has a just plea to put forward; she can, I think, look forward with confidence to the favorable acceptance of that plea by the nations assembled at the Peace Conference.

WIRE RETURN BILL REPORTED TO HOUSE

Republicans Plan to Ask for a Special Rule to Expedite Its Consideration.

HAS STRENGTH IN SENATE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Moon resolution, altered by the adoption of the Bell substitute so as to require the Postmaster General to return the telegraph and telephone systems to their owners Dec. 31, 1919, was reported to the House this evening by Chairman Moon. Republican members of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, which passed the resolution, said tonight they would ask for a special rule, so that the bill could be considered immediately. Some predicted that the bill would not only have a swift and easy passage through the House, but also that when it reached the Senate the committee to which it would there be referred would reduce the time for the return of the system.

There was great diversity of opinion today as to the extent to which the cables might be involved in the Moon resolution. Some members of the committee insisted that the under-water wires would have to be returned at the same time as the land wires. Other members, including Judge Moon, shared with the Post Office Department the contention that the cables were in no way affected, and that it would require separate legislation to turn them back. Still others took the ground that there was no necessity for action regarding the cables, as under the present law they must be returned when the President proclaims the ratification of the peace treaty, estimating that this event would take place much sooner than Dec. 31, 1919.

Senator E. D. Smith, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, which handled the "wire bills" last year, and to which the Moon resolution no doubt will be referred, said he had no doubt the cables would be affected by the resolution.

As yet no move to parallel the Moon resolution by the introduction of a similar measure in the Senate appears to have been made. The plan seems to be to allow the Moon resolution to come over from the House. When the resolution reaches the Senate it will have stanch champions, such as Senators Kellogg of Minnesota, Hitchcock of Nebraska, and Sherman of Illinois.

Some members of the House Committee declared today that the reason the cables were not mentioned in the resolution adopted yesterday was that the Postmaster General had not asked for an extension of his control over these particular wires.

The Post Office Department was much pleased with the action of the House Committee. Again the statement was made at the department that the intervening eleven months would not be used for experiments to advance any scheme of Government ownership, but would be used as a period of readjustment in which to "protect the companies and the public." The department takes the stand that man-ship lines would become bankrupt if the lines were turned [illegible]

INDIANA WIRE CASE FAILS.

Federal Judge Denies Injunction Against Burleson Rates.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 29.—Holding that the United States District Court had no jurisdiction in the application of the Indiana Public Service Commission for a permanent injunction to prevent collection by the telephone companies of new toll rates recently ordered into effect by Postmaster General Burleson, Judge A. B. Anderson today dissolved the temporary restraining order granted several days ago. The rates became effective in Indiana immediately upon the court's ruling.

Charles M. Bracelon, Solicitor for the Post Office Department, presented the principal argument against the injunction. James E. Markham of the department of the Attorney General of Minnesota answered Mr. Bracelon's argument, calling attention to court actions over the telephone rates pending in Ohio, Michigan, and Minnesota. Judge Anderson said his court had no jurisdiction in the case, because no "Federal question had been raised."

The Public Service Commission may attempt proceedings in the State courts.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Jan. 29.—The County Court today, on petition of the Attorney General of Pennsylvania, issued a preliminary injunction restraining the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania from charging the increased rates recently ordered by the Federal authorities. The hearing was set for Monday.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 29.—An appeal was filed in the State Supreme Court today by the Michigan State Telephone Company from the injunction issued yesterday by the Circuit Court restraining telephone companies of the State from putting into effect rates recently ordered by the Federal Government.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—A complaint against the enforcement of the Federal telephone tariffs in the State, and asking that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company be enjoined from collecting these tariffs, was filed in the United States District Court here today by the State Railroad Commission. The complaint alleges the commission is the only proper rate-making body in California.

REVENUE BILL READY.

Simmons Announces That It Will Go to the Printer Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The work of clearing up the minor points of difference in the War Revenue bill was continued today by the Senate and House conferees and Senator Simmons said the final draft would be ready for the printer by tomorrow night. This will make it possible for the House to consider the measure on Monday, when a statement concerning the proposed legislation will be made by Representative Kitchin.

Detailed information concerning the final agreements reached on the more important issues were again withheld today by the conferees. It is generally accepted, however, that the Senate has given way on the matter of second-class postage rates, thus providing for the retention of the zone system as set forth in the 1917 bill and that the Senate provisions for excess profits taxes have been generally adopted with an increase to 65 per cent. in the rate of taxation on net incomes in excess of 20 per cent. of invested capital. The proposed Senate rate was 60 per cent.

Asst. Secretary Vrooman Resigns.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Carl Vrooman of Illinois, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, who accompanied the commission sent by the department to Europe, has tendered his resignation, and it has been accepted by the President. Mr. Vrooman has been in poor health for some time.

GERMAN COLONIES.

In Africa the natives distinguish between "white men" and "Germans." That is a sufficient commentary on German colonial rule, whose cruelties to the subject populations, whose intrigues and military preparations against neighbor possessions, are notorious. They must not be returned to Germany. The voice of their peoples would forbid that. About their future disposition and administration, Mr. WILSON'S Fifth Point lays down the general principles:

> A free, open-minded, and absolutely impartial adjustment of all colonial claims, based upon a strict observance of the principle that, in determining all such questions of sovereignty, the interests of the populations concerned must have equal weight with the equitable claims of the Government whose title is to be determined.

The acceptance of Mr. WILSON'S First Point, which prohibits "private" international understandings of any "kind," prevents such secret disposal of colonies and their peoples as in the days of the old diplomacy shortly before the war enabled Great Britain and Germany to settle the future destiny of the Portuguese colonies in Africa, and, in the emergencies of war and alliance, alienated colonial or other territories by secret treaty. For the future peace of the world the African colonies with their wealth of raw materials must not again be made the cause of encroachment, threatening war. For more than a generation there has been an international scramble for them. England and France came almost to the edge of war. Only seven years ago Germany jockeyed France out of a great African region by the Morocco policy of bluster and blackmail. A German colony was always a source of disturbance. The policy of administering colonies humanely, tolerantly, with observance of the rights and interests of the natives, is followed by the two great colonial Powers, France and Great Britain. If the older rule of revenue first has been maintained in the Dutch colonies, it has been touched with the modern more liberal policy.

Before the war the German colonies, protectorates, and regions dependent on Germany or under its influence included more than a million square miles. Most of this was African. The Pacific possessions amounted to nearly 100,000 square miles. The population, vaguely estimated, was about 14,000,000.

If Italy has further colonial ambitions in East Africa, they have not been formulated definitely. France, if she wishes it, is entitled to the 100,000 square miles or more she ceded to Germany in 1911. Great Britain, "a weary Titan" so far as colonies go, wants nothing. Presumably Belgium may ask some additions to the Belgian Congo. Portugal has all she can deal with. Australia wants German New Guinea and the Bismarck Archipelago. New Zealand the two German Samoan Islands, the Union of South Africa the neighbor State of German East Africa, China the restoration of Kiao-Chau and of the German concessions in Tientsin and elsewhere. The Japanese program is not definitely known, but Japan is said to desire the Caroline, Marshall, and Marianne Islands in the Pacific, and some of the Chinese attribute to her the wish to assert claims in former German territory in China.

The United States, while a great Pacific Power, has shown the greatest reluctance to continue the colonial activities that were thrust upon her. She has so far displayed no interest in colonial government. She sits at the peace table absolutely without a claim to or thought of territorial gain. Under Mr. WILSON'S plans for the control of the German colonies by the League of Nations, the government of each by authority conferred by the League, the United States has nothing to gain save the furthering of the great purposes of the League. If she should be called upon to take a hand in the carrying out of this or other plans of internationalization, it is a burden that she will assume cheerfully for the general good unselfishly.

The disposition of the German colonies is one of the hardest international problems, one of the richest in points of difference, clashing of ambitions and interests, international jealousies. A condition precedent of a satisfactory settlement is to put by the old way of looking at Pacific and African questions. Germany, militarism, secret diplomacy out of the way, the League of Nations in effect, islands and bays are no longer strategic colgns of vantage, submarine bases. Australia and New Zealand and South Africa no longer need fear the interruption of their communications, the destruction of their commerce, invasion. Australia might very well rule German New Guinea and the Bismarck Archipelago, if the League so decides; the Union of South Africa rule German East Africa. There is to be no condominium, with its infinite sources of friction. Each possession is to be ruled separately under a mandate from the League, the ultimate source of the government of all, for the benefit of the natives and with a view presumably to their ultimate self-government in the measure of their fitness.

Mr. WILSON'S plan is novel, far-reaching, but is it not practicable?

WHERE THINGS ARE BETTER.

Dispatches from Prague (which perhaps we had better begin to call Praha, as its inhabitants do) indicate that the new Czechoslovak republic is an island of comparative happiness in a sea of more or less intense misery. War, Bolshevism, and starvation have afflicted all Bohemia's neighbors to a greater or less extent, and even the Czechoslovaks have some minor troubles, such as frontier skirmishes with Magyars and Poles and the more distant but more weighty peril of Bolshevist invasion from Russia. Nevertheless, business is actually going on among the Czechoslovaks, and on a sound basis which seems to have won the confidence of a good part of the German minority. The two great needs are bread and coal; the mines are not yet working at full capacity, and until they are doing better there will be a shortage of fuel for heating and for the full re-establishment of Bohemian industry. The trouble at the mines is indirectly responsible for the food shortage, for German Austria wants coal which the Czechs are unable to spare, and until that coal is provided the Austrians are likely to be unaccommodating as to the shipment of food through their territory from ships in the Adriatic.

However, the economic situation among the Czechoslovaks shines brightly by adjacent comparisons; and on the foundation of this relative prosperity is built a towering superstructure of joy over the triumphant success of the national revolution. Theatres are doing big business. EMMY DESTINN, kept from New York by an Austrian Government which disliked her because she was a patriotic Czech, has been freed from this honorable internment and is singing at the opera. Americans are intensely popular; while the Czechoslovak Arts Club is giving concerts of Czechoslovak music in New York, an American artist in Prague is giving recitals of American music. Streets and bridges have been named for President WILSON; vehicular traffic on them is somewhat sparse at present, for the Austrians stole all the horses and automobiles, but the Czechs will soon get more. And the story of life in this happy valley is fitly capped by the presence of the well-known coloratura propagandist, Mr. GEORGE CREEL, sojourning among the Czechs before beginning a tour of Central Europe. No coal, but DESTINN; no taxicabs, but CREEL; the substitutions should satisfy an artistic people.

BRITISH NAVAL PLANS SUSPENDED.

From "an authoritative source" THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent in London learns that while work in British naval yards has not stopped "there has been an extensive modification of plans." The Admiralty is marking time, waiting for the Peace Conference to shape the "international situation." A week ago Admiral BEATTY stated that the Grand Fleet would soon be dispersed, but the announcement was premature. Nothing will be done probably "until the statesmen have determined what "work they have for the sailors to do." For the first time in something like ten years the British Government does not have to consider the strategic employment of its sea power. British interests are secure in all waters and concentration of a great battle fleet on the home station is no longer necessary. "The British fleet," wrote Admiral MAHAN in 1911, "is concentrated in the North Sea. There it "defends all British interests, the "British Islands, British commerce, "and the colonies; and, offensively, "commands Germany's commercial "routes." The previous year Admiral MAHAN sounded the warning: "A German navy, supreme by the fall of "Great Britain, with a supreme German army able to spare readily a "large expeditionary force for overseas operations, is one of the possibilities "of the future." The great historian and critic did not live long enough to witness the collapse and ruin of German sea power and the supreme demonstration of the soundness of his theories of naval strategy.

It is no longer necessary for Great Britain to maintain a great naval force in home waters; there is no German menace now, no sea power problem to worry the Admiralty. Elsewhere in the world her argosies can come and go, needing, for the present, no protection from a warship. The problem is how to distribute the fleet, what work to find for it to do. And it becomes a question whether naval expansion, even the replacing of every obsolete warship with one of a modern type, shall go on at all. The reduction of armaments, not only by Great Britain but by other sea Powers, may be imminent—it depends upon the deliberations of the Peace Conference. A working plan of a League of Nations would permit a scaling down of naval units, particularly if it were decided to banish submarines and prohibit the dropping of explosives by aircraft. That Great Britain, or the United States, or any other Power with a commerce, coasts, and isolated possessions to defend in the case of breaches of faith or of calculated aggression, would part with its navy is not imaginable. The millennium is still remote. But navies are not maintained for the sake of show and to gratify national vanity—they cost too much for that; and if the leading Powers league themselves together to substitute arbitration for war and jointly to police the seas of the world for the common security, thus making great wars impossible, since they cannot be carried on without manifestations of sea power, then there can be a considerable reduction of armaments with a welcome lightening of the burden of taxation.

What should be the naval strength of each member of the league could be determined by agreement. Necessarily it would be measured by the needs and responsibilities of the parties to the compact. In the nature of things Great Britain and the United States would have to maintain the largest naval establishments, but rivalry between them would offend against the foundation principles of a League of Nations. Accordingly, Great Britain, whose navy is the most powerful in the world and greater than her present or prospective requirements, is taking thought of the opportunity opening to her and to her allies in the negotiations at the peace table. She has no naval expansion program and is "going slow" on construction in her yards. It is not idealism but rational policy.

THE STEEL RECORD.

The gentlemen who draw "curves" of financial movements would find their task easier with the skyline of New York than with the earnings or dividends of the Steel Corporation. In the seventeen years of its life it has only once had a dividend deficit, but it has come near doing so several times. An income which has an annual range between nothing and $333,574,177 net earnings shows considerable success in defying stabilization. The truer comparison is not between the good and bad years, but between the conditions in the industry before and after the trust was organized. Although the corporation's record shows canyons and peaks, there has been no return of the distress for both labor and capital which existed before the industry was "integrated," a word of reproach for the cynical which has justified itself to practical men. It is not easy to believe that the corporation can ever fall hereafter to earn its minimum of net earnings made in the first year of the war, $71,663,614. With that as a minimum, representing the "panper" state of the industry, and with the demonstration that the "prince" stage survives, too, the outlook offers an assurance justifying the ideas of its founders.

A stabilizing influence additional to conservative management is found in the tax deduction. For the past year it was $274,288,797, leaving for the company $198,634,569. That deduction is a handicap even for the billion-dollar corporation, and explanation enough for the deduction of one-half from the 2 per cent. extra common dividend, or addition to the regular rate. Even if business should decline there is likely to be an offset in the reduction of the tax burden, for business in general cannot always endure the burdens now put upon it. Taxation must be at a maximum when the tax burden exceeds the remnant for the owners. The Steel Corporation is an epitome of the basic trade, and is better worth considering as such than as an individual enterprise subject to discriminating assault by prosecutors and taxlayers, a shining mark at which shafts are aimed which hit others, and which even have some characteristics of the boomerang.

THE CUT IN SHIP FREIGHTS.

The reduction of two-thirds in British ship freights has unexpected reactions which illustrate the difference between economic and statutory regulation of trade. The profit and loss entry in the balance sheet includes more contingencies than it is possible for human intelligence to foresee, and explains why business enterprise must be allowed a surplus as a regulator of policy. It may be a coincidence only, and yet there is an appearance of cause and effect in the announcement on the same day with the reduction of freights that 1,250,000 tons had been struck from our shipbuilding program. We and the world certainly need ships less since the armistice, and the reduction in freights warns us that the loss of a billion dollars in costly construction is only a beginning if our ships are to be run on the world's highest basis of cost.

The reduction in freights is a boon which offers a challenge to the other alleged boon of a compulsory increase of wages under the Furuseth seamen's law, which it is proposed to fasten upon the world as an item in the program of labor's internationale. In the railway matter lower rates were promised and higher wages, and we see the result of riding horses going in opposite directions. In the shipping case there are resemblances as well as differences, one being that the ship freight cut is by British private owners, and is met by our governmental agency. It is not agreeable to think of a "war" of rates practically between Governments, for the British shipowners would certainly find support if our competition survived its burden to us enough to embarrass them. It may not be affirmed that the reduction of rates is the British reply to Mr. HURLEY'S declaration that our competition with British shipping would be so friendly that there would be no friction, but that would be a natural inference.

The freedom of the seas has a mercantile as well as a military meaning, and the first lesson is offered for our instruction. Will our subsidists increase their demand for cash as England reduces the cost of freight? Cheapness and private enterprise would be opposed to dearness and Government operation if the two programs were continued to their logical result. Or will there be an agreement to pool both fleets, in the manner in which it is proposed to allow our railways to pool their differences and earnings after having forbidden it?

The plainer lesson is that there are so many surprises in business that the less Governments meddle with it the better. It is better to allow private profits with risk to investors than to fasten sure loss upon taxpayers. There are quarrels even between partners, and men who might have been friends risk bitterness if their interests collide. Our shipbuilding enterprise is bad business as it stands, economically speaking. That calls for no reproach, for the loss is justified by the conditions, and is one particularly fit for Government to assume. But our loss need not be made unnecessarily large, and we should not enter into an uneconomic cutting of rates, with England as our competitor. Perplexities and costs are large enough all round without taking any unnecessarily.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

By Them America Is Judged.

In Right About, the excellent paper published by and for the soldier patients in the debarkation hospitals of this city, there is printed with well-deserved commendation a memorandum to the officers recently issued by the commander of the American naval forces in French waters. In this memorandum the Admiral emphatically stated the fact that upon every one of these officers rested heavy responsibilities, incidental to his representative capacity—that on his character and conduct depended not only the judgment that foreigners would form of the American people, but in a large measure the obligation which the men under them would feel by their own actions to avoid criticism and earn praise as Americans.

He told them, too, that, abroad as at home, they were under the moral law of their own country, and that, as picked men, leaders trained and educated, it was their duty to avoid even the appearance of evil, to be clean, temperate, and discreet in bearing and associations, by habit, bearing, and language winning confidence and respect. These responsibilities, he said, were to be considered an honor, not a burden, and the man who avoided or forgot them incurred a guilt far heavier than would an ordinary civilian who did or failed to do the things he had in mind.

Like Duties Rest on Privates.

All of the American Admiral's advice and exhortation to his officers, Right About declared, should be taken to themselves by all the men, no matter of what rank, who wear the American uniform. Every one of them also has his representative capacity, for he, too, though a private, is a picked man, as the unfit were not accepted for service. He is also a marked man, "in the sense that when he does anything wrong it reflects discredit not only upon himself but upon the service, upon the comrades who shared with him the hardships of war, and upon the brave dead." Whether a soldier went abroad and was in the fighting, or whether, for one or another of many good reasons, he remained on this side of the sea, the obligation imposed by his uniform remained precisely the same, and weaknesses or faults displayed by him were judged, and rightly judged, with a severity proportioned to the credit he gets when his conduct is exemplary.

More than abstention from the graver infractions of law is expected from men in uniform, and transgressions that in other men are venal acquire a special gravity when they bring disgrace on a company, a regiment, or a division—on our whole army, in short.

The duties assumed by the soldier are active duties—he must be the exemplar of discipline, the living proof that it has made him a better man than those who have not been subjected to it, who have not taken a special oath to maintain their country's honor and defend its safety. Drunkenness, lamentable enough in any man, in a soldier is a form of treason, as it incapacitates him for the service he has sworn to render, and for him to participate in disorder or sedition really is treason in every sense of the word except the most technical.

Payments Made and Delayed.

Nothing could be much better calculated to produce resentment in the mind of an officer or private soldier whose pay is many weeks or several months in arrears than to read in the papers that all of the so-called conscientious objectors who were released the other day from Fort Leavenworth went away with their pockets well filled with the money that became legally due to them when they were restored to the service before discharge. Resentment thus excited, however, is hardly justified by the facts, and it is not justified at all if it has for basis the assumption that the $33,000 paid to the conscientious objectors was so promptly forthcoming because of any special friendliness felt for those strange creatures by anybody in the War Department. They got their money, of course, because the law said they should have it, and they got it promptly because to pay them was a task that involved none of the difficulties that often have attended the payment of men in active service, subject to frequent transfer from division to division or from hospital to hospital.

The only safe deduction to be drawn from the contrast between the payment of the conscientious objectors and the frequent delays in paying the men who did or were willing to do the fighting for their country, which, in case of need, is every citizen's first duty, is that the War Department's disbursing system has not proved adequate to meet the requirements placed on it by a great war conducted on the other side of the Atlantic. Criticism of that failure should not be too harsh, and it should take account of human possibilities in conditions obviously most trying.

Two things are sure—there was no lack of money and none of good intentions. That there has been something of incompetence is clear from the number and nature of the complaints that everybody is hearing from penniless soldiers, but in the circumstances of this war something of incompetence was inevitable. It does seem, though, that there has been too much of this particular form of incompetence and that it has continued too long.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Today returned to us, after evident months of use on the sea, a pair of binoculars loaned to the Government in December, 1917. They were accompanied by a courteous note from the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, stating, among other things, that "a certificate evidencing the participation of this article in the war * * * will be forwarded to you." The glasses are their own certificate. Their lenses are nearly intact, but every other surface is as battered, nicked, and abraded as leather and hard rubber can be. They bear the tag "U. S. S. Pueblo, 12-27, '18." The notches filed in the rims by their sailor owner to permit removal and cleansing of the lenses show that sharp eyes were needed and kept ready for the German terror.

We were fond of these glasses for the fun they had given us in long-ago days when we peacefully hunted Kentucky warblers, but now they are literally "more precious than rubies." X.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In November, 1917, I read in your paper a request from the Navy Department through Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary, that all idle binoculars (not opera glasses) in the hands of citizens should be lent to the department, as they had no other way of meeting the emergency and supplying the ships with glasses to watch for the submarines. It will no doubt be interesting to many readers to know how this plan worked out, so I am pleased to state that my glasses were returned today, very carefully packed and registered, and showing only slight wear from careful usage. Furthermore, as promised by the Secretary, they have affixed a metal tag giving name of donor and the number, (832,) and also have affixed a linen tag bearing the name of the ship, the U. S. S. Pueblo, thus making quite a welcome keepsake.

Considering the hustle and trials of war and the promptness and perfection to which the Navy Department works out even these small details we have one clear explanation of its efficiency—the remarkable protection it gave to our troopships bound for France. No wonder we are all proud of it.

Prohibition at Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The prohibitionists are to be congratulated on their success in making the country safe for hypocrisy. None but the most verdantly unsophisticated believes that our legislators, national and State, will practice the total abstinence from intoxicants which they are forcing on the people. Already Senators and Representatives here are rapidly providing cases for the future Sahara. Lockers in the Capitol and cellars in homes are being replenished. Limousines roll in from Baltimore daily with the precious freight, and the Adams Express office, transformed into a wholesale liquor establishment, is a social gathering place where the best-gowned women in Washington wait patiently to receive their packages. Which means that the Solons of every State, as well as of the nation, as well as all other persons of sufficient means, will be able to procure, before prohibition becomes effective, enough liquid solace for a long time ahead—in the case of the wealthy for the remainder of their lives. The great mass of the plain people, the mechanic, the poorly paid clerk, the small storekeeper, whose drab lot of hard toil or monotonous occupation is somewhat relieved and brightened by an occasional glass of beer partaken in cheerful and congenial company, will be deprived of what their more fortunate fellow-citizens can still enjoy—those to whom many sources of physical and mental exhilaration—travel, golf, art, opera—are open. A year from now Senator Oreoum will have ten thousand dollars' worth of champagne in his cellar; John Smith will, maybe, have a dozen bottles of beer in his ice chest. Is this a square deal? Is John Smith going to submit to it?

A CLERGYMAN.

THE MESSAGE.

I cannot sleep at night for the crying voices
Of all the dead, starved mothers overseas,
Calling to me "Safe mother, happy mother
With rosy children sleeping quietly,
"Ours were as yours, until war came and famine,
And day by day we saw them wane and fade;
And first our babies died, and then we followed,
Our bread all given to the little ones who stayed.
Even though we hold again the babes who died,
When through the worlds we hear our moaning children,
Upon a cross of hunger crucified?"
So in the night their voices keep me waking,
Crying "Speak for us now, we cannot wait.
You that can help, you that can spend your plenty,

By HON. H. Y. BRADDON, M. L. C., Commissioner for Australia in America.

Australia feels whole-heartedly that it would be an injustice and a menace to the European and native inhabitants of the South Pacific if the German colonies of that region were to be returned to Germany after the signing of the treaty of peace. That is the paramount consideration. As a secondary consideration Australia feels that the retention of the islands by the British Empire would probably be a happier solution, and would make for the future security of the Commonwealth and the neighboring lands.

Australia has a strong case for presentation to the world and to the Peace Conference, which has just begun its sittings in Paris.

"The Case for Australia," reads a report recently drawn up by several Australian experts, "may be stated under the following heads:

"1. The retention of the German islands by the British Empire is necessary for the future security of Australia and the South Pacific world, because:

"It will be conducive to the future peace of the world;

"It will be in the interests of the native races;

"It will promote the development of the islands by their own original inhabitants;

"It will tend to prevent the exclusion of any nation from the available supplies of raw material.

"The change of itself will not inflict any hardship either on the colonists or on the original inhabitants.

"2. Return of the islands to Germany gives her an opportunity:

"To hatch further imperialistic schemes;

"To use the harbors of the islands as submarine and naval bases for operation in the South Pacific;

"To menace Australia's safety and the safety of nearby domains;

"To continue to mistreat, and eventually to eradicate, the native populations of the islands;

"To apply to the Pacific a doctrine which would have the same evil effect as the 'Mitteleuropa' schemes as applied to territories from Berlin to Bagdad;

The Commonwealth is actuated by the very human principle of self-preservation. She knows that the German islands question must be answered—will be answered—but she wants an answer that will forever assure her safety. And that means the colonies must not be returned to Germany. This is of first importance. Of second importance is the problem, "To whom shall they be given?"

Although not moved by any imperialistic impulse, the Commonwealth of Australia feels that the British Empire would probably be the best guardian of the islands. This is arrived at by a process of elimination. It has been suggested that the United States might assume a protectorate over German New Guinea and Samoa, with the consent of the allied nations. This, it is felt, though it would probably be approved by Australia, would not find favor in America. The United States, it is very generally understood, does not desire extended interests in the Pacific. As a matter of fact she would probably find them an inconvenience; and their guardianship would be opposed to even a modified interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine.

This leaves Japan, France, and Great Britain as the only other powers which might conceivably assume supervision of the islands. France is in effect eliminated—because all her resources and attention will be devoted for some time to the restoration of her own land and its industrial activities. Japan has expressed no desire for Germany's possessions so far south in the Pacific. Her sphere of influence as outlined by her own statesmen has been in an eastern direction from her own territories in the Northern Pacific.

Australia, by natural fitness, by interest, and by the necessity to protect her very existence, stands out as the most logical country to assume control of the islands.

"It is necessary to stipulate at the outset," continues the experts' report, "that advocacy of the retention of the German possessions in the Pacific on behalf of Australia does not imply a claim that any of them must necessarily remain forever in the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth."

Intelligent Australian opinion senses clearly that the best fate for the islands would be ultimate independence with nominal inclusion in the British Empire. Australia and her sister Commonwealth, New Zealand, are willing to undertake the work of setting these islands in the path leading to that independence. It is not wholly altruism which prompts this course, but rather an enlightened sense of self-protection.

Proceeding to develop the points in the case, the report says:

"Ever since 1885 the Australian people have recognized that if the harbors of the Pacific, and especially those of New Guinea, were fortified against them or held by an unfriendly power, the coast of Queensland would be exposed to attack, with disastrous consequences to its social and economic life; whereas, if the islands were in their own hands, the harbors might remain unfortified and Australia relieved of the great part of the expenditure otherwise necessary for naval and military defense.

"It is said that these fears have been answered by the ease with which the German possessions were occupied at the outbreak of the war, but this will not stand close examination. The Carolines, which constituted the outer frontier of the dominions, sheltered an enemy fleet which was strong enough to defeat a British squadron; that enemy fleet was only brought to battle—destroyed—by the combined operations of the Japanese, British, and Australian navies.

"The war has completely altered the conditions of strategy in favor of aggression by the weaker naval power. The islands before the war constituted a frontier for Australia consisting of an outer and inner ring, of which the outer would be used as a screen for the enemy's fleet and the inner as the starting point for invasion. Today each island and each harbor is a possible submarine base from which to cut off the trade and transport of Australia to the East, to the Panama Canal, and to British India.

"The argument might be advanced that questions of defense will be completely solved by the League of Nations after its formation. Australia, a stanch believer in the League of Nations-to-be, knowing that the purpose of the League will be to prevent future wars, gives an added impetus to that purpose by demonstrating that, given the islands, war will be done away with in the South Pacific. In short, the Commonwealth advances the firm belief, based on facts, that possession of the islands is a necessary adjustment attendant upon the formation of the League.

"Germany has offered to disarm and to become a partner in the League of Nations. It will be for the Peace Conference to decide the weight to be attached immediately to such an offer. We are entitled to affirm that it is a deathbed repentance that is not by any means indorsed by the whole German people, and that there are no signs of any permanent disposition to agree to the abnegation of sovereignty and subordination of policy which honest membership in such a league would entail. * * *

"For the protection of native races two factors are necessary—character and capacity in administrators, and a high standard of public opinion at home. * * *

"Australia has recognized that a people which assumes control of a tropical country takes on itself a two-fold obligation. It must have regard for the welfare of the native inhabitants and it must endeavor to assure an adequate contribution from the country controlled to the common stock of the world. Australia's administration of Papua, from the time of Sir William MacGregor onward, has demonstrated that she has lived up to the obligations involved. * * *

"It should also be noted that in the Fiji Islands and other islands in the Pacific under British control the decline of population has been arrested and many of the causes to which it had been attributed have been removed.

"The Pacific Islands under the German flag have meant the Pacific Islands for the Germans. The exclusive policy adopted by German shipping firms illustrates this point. Many disputes arose over this policy of exclusion.

"No better guarantee that the islands under the empire would be open to the world for commerce is needed than the already known British policy. * * *

"German advocates may argue that the reasons against her return to the Pacific are outweighed by the hardships which a change of Government would inflict on her individual colonists. Such an argument, however, cannot apply to the Pacific. New Guinea is the oldest colony of any importance formerly belonging to Germany. The possession of Samoa and the outer islands dated from the present century and the Spanish-American war. In New Guinea, which was annexed in 1884, there has been no extensive settlement. In 1913 the European population in the Bismarck Archipelago was 597. There were also 88 Japanese and 1,142 Chinamen. Of the European population 85 were Government officials, 162 planters, and 98 merchants. The missionaries, with their wives and staff, numbered 298. The Papuan returns for the same year show a white population of 1,219, of whom 118 were Government officers, 109 missionaries, 151 planters, 136 shopkeepers and clerks, and 172 miners.

"There were also 262 colored mission teachers, mostly from Samoa. It is clear that only a miscroscopic section of the German population has sought a home in the islands. It must also be remembered that this section has recently lived under an Australian Military Governor and has administered its affairs through him, with great prosperity and satisfaction, during the last four years."

Part 2 of "The Case for Australia" is mainly an indictment of German methods in international and colonial intercourse. An indictment against Germany is no new thing in these days. Germany has been so infamous during the last four years that any reasonably stated case against her carries immediate conviction throughout the world. Judged by her past, as her actions in the Pacific must be, Germany stands convicted.

It is hardly necessary to develop Part 2 any further. It may prove interesting, however, to comment briefly on the last two subheads, namely, "Return of the colonies to Germany gives her an opportunity:

"To apply to the Pacific a doctrine which would have the same evil effect as the 'Mitteleuropa' schemes as applied to the territories from Berlin to Bagdad:

Germany's famous "Mitteleuropa" plan was a heinous piece of diplomacy. Back of the plan lay an understanding of the physical principle of the wedge and the Bismarckian principle. "Keep your enemies in misunderstanding." "Mitteleuropa" was to consist of a union of Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, Bulgaria, and those parts of the Balkans which were to be conquered, thus separating East Europe from the west. The wedge would hold these sections apart, making possible a diplomacy designed to keep other powers in a state of perpetual suspense, such as Bismarck practiced with success until the formation of the Entente Cordiale. As to its economic value much can be said. The proposed railroad from Bagdad to Berlin would tap the area traversed, as well as the Near East, and would at the southern terminal be the radius for Far Eastern antennae of exploitation—for instance, India.

An identical method applied to the Pacific would constitute a wedge between Australia, Japan, and the United States, making it easy, as Germany would conceive it, to sow misunderstanding among these three countries.

The world is agreed that Germany should be punished for her part in the war. There are differences of opinion only as to the extent and nature of that punishment. Clearly, however, Germany should be compelled to pay in a currency she has available and which would not destroy her future ability to pay. Her colonies are such a currency.

The preliminary meetings of the representatives of the great powers in Paris seem to indicate that the conferees understand Australia's relations to the German colonies in the Pacific. Australia has a just plea to put forward; she can, I think, look forward with confidence to the favorable acceptance of that plea by the nations assembled at the Peace Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Moon resolution, altered by the adoption of the Bell substitute so as to require the Postmaster General to return the telegraph and telephone systems to their owners Dec. 31, 1919, was reported to the House this evening by Chairman Moon. Republican members of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, which passed the resolution, said tonight they would ask for a special rule, so that the bill could be considered immediately. Some predicted that the bill would not only have a swift and easy passage through the House, but also that when it reached the Senate the committee to which it would there be referred would reduce the time for the return of the system.

There was great diversity of opinion today as to the extent to which the cables might be involved in the Moon resolution. Some members of the committee insisted that the under-water wires would have to be returned at the same time as the land wires. Other members, including Judge Moon, shared with the Post Office Department the contention that the cables were in no way affected, and that it would require separate legislation to turn them back. Still others took the ground that there was no necessity for action regarding the cables, as under the present law they must be returned when the President proclaims the ratification of the peace treaty, estimating that this event would take place much sooner than Dec. 31, 1919.

Senator E. D. Smith, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, which handled the "wire bills" last year, and to which the Moon resolution no doubt will be referred, said he had no doubt the cables would be affected by the resolution.

As yet no move to parallel the Moon resolution by the introduction of a similar measure in the Senate appears to have been made. The plan seems to be to allow the Moon resolution to come over from the House. When the resolution reaches the Senate it will have stanch champions, such as Senators Kellogg of Minnesota, Hitchcock of Nebraska, and Sherman of Illinois.

Some members of the House Committee declared today that the reason the cables were not mentioned in the resolution adopted yesterday was that the Postmaster General had not asked for an extension of his control over these particular wires.

The Post Office Department was much pleased with the action of the House Committee. Again the statement was made at the department that the intervening eleven months would not be used for experiments to advance any scheme of Government ownership, but would be used as a period of readjustment in which to "protect the companies and the public." The department takes the stand that many cables would become bankrupt if the lines were turned back immediately.

INDIANA WIRE CASE FAILS.

Federal Judge Denies Injunction Against Burleson Rates.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 29.—Holding that the United States District Court had no jurisdiction in the application of the Indiana Public Service Commission for a permanent injunction to prevent collection by the telephone companies of new toll rates recently ordered into effect by Postmaster General Burleson, Judge A. B. Anderson today dissolved the temporary restraining order granted several days ago. The rates became effective in Indiana immediately upon the court's ruling.

Charles M. Bracelon, Solicitor for the Post Office Department, presented the principal argument against the injunction. James E. Markham of the department of the Attorney General of Minnesota answered Mr. Bracelon's argument, calling attention to court actions over the telephone rates pending in Ohio, Michigan, and Minnesota. Judge Anderson said his court had no jurisdiction in the case, because no "Federal question had been raised."

The Public Service Commission may attempt proceedings in the State courts.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Jan. 29.—The County Court today, on petition of the Attorney General of Pennsylvania, issued a preliminary injunction restraining the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania from charging the increased rates recently ordered by the Federal authorities. The hearing was set for Monday.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 29.—An appeal was filed in the State Supreme Court today by the Michigan State Telephone Company from the injunction issued yesterday by the Circuit Court restraining telephone companies of the State from putting into effect rates recently ordered by the Federal Government.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—A complaint against the enforcement of the Federal telephone tariffs in the State, and asking that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company be enjoined from collecting these tariffs, was filed in the United States District Court here today by the State Railroad Commission. The complaint alleges the commission is the only proper rate-making body in California.

REVENUE BILL READY.

Simmons Announces That It Will Go to the Printer Tonight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The work of clearing up the minor points of difference in the War Revenue bill was continued today by the Senate and House conferees and Senator Simmons said the final draft would be ready for the printer by tomorrow night. This will make it possible for the House to consider the measure on Monday, when a statement concerning the proposed legislation will be made by Representative Kitchin.

Detailed information concerning the final agreements reached on the more important issues were again withheld today by the conferees. It is generally accepted, however, that the Senate has given way on the matter of second-class postage rates, thus providing for the retention of the same system as set forth in the 1917 bill, and that the Senate provisions for excess profits taxes have been generally adopted with an increase to 65 per cent. in the rate of taxation on net incomes in excess of 20 per cent. of invested capital. The proposed Senate rate was 60 per cent.

CUDAHY AND WILSON OPPOSE REGULATION

Packers Say It Would Destroy Industry's Efficiency—Prices Falling, Says Swift.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—While Louis F. Swift, President of Swift & Co., was being cross-examined today before the Senate Agriculture Committee, Edward A. Cudany, President of the Cudahy Packing Company, and T. E. Wilson, President of Wilson & Co., were telling the House Interstate Commerce Committee that pending legislation to regulate the packing industry was unnecessary.

Both Mr. Cudahy and Mr. Wilson said the investigation of the industry conducted by the Federal Trade Commission was unfair and should not be used as the basis for action by Congress.

Mr. Wilson said he did not criticise the investigators because probably they were sincere, but he said they started off with a fixed idea regarding the packers.

Mr. Cudahy said the packers would favor "complete and better publicity of the facts," and if this were coupled with friendly co-operation "far better results would be attained than by more legislation."

Both men declared that the efficiency of the packing industry would be destroyed if controlled or regulated by the Government.

Francis J. Heney, chief counsel for the Trade Commission in the investigation of the packers, again conducted the cross-questioning of Mr. Swift. He inquired into speculative transactions in Swift stocks as well as into alleged attempts of the big packing concerns to control prices and markets.

Stocks of all meats are greater now than a year ago, Mr. Swift testified.

"Then why don't prices go down?" asked Senator Norris.

"I understand they are on the toboggan," the witness replied.

He explained that much of the accumulation was due to heavy supplies at Eastern ports awaiting shipment to England.

Leather Gloves Too High?

The prevailing prices of leather gloves have interfered with the sale to a great extent, according to some of the firms in this trade. One of the manufacturers said yesterday morning that business is practically at a standstill. He asserted that, at this time of the year when he should be receiving some large orders from the jobbing trade, he has so far received but one. This amounted to fifty-three dozen, whereas in former times the order usually amounted to 1,500 dozen.

Overgaiters Called For.

Owing to the apparent shortage of materials, the demand for men's and women's overgaiters is far greater than the supply. One of the makers of such goods said yesterday that he was over a month behind in filling the orders that he had on hand. The weather conditions have been very favorable for the use of these articles, and have had much to do with the increased sales. Salesmen who are now out taking orders for immediate and Fall delivery report that the volume of business is much larger this season. The most popular colors now being shown are taupe, brown, gray, pearl, white, and fawn.

Gray Goods Sales Varied.

A fair amount of activity marked the local gray goods market yesterday. The sales were distinguished rather by number and variety than by the quantities disposed of. In the printcloths, 39-inch 72-76s and 68-72s sold at 13½ and 11½ cents respectively for spots and February delivery, and 38½ inch 60-64s and 60-48s went at 9¼ and 8¾ cents respectively for the same delivery. Sales of 36-inch, 56-60, 4 yard sheetings were reported at 13 cents. The transactions were with first hands. Some good business was reported in sateens, poplins, reps, and lawns. In general, the market was a buyers' rather than a sellers' one.

Receiving Reorders for Skirts.

Reports received from the road indicate that the buying of women's skirts continues to be very liberal. Outside of the city there is apparently very little discussion regarding the price, and reorders are now being received from some sections. It is said, however, that the out-of-town buyers who are in the city look at the matter from a very different angle, and many of them are waiting for lower prices. In the South and in the vicinity of Palm Beach novelty silk and wash skirts are very popular.

Dress Suits and Cutaways.

"Dress suit men were the first to get into the trenches," says a manufacturer of evening clothes for men, "and for the last year and a half our business has been dead. Now business is better than it ever was. For cutaways we can't fill our orders. Prices are still high, probably 20 per cent. higher than they were two years ago. There are some reductions in cost of materials, but staples remain the same and the prices keep up.

Business in Fur-Lined Coats.

Business has been very good this season among the manufacturers of men's fur-lined overcoats. At present conditions are very unsettled owing to the labor troubles prevailing. Much interest is being taken in the fur sales, upon the prices in which those of next season's coats will probably be based. In view of the continued warm weather very little stock is being made up for future needs.

ST. LOUIS SALE IS ENDED.

$9,550,000 Taken In at Nine-Day Auction in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 29.—The nine-day midwinter fur auction ended tonight with total sales amounting to $9,550,000. Buyers claimed it was the greatest sale ever held.

More than 3,000,000 pelts, including virtually everything from house cat to Russian sable, were disposed of, prices ranging from 1 cent to $100 a pelt. To-day's sales included 1,000,000 muskrats, which brought $1,100,000.

Leaf Tobacco Stocks Increase.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Leaf tobacco held by manufacturers and dealers Jan. 1, the Census Bureau reported today, was 1,234,884,896 pounds, an increase of about 48,000,000 pounds as compared with last year. The total included 234,309,051 pounds of cigar type tobaccos, an increase of about 50,000,000 pounds, and 67,322,451 pounds of imported types, an increase of 8,000,000 pounds.

Want Shoes Protected.

BOSTON, Jan. 29.—Resolutions requesting Congress to put a duty on shoes which would equalize the cost of production between the United States and other countries were passed at the annual meeting of the New England Shoe and Leather Association today. Speedy restoration of railroads to private ownership was favored.

Prices of Drugs and Chemicals.

Heavy imports of menthol and lack of demand have led holders to cut the price severely, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Competition in the market indicates that prices may go still lower. Coumarin and denatured alcohol are declining, and mercurials are lower. Camphor prices are firm, while Newfoundland cod liver oil is easier. In heavy chemicals no further improvement in trade is reported, and manufacturers do not believe business will become normal for some time. Dealers are selling in small lots at the market price rather than grant concessions for the sake of larger orders, and this action has a tendency to stabilize prices and prevent serious declines. Acetic acid, prussiate of potash, and sulphuric acid are lower. Caustic potash, calcium carbide, and copper sulphate are higher.

Now Getting Surgical Supplies.

Dealers in surgical supplies in this country, and doctors and surgeons individually, have been the greatest sufferers from the Government monopolies during the war. The Government took 97 per cent. of all the supplies manufactured. Such necessities as surgical needles and thermometers were impossible to obtain. With the cessation of hostilities supplies are taking their normal course and for the last six weeks the big supply houses which cover different sections of the country have been able to fill their orders, and this will continue.

Children's High-Grade Dresses.

Practically no cancellations at all have been received by the manufacturers of children's high grade dresses. In the local trade the buying is very satisfactory, and is well in proportion to last year's business. The out-of-town trade is showing many signs of improvement, and some very substantial orders are being received, especially from the South and West. Some of the out-of-town buyers who are in the city feel that the prices are too high. It is said, however, that they are looking for the cheaper lines.

Women's Raincoats Sell Well.

Due to the former demands of the Government for raincoats, the stocks in the retail stores are said to be very low. This has resulted in some large sized orders being taken by the men on the road for women's garments of this kind. Everywhere the demand seems to be for the higher-priced merchandise. The Western trade is exceptionally good this year, there being a good sale for coats that retail from $18 to $25 apiece. Silk finishes and cravenette tweeds are among the best sellers.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Steel Dividend Reduction and Earnings React on Stocks—Money Supply Large.

The reduction of the Steel Corporation's extra dividend had a natural effect on speculative sentiment in yesterday's stock market, and the decline of industrial issues brought about by sales for the short account appeared to be furthered by some liquidation. Study of the corporation's income account for the last quarter of 1918 emphasized not only the fact that earnings had declined sharply from the quarter preceding but also the record of marked contraction from month to month. It was easy for traders to infer that the small net return of $10,884,000 in December, compared with $26,471,000 in March, $20,412,000 in June, and $13,600,000 in September, indicated a continuation of the shrinkage in January and perhaps February of this year. In the forepart of the session brokerage house comment dealt with hurried sales of stock held for investment, but this development seemed to lose force as time passed and trading slackened after the first hour. The decline of 3½ points in Steel common stood among the largest recessions of the day, with a number of other steel stocks dropping back more than 2 points and oil, copper, railroad equipment, and copper stocks displaying considerable weakness.

Outside of the particular happening which worked to concentrate unfavorable attention on the steel industry, the day's news was by no means unsettling for the future of business. The Iron Age noted that the reduction of ocean freight rates had stimulated inquiries on export steel orders and the outlook for an increase of sales in Europe by American mills in the near future was thought to be improved by the lower transportation charges plus labor unsettlement in British manufacturing regions and prevailing high costs over there. While reports were received of further slackening of operations at some domestic mills and furnaces, the point was not lost sight of in quarters where basis conditions are view that the current season is one for normal repairing of plant, a process which might well carry with it at this time a greater decline of operations than in pre-war years because of the heavy wear and tear of war production.

The reaction of railroad equipment company shares in the afternoon received less attention than the movement of steel stocks, but the impelling force was well worthy of notice. The recession gained considerable impetus after the receipt of dispatches from Washington which recited what appeared to be altered views of the Railroad Administration on the outlay for rolling stock this year. It was inferred that expenditures would be less than were contemplated a few weeks ago. Railroad traffic experts doubtless have been examining the state of business, present and future, since the armistice brought an easement of rush freight transportation, and it would not be surprising to many observers of railroad developments if extension and betterment plans were also revised downward before long. The objection of railway managers to acquiring cars and making improvements more than are absolutely necessary at prevailing costs has been gaining strength of late.

Money continued easy yesterday and the large supplies offered forecast the absence of strain today when the last payment on the Fourth Liberty Loan is made and also a payment of $600,000,000 on Treasury certificates. In banking quarters the demand for acceptances was reported substantial and bidders were active in the market for commercial bills.

STEEL OPERATIONS CUT.

Trade Reviews Also Report Renewal of Export Inquiries.

The weekly reviews of the iron trade report an awakening of export inquiry due to the recent cut in ocean freight rates announced by the Shipping Board and at the same time indicate that the industry has had to curtail operations even more to strike a balance with the apparent amount of buying power.

The Iron Age says:

Export inquiry is awakened by the sharp cuts given to ocean freight rates on both sides of the Atlantic. The disparity of British and American charges has not been materially reduced but the change is sufficient to cause concern abroad, particularly over the possibility of United States steel and iron being imported to the exclusion of the home product. Some thousand-ton lots of finished steel for England are now in storage here awaiting favorable vessel rates, and stocks there made at high costs are not yet liquidated.

In open competition an American mill has sold tin plates to Japan. The British fixed price is $43 a ton higher than the Pittsburgh quotation, and a less freight differential is all that is necessary to throw the business to the United States on a price basis.

The Iron Trade Review says:

The industry is being obliged to make further curtailment of operations to square itself with the light volume of buying. A canvass of the pig iron situation shows that at the present time thirty-nine active stacks with an estimated daily capacity of 15,000 to 20,000 tons, have been blown out or banked, most of these since Jan. 1. Mill activities are not far from 60 per cent. on the average. The best showing appears to be in plates, sheets and merchant mill products.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Mercantile Marine Uncertainty.

The recovery of 2 points in International Mercantile Marine preferred yesterday, when the market generally was tending downward, emphasized the uncertainty of traders in regard to the effect of reduced freight rates on this stock. On Tuesday the decline seemed to forecast a movement to still lower prices, and the reverse movement yesterday indicated the covering of short sales of Tuesday, together with a fair amount of purchases of long stock. From the speculative point of view, the Marine situation contains factors which prompt caution, as it has not become clearly known whether or not the company's earnings will be radically affected by the reduced rates. At the same time, the proposed sale of the company's British ships to the United States Government is still hanging over the market as a possible influence for stimulating the stock.

Shipping Stock Dividends.

Considering the shipping stocks from a dividend basis, the market is having some difficulty in determining the outlook for them. The companies have piled up large cash balances, and in addition have been able, through war-brought profits, to make sizable investments in securities, including Liberty bonds. It is estimated that the Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies Company, for one, would be able to maintain the current rate of $10 per year on the common stock through the income from its liquid funds and investments alone.

Some Liquidation of Steel.

At the opening of yesterday's stock market Steel common was sold freely, but not by the traders and other local talent. They bought, and they bought from what one broker was pleased to call "the shocked public." There was public selling, doubtless because of the reduction in the extra dividend and in the earnings of the quarter, and the professionals took advantage of it to cover part of their short contracts. Later in the day, when the stock hung around 89⅞ and showed no signs of a disposition to go higher, many of these professionals put out new lines of short stock, and it was then that Steel finally broke through 89.

Elsewhere in the List.

That Steel is very much "the market" was again demonstrated yesterday. The poor earnings for the quarter, probably more than the dividend action, depressed Wall Street, and about all the steel and kindred stocks were heavy, if not actually weak. The equipments, for particular reasons, were not in demand, and the so-called independent steel shares were allowed to drag badly. And, in most places where men met, the sole topic was the Steel statement.

Liberty Loan Payments.

The last of the instalments on the Fourth Liberty Loan is due today. The instalment, under the terms of the Government contract, calls for 30 per cent., which, computed on the $6,989,047,000 of subscriptions, would call for a sum of $2,096,714,100, but, according to the latest issue of the daily Treasury statement, only about $400,000,000 is still due. There is also a payment due today on the $600,000,000 of Treasury certificates of indebtedness issued in anticipation of the next Liberty Loan.

Wage Scale Readjustment.

The wages paid copper miners are so closely related to the price of copper that particular interest attaches to the understanding that in the Arizona district the scale of pay is to be reduced shortly to a level which will conform with a price of 20 cents a pound for the red metal. Until now the pay of the miners has been on the basis of 23 and 30 cent copper. Whether the action of the producers in reducing wages means that a price of 20 cents a pound for copper is to be quoted before long is a question that arouses speculation. Heretofore the copper companies have maintained that 23 cents a pound for copper was the lowest that could consistently be quoted in view of the high producing costs. Had the pay of the miners been cut to conform with such a price there would have been little doubt of the determination of the producers to demand 23 cents a pound in the immediate future. The demand for copper at 23 cents has, however, been lacking. That which makes it appear as if the 20-cent price might prevail, a figure that has been quoted by some of the smaller companies, is the inconsistency of miners accepting wages on the basis of 20-cent copper with the producing companies receiving 23 cents a pound.

The Steel Dividend.

It was the opinion of the Street that the declaration of the quarterly dividend by the Directors of the United States Steel Corporation might be taken as an index to the outlook in the industry for the immediate future. Now that the news is out, and the extra dividend has been cut to 1 per cent., there appears to be no conclusive determination of the perplexing problem. The fact seems to be that the declaration of the dividend was governed by so many factors that it can hardly be taken as a forecast of conditions to come. The earnings of the Steel Corporation for instance appear small, but they are only small by comparison. As a matter of fact the company was earning at the rate of nearly $1,000,000 a day during the last quarter, of which the greater part was set aside for Government taxes. Under normal conditions such earnings would be regarded as phenomenal. The Steel Corporation during the entire year set aside about 58 per cent. of earnings for corporation and excess profits taxes. If the taxes are cut in the pending revenue bill, as is generally expected, the corporation would still have a sizeable fund for the payment of dividends, and perhaps even extras, without showing earnings greater than in the last quarter of 1918 before the allowance for taxes. It appears to be plain that the steel industry was earning in the last quarter at a rate higher than in any but the most favorable pre-war times.

Atlantic Refining at New High.

The advance which has been made in Atlantic Refining Company stock recently, a price of 1210 having been recorded as a new high price, has marked this issue as one of the leaders in the Standard Oil group. Also it brings to mind the position in which this company stands as to the possible payment of stock dividends. The surplus of the company is about $45,000,000 as compared with a capital of $5,000,000. Ohio Oil Gas, Prairie Oil and Gas, Solar Refining, and a number of other Standard Oil companies have large surpluses, and some have already increased their stock, although no action has been taken by the Directors with regard to a distribution of stock to shareholders. The decision that stock dividends are not taxable as income, it is believed may influence some companies to make distributions even though the decision of the lower court may have to be reaffirmed by the United States Supreme Court as applied to the revenue law of 1916. The release of stock dividends from taxation would prevent the possibility of a forced sale of some of the stock to meet tax requirements, thereby lessening the chance of a depression of the issue in the market.

W. P. G. HARDING RESIGNS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—W. P. G. Harding today resigned as Managing Director of the War Finance Corporation, because of the increasing pressure of his duties as Governor of the Federal Reserve Board. He was succeeded as Managing Director of the finance corporation by Eugene Meyer, Jr., now a director, but will retain his office as a director of the organization.

The War Finance Corporation is making no new loans, except to railroads, and is preparing to wind up its affairs after the declaration of peace.

TO GUARD AMERICAN RIGHTS IN MEXICO

CAPITAL NEEDS PROTECTION

With Lives and Property of Foreigners Safe in Country, Announcement Says, Mexico Will Prosper.

The National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico yesterday set forth in an official statement the aims of the organization, it being asserted that the unsettled conditions which have prevailed in Mexico during the last eight years were disastrous not only to the lives and property of foreigners in that country, but also to the lives and property of Mexicans as well. The organization, which has been formed by a group comprising some of those who responded to Mexico's invitation for the investment of capital in the enterprises of the republic, believes that further foreign capital is necessary to a development of Mexico's resources, but that this cannot be available until the Mexican laws and officials recognize the rights of Americans and other foreigners and provide adequate protection. The statement also says that the organization has no idea of embarrassing the United States or of bringing it into conflict with the Mexican Government.

The association has already taken steps to be represented at the Peace Conference at Paris. The announcement says in part:

"It must, we think, be apparent that the effective, practical, and friendly recognition by the Mexican Government of its obligation to protect American and other foreign rights will be followed by a rapid development of Mexico's resources, with increased revenue to the Government, re-establishment of its credit, employment for its people, and a supply of food products more than sufficient for the country's needs. But it is also clear that this development is largely dependent upon the continued help of American capital and enterprise, neither of which will be available for this purpose until the Mexican laws and officials recognize the rights of Americans and afford adequate protection to their lives and property.

"The organizers of this association feel that gross injustices have been committed in Mexico to American citizens and to American property rights; that there has been a lack of accurate information concerning the actual conditions which have prevailed and a lack of coordinated effort to prevent their repetition; that there exists a vital necessity for the creation of a medium for the ascertainment of all of the facts bearing upon the Mexican situation, and through which an appeal may be made to public opinion and to the governments of Mexico and of the United States; and that it is only through concerted action, in which it is hoped that all persons interested in Mexico may participate, that a condition of stability and responsibility in that country can be effected which will result in the full recognition and protection of American rights.

"It seems clear that too much light cannot be thrown upon the facts regarding the Mexican situation if we are to obtain intelligent and effective action on the part of the American people and representatives. To that end the association will collect all data regarding foreign industries and enterprises in Mexico, will keep in touch with all decrees, laws, regulations, and other developments affecting American rights in Mexico, and will be prepared to furnish information in respect thereto to the Government of the United States and to the American public. The association will endeavor to keep itself constantly in touch with the Mexican Government and with the Government of the United States as to all matters affecting American rights and property, and will at all times be prepared to take and vigorously prosecute such legitimate steps as may be necessary for their protection."

COTTON PRICES DOWN AGAIN

Optimism Over Reduced Atlantic Rates Is Short-Lived.

Apparently, the cotton market yesterday had to pay for the sharp advance of the day before, when prices were run up close to 200 points above the previous day's levels. The bullishness of Tuesday was entirely due to the announced reduction in Atlantic shipping rates, and this, it seems, was not sufficient to hold the market through more than one session. Yesterday most of the gains were lost. At the close of business prices were almost down to where they started, from 50 to 150 points below the figures of Tuesday.

At the opening of the market there was a firm display on good Liverpool cables, which were considerably better than due. Wall Street and a few of the Southern houses bought moderately in the first few minutes, and sellers seemed to be rather scarce. There was again talk of an improved technical position, and local traders were inclined to lay great stress on the reduced ocean freights. Prices then worked up slightly, and at the end of the first hour the best quotations of the day were recorded.

The strength did not last long after that, for selling pressure from Liverpool and the South soon sent values down sharply. The selling was in good volume and attracted many of the local traders who had covered their shorts the day before. Thus encouraged, the ring sold freely, again placing itself strongly on the short side.

In the last hour the selling was particularly heavy, and the greatest losses of the session were sustained at that time. The market was a distinct disappointment to some of the more conservative interests, who had believed that the turn had come and that prices would gradually work into higher ground. But it would seem that even though the short position is greatly extended there is corresponding courage, and until something very startling occurs the traders are likely to stick to the short side.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

SAYS WHEAT PRICE WILL NOT BE CUT

WORLD STILL BUYING HERE

Demands on America, He Adds, Will Probably Exhaust the 1918 Crop Surplus.

The Government will not attempt to cut the price of wheat, and the flour men need feel no fear as to the outlook, according to a statement issued yesterday by Julius Barnes, President of the Grain Corporation of the United States Food Administration, 42 Broadway, in which he predicted that overseas demands probably would exhaust the 1918 crop surplus. The statement says:

"There seems to be apprehension on the part of bakers, flour dealers, and millers that the Grain Corporation as a Government agency may, at any time, decide to resell the wheat taken from the grower under the guaranteed basis of the different markets, namely, $2.26 Chicago, and resell this wheat at a lower price level, thus resulting in a decline in flour prices. The basis on which this feeling exists seems to be an impression that the world price level of wheat as at present ruling is below the guaranteed price basis now made effective in America. Broadly speaking, this is not true. World buyers, privileged to seek the cheapest sources of supply, are still coming to America for current purchases of wheat and wheat flour, because ocean transportation, considered with other conditions, makes the American price level still more attractive to them than the markets of Argentina and Australia.

"Contrary also to the general impression, a careful survey of the probable demands which will fall on America for the balance of this crop year from allied countries, from neutrals, from newly liberated peoples, and the possibly imperative necessity for some food provisioning of Germany in the interest of maintaining a stable Government for our own protection, will total such demands on America as will probably exhaust all of the 1918 crop surplus. It would be the height of folly to dispose of the American surplus, under this condition, at a loss to the National Treasury, and the official agencies of the Food Administration, making the wheat price effective, have in contemplation no such action whatever."

W. Quackenbush, Secretary of the New York Flour Club, 18 Beaver Street, yesterday disclosed that at a meeting of the New York, Boston, and Philadelphia Flour Clubs, held in this city on Jan. 14, the flour trade of the Eastern seaboard adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas, The flour markets of the Eastern seaboard are heavily stocked with grades of flour made compulsory by the Food Administration, and said large stocks not having been purchased, for any speculative purposes, such being impossible by reason of Governmentally established bases of profits and regulations, but only so that the demands of consumers could be properly met, and,

Whereas, There is considerable agitation through the daily press urging that all restrictions on prices of grain and other food products be immediately removed, and as an enormous loss would immediately result and cause a serious crisis, and the flour trade feeling that it is absolutely imperative that to meet public demands it should function properly and be properly protected in so doing, it is therefore

Resolved, That the Eastern seaboard flour trade earnestly petitions for immediate assurance that it will receive the same protection on the flour it may hold as is now guaranteed to the farmer, miller, and wheat handler against a decline in the price of wheat. Without this immediate assurance proper distribution of flour to serve consumers' interests will be very seriously hampered.

In reply to this request Mr. Barnes yesterday addressed the following letter to the flour trade through the New York organization:

United States Food Administration,

Attention of W. Quackenbush, Secretary.

Dear Sirs—I find your letter of Jan. 25 and a copy of The Eastern Seaboard Flour Trade, on my return from Europe yesterday. I confess that I am at a loss to understand why there should be, in the trade and on the part of the public, any feeling that the present guaranteed price of wheat represents, on this year's crop situation, any inflation, with a possible consequent decline, should that inflation be relieved. Entirely outside of any large program of relief shipments to enemy countries abroad, a careful survey of the requirements of the allies' countries, of the neutrals, and of the newly liberated peoples whom we are bound to help feed, would indicate that every bushel of surplus from the wheat crop of 1918 will be required before the end of the harvest year.

"It would be the height of business folly, this being true, for the Grain Corporation to contemplate allowing to develop any such situation as the resolutions of your club would seem to apprehend. By executive order the Grain Corporation will continue to pay, until June next at least, the present level of guaranteed price to the producer, reflected in the various markets by the buying scale hitherto in effect. There is no necessity apparent, and it would be a most unsound policy to sell these holdings at less than the established purchase price; in fact, it is very doubtful whether the Grain Corporation can contemplate providing the domestic market from its present holdings to any extent whatever, for the obligations at present definitely assumed and those contemplated for shipments abroad will exhaust entirely the present holdings of wheat of the Grain Corporation and the balance of wheat supplies in this country, and would seem to be barely more than sufficient for the ordinary domestic requirements. I feel justified in saying, therefore, that the flour dealers and millers of this country may operate for the balance of this crop year in the fullest confidence that the Government agencies will, at no time, put into effect a policy of resale of wheat at lower than the present established Government buying basis.

"For the present, at least, the 'world basis' would seem to justify our American discussion indicating an apprehension that, while the Government guaranteed price level may be continued through next year, a resale may be made on a supposedly world basis, which most of this discussion contemplates as being on a lower level, and, inasmuch as the crops to be cared for next year are still in the making, and as half of the contemplated crops of North America are not even yet in the ground, it would seem as if a great deal of advance anxiety was being unnecessarily created, and that the policies themselves on which the 1919 crop guaranty may be executed would have to develop with the progress of the crop still to be grown, and with the demonstration of world requirements not possible yet to accurately ascertain.

"For the present, at least, the 'world basis' would seem to justify our American wheat prices, for there is a steady flow of purchases from America of wheat and wheat flour by buyers perfectly free to send their ships to other sources of supply, should those other sources offer superior attractions for a buyer over the American price, plus the short ocean voyage saving from America. Yours very truly,

JULIUS BARNES, President.

According to an official of the Grain Corporation, wheat holdings at present are about 150,000,000 bushels.

What Sponsorship Means

The sponsorship of a conservative banking house of large experience is the first essential in selecting bonds for investment. Such sponsorship means a comprehensive and definite system of safeguards for investors from the day their money is invested until the final payment of interest and maturing principal. Our interest in an investment does not end with the purchase of the bonds by our customers, but we continue to keep in touch with the affairs of the company until the bonds are finally paid at maturity.

Organized in 1882, this house has the accumulated experience of nearly forty years in the selection of investment bonds. In addition to a large volume of business with financial institutions here and abroad, we have for many years been selling bonds to individual investors.

These bonds are purchased with our own funds, only after a most careful investigation. We then offer them with our recommendation to our clients at prices to yield as high a return as is consistent with safety of principal.

We invite correspondence from investors interested in the purchase of investment bonds. Upon request, we shall be pleased to send a copy of our Investment Circular, containing a carefully selected list of government, municipal, railroad and public utility bonds which we are offering with our recommendation. These bonds may be purchased at present to yield from 4½% to more than 7% over a period of from three to fifty years.

We suggest you ask for Circular A-5.

ASK PUBLIC TO HELP DEFEAT LUXURY TAX

New York's Retail Merchants Will Urge Customers to Appeal to Committee.

CAMPAIGN BEGINS TODAY

In Department, Dry Goods, and Allied Stores Petitions Opposing the Revenue Tax Will Be Circulated.

Practically all the big department, dry goods, and allied retail stores in this city will start an intensive drive this morning to enlist the aid of their patrons to defeat the so-called "luxury tax" provision of the War Revenue Bill now before a conference committee of Congress. Appeals to the committee have been prepared by the store executives, and customers will be asked to sign the petitions which oppose the imposition of consumption taxes on the public, which the store men denounced yesterday as unwarranted, discriminatory, and calculated to add to unemployment at a time when productive energy should be speeded to the maximum.

The campaign against the luxury tax on clothing and a large variety of other articles of common use, inaugurated by the retail dry goods interests, is intended by its promoters to closely parallel the recent successful drive made by theatre managers and theatre-goers against the proposed increase in the tax on admissions. When Congress realized the full extent of the opposition against raising the tax on theatre tickets, the tax was left as in the present law. The dry goods men said yesterday they believed that when the consuming public thoroughly understands the nature of the proposed luxury taxation, and appreciates the fact that the extra cost will have to be paid by the consumer, the opportunity to make a protest will be welcomed.

Following conferences held in Washington this week between dry goods interests and members of the Senate and House Conference Committees, store representatives said last night that if the luxury provision was to be eliminated from the pending Revenue Bill, it could only be done by quick and vigorous protest by the buying public. Accordingly, every facility will be offered in the stores here, beginning this morning, to encourage customers to sign.

In most of the stores, managers and floor walkers will be in charge of the work of gathering signatures, while in others the salespeople will solicit names. Franklin Simon, President of Franklin Simon & Co., 414 Fifth Avenue, said it was hoped that the public would make a full response to the appeal to sign the petitions, and added that it was hoped to send the first batch of petitions to Claude Kitchin, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, and a member of the Conference Committee, on Saturday.

Unwarranted, He Says.

"This luxury tax," Mr. Simon said, "is wholly unwarranted. It is a tax not on luxuries in the generally accepted sense of the word but on necessaries as well. The luxury tax provision is full of inequalities; for instance, silk hosiery is taxed, but wool and cotton hosiery, which may be of a very expensive character, is not touched by the tax provision. The tax would have the effect of discouraging the sale of high class merchandise and reduce opportunities for employment at a time when the Government, private associations, and individuals are striving to find work for our returning soldiers."

The following is a list of the taxes which it is proposed to levy on so-called "luxuries" under the act now pending before Congress:

Ten per cent. of selling price on the following goods:

Cameras,	Liveries,
Photographic films,	Livery boots,
Electric fans,	Livery hats,
Thermos bottles,	Fur garments of all kinds.
Tapestries, &c., for furniture, coverings, and hangings.

Picture frames....$10	Men's and boys' neckwear $2.00
Picture frames.$10.00	Men's and boys' silk stockings and hose 1.00
Trunks 50.00	Women's silk stockings and hose 2.00
Valises 25.00
Traveling bags..25.00
Suitcases 25.00
Hatboxes 25.00
Purses 7.50
Shopping bags... 7.50	Men's shirts...... 3.00
Handbags 7.50	Kimonos and petticoats 15.00
Umbrellas 4.00
Men's and boys' hats 5.00	Men's and women's underw'r. 5.00
Men's and boys' caps 2.00	Men's and women's pajamas. 5.00

Committees representing dry goods men in New York and many other sections of the country have been active in Washington the last few days trying to encompass the defeat of the luxury tax provision, and, while the store representatives feel that their arguments have made some impression on the members of the Conference Committee, they are agreed that if the consuming public will make its sentiment against the tax known in vigorous fashion, the objectionable and burdensome levy will be eliminated from the revenue measure. The unanimous opinion of the dry goods merchants is that the luxury tax has no place in a revenue measure now that the war is over.

Report About Washington.

T. Arthur Ball, Chairman of the Retail Dry Goods Committee, which went to Washington to oppose the objectionable feature of the Revenue bill, yesterday sent out the following letter to dry goods merchants in this city:

Jan. 29, 1919.

Dear Sir:

Your committee was in Washington yesterday in regard to the luxury tax, and co-operated with the National Retail Dry Goods Association, also the National Garment Retailers' Association. There were about twenty-five representatives from various parts of the country at the meeting—one from Chicago, one from Kansas City, one from Wisconsin, one from Massachusetts, one from Maryland, a number from New York, and a number from Pennsylvania.

After an informal meeting a committee was named to have an informal conference with part of the Conference Committee of the House and Senate. The members of this committee seen were Chairman Kitchin and Senators Lodge, Simmons, and Hoke Smith, who were all opposed to the bill in its entirety. It was hard to argue with them, because they did not need to be persuaded with regard to something they are already opposed to.

The various members then went to their own Senators and Representatives, asking them to intervene in every way; to go before the Conference Committee and ask to have the whole law thrown out.

The situation in regard to the same is this: That the House and Senate have agreed upon certain provisions, and they have passed. The parts that were not agreed upon are in conference, and in conference only as regards the amount of the tax, most of the difference being whether it shall be the Senate's 10 per cent. or the House's 20 per cent., and under ordinary rules of procedure they can only consider the question as to whether it should be between these per cents.

However, there is a precedent, used in 1898, of throwing out the whole law. The Senators were fully aware of this precedent, and had evidently been discussing it, which was evident by their conversation with us.

Another meeting of the various merchants was had at 2:30 P. M. Various ways and means were discussed of bringing enough pressure to bear on the conference committee by the representatives and through the various members of the association to have them use this precedent for repealing the whole law. It was also suggested, and was left to the option of the various members, to immediately put in a prominent place in their establishment a petition to be signed by as many of their customers as possible, and it was also suggested that the employes sign it, and that it be mailed to Chairman Kitchin on Saturday night, Feb. 1, 1919. The theatre people had their tax immediately reduced by doing this.

It was also decided by every member of the committee to communicate with every one in their various associations to again write their Representatives and Senators and also the conference committee, asking them to bring the precedent of 1898 to bear on the present law.

The Senators seen yesterday agreed with the committee that the necessity of a luxury tax law at the present time was illogical; that if the tax had the original effect of reducing the consumption of higher priced merchandise of various descriptions, it would throw out of employment many people who would have to seek other positions at lower salaries. This is very important, as one branch of the Government is taxing men out of positions and another branch of the Government is asking every employer to give every one a job.

If you know any one who has written, or who is interested, or who has not written, whom you can prevail upon to give a strong protest to his Congressman, his Senator and the Conference Committee, please have him do so at once, preferably by letter. There are innumerable telegrams already in Washington. Please do this at once. The Senators in the committee seen yesterday said that Senator Kenyon slipped this luxury provision in about 11 o'clock at night, when no one was paying any attention to it, and they would like to have it eliminated themselves. Senator Kenyon has been bombarded by his own constituents, by telegrams, letters, and petitions, and his attitude at the present time is not thoroughly known.

The question of collection is a serious one. The law says plainly and emphatically that it is a consumer's tax, and it cannot be added to the price of the merchandise. This means that on every check there will have to be a separate audit, and that for every day's sales and every day's credits there will have to be separate records kept; that in charge ledgers, where the tax is charged to the customers, it will have to be separated, and will mean a tremendous amount of labor.

If there are any facts in this memorandum that are not known to the persons to whom you are going to write requesting them to communicate with their representatives please send them on.

The members of the Conference Committee are:

SENATORS.	REPRESENTATIVES
F. M. Simmons.	Claude Kitchin.
Hoke Smith.	Henry T. Rainey.
T. S. Williams.	Lincoln Dixon.
Boles Penrose.	T. Hampton Moore.
Henry Cabot Lodge.	James W. Fordney.

Respectfully submitted,

T. ARTHUR BALL, Chairman.

Calls Tax "Unfair."

"We believe that this tax is unfair, discriminatory, and class legislation," said P. A. Conne, Vice President of Saks & Co., yesterday. "We believe that it will burden and hinder business greatly at the very time the industries of the country in the period of reconstruction need supports, not handicaps. We also feel that it would be a very difficult tax to collect, as well as costly. It is a tax the people will resent—it is not the way they care to pay taxes. It is our belief that the tax would be a disappointment and would not produce the amount hoped for by the framers of this luxury provision. The provision if allowed to be enacted into law would curtail consumption."

A representative of M. Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co., said it was not too late for the public to make its voice heard in Washington in opposition to the luxury clause. He said he believed that if consumers in large numbers would sign the petitions promptly, there was little doubt the proposed tax would be defeated. A statement issued last night by the Altman firm said:

"We are not opposed to a tax. We would gladly pay a reasonable tax on total net business in an amount double, if necessary, the estimated return under the proposed legislation. We take this position so that there may be no misconception as to our integrity of purpose, when we say it is the tax in its present form only to which we are opposed. The expense to the merchants of keeping the records necessary to the making of an accurate return would be greater than the return itself, and the expense to the Government in checking up the returns that the merchant may make would, without doubt, exceed in amount the tax collected. Furthermore, this bill discourages the consumption of higher priced merchandise. The result will be a curtailment of higher cost labor, and will disrupt employment at a time when we are all striving to solve the critical problem of unemployment during our transition from a war to peace basis. Many inconsistencies appear in the act as framed."

A large company of prominent merchants, known as the Retail Clothiers and Haberdashers of New York City, aroused by the items of the proposed luxury tax affecting their trades, met at Delmonico's yesterday afternoon. They got under way a movement that will result in a country-wide protest within the next two days. Under the provisions of the luxury tax that are now before the Conference Committee of the House and the Senate at Washington a 10 per cent. tax will be imposed on amounts in excess of the following for the articles named: Waistcoats, $5; men's and boys' hats, $5; shoes, $10; neckties, $2; silk hose, $1; shirts, $3; pajamas, nightgowns, and underwear, $5; house or smoking jackets and bath or lounging robes, $7.50; umbrellas, $4.

Under this law a man would have to pay a tax on a $3.50 shirt, but could pay $8 for woolen golf hose without paying a tax, because woolen articles are exempt. He would have to pay a tax on a $6 fancy waistcoat, but would not have to pay any on a suit or overcoat costing $100 at a Fifth Avenue tailor's, because tailoring is exempt. These and similar inequalities led to the calling of yesterday's meeting, which was attended by all of the representative men in the men's clothing and haberdashery trades. Maurice Brill of Brill Brothers presided. Telling of a trip to Washington with a delegation he said there is still a chance to defeat the tax.

Telegrams to Lawmakers.

Telegrams were sent to Congressman Kitchin and Senator Simmons protesting that the tax would seriously reduce the manufacturing and retail sales of good and dependable qualities of merchandise and thereby cause unemployment of labor at a time when the industries of the country need to be kept at their utmost capacity. The telegrams stated also that it would be impossible to collect this tax fairly because it would have to be figured and collected in almost every case by employes who, owing to their many duties, could not be relied upon to make accurate collections.

The meeting decided to start today to circulate petitions among all of the retailers of men's wearables in New York, protesting against the luxury tax, to be signed by their customers. A plan of co-operation with wholesalers in these trades and with the Retail Dry Goods Association was also worked out.

On the Executive Committee of the meeting were Mr. Williams of Browning, King & Co., Maurice Brill of Brill Brothers, Mr. Vaughn of Brooks Brothers, Henry Budd of Samuel Budd, Inc.; Howard C. Brokaw of Brokaw Brothers, A. De Pinna of De Pinna & Co., H. L. Gruneck, Mr. Fechheimer of Kaskell & Kaskell, Charles F. Jacobson, M. Lambert of M. Lambert & Co., P. A. O'Loughlin, Pinto Brothers, A. Sulka of A. Sulka & Co., Mr. Free of F. R. Tripler & Co., Wallach Brothers, A. C. Weaver, Louis Heilbroner of Weber & Heilbroner, William G. White, and Alan Gibson, business manager, and Frederick T. Frazer, editor, of the Haberdasher.

Lew Hahn, Executive Secretary of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, with a membership of 500 big stores throughout the country, said the association had vigorously opposed the enactment of the luxury taxes incorporated in the revenue bill because its members believed these luxury taxes were written into the bill at a time when the country was looking forward to a long war and when the Federal legislators faced not only the problem of raising a huge amount of revenue to carry on the war, but when they were also confronted with the necessity of discouraging the consumption of merchandise not deemed vitally important in order that men, machinery, and materials might be released for the production of war needs.

"Now, however, that the war has come to an end," Mr. Hahn said, "there is no longer any possible reason for wishing to curtail production of merchandise for which there is a public demand. Instead, we believe there is a definite obligation upon industry, the public, and the Government alike, to speed up and encourage production in order that with the release of millions of men from the United States service we may not develop any serious employment problem.

Burden of Administration.

"We object to the enactment of the luxury taxes because, if successful in operation, they will automatically decrease the demand for better quality of merchandise and because their administration will place a large burden of unnecessary work upon every retailer who sells any merchandise falling within the purview of the tax. In order to collect these taxes from the public the retailer not only would have to explain over and over again to the public the purpose and scope of the tax, but he would also have to maintain in his accounting system separate and new processes for showing every item sold upon which a tax was collected. It is safe to say there is not a single store in the entire country the accounting system of which, as it now stands, would be adequate to the task of making returns on such a tax satisfactory to the Government.

"Consumption taxes are never desirable. They operate against the spirit of democracy. They establish false distinctions because after all it is not the wealthy classes alone which purchase articles that would be subject to such taxes, and except in times of war and unusual strain consumers ought not to be pestered by mean, nagging, little taxes which confront them at every turn.

"The luxury taxes as they appear in the bill show many inconsistencies. A working girl who chose to purchase a pair of silk stockings at a price higher than $2 per pair would have to pay the tax. On the other hand, a society woman might purchase a gown costing $1,000 or anything she might choose to spend without being required to pay any tax. These taxes would set up a false standard by appearing to separate the merchandise requirements of the so-called idle rich from those of the honest workers and so would serve to foster the spirit of dissatisfied jealousy which is at the root of the Bolshevist influence which threatens the world.

"We believe that the amount of revenue to be yielded by these objectionable luxury taxes would prove comparatively small and entirely out of keeping with the dissatisfaction and inconvenience which must follow if they are enacted into force.

"At a time when we are faced by the problem of rapidly assimilating great numbers of men who have been serving the country, and for whom we are now all obligated to find work, it appears to the members of our association as the height of stupidity to enact tax legislation which can only have the effect of restricting production of certain classes of merchandise.

"In their essence, the luxury taxes are taxes put upon the public. Merchants would have no recourse except to assess and collect them from the public. The public must pay the bill, and the public must be awakened to a realization that a fight against these taxes is essentially the public's fight. If the weight of protest against these objectionable imposts can be made heavy enough there can be no doubt of their final elimination from the Revenue bill."

The National Retail Dry Goods Association has had a strong committee in Washington this week, representing every section of the country, to protest against the objectionable tax, while W. de S. Trenholm, Secretary of the Retail Dry Goods Association of this city, and a delegation of merchants from here visited the capital and registered their opposition to the luxury tax.

Brooklyn department stores and dry goods merchants generally in that borough will co-operate with the Manhattan dealers in pushing the campaign for the public's signatures against the inclusion of the luxury tax in the Revenue bill. Other organizations from New York sending committees of protest to Washington were the National Garment Retailers' Association, Millinery Chamber of Commerce, and the Men's Furnishers.

WILL PUSH RAILROAD BILL.

Cummins Announces Plans as to Measure Stipulating Return Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — Senator Cummins of Iowa announced to the members of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today that he would urge consideration by the committee, before the end of two weeks, of the bill he had introduced prohibiting the President from turning back the railroads to private ownership inside of twenty-one months after the peace treaty. The committee, which has been conducting hearings on possible legislation affecting the future of the roads, appeared to believe today that it could complete the hearings before two weeks, in which event the Cummins bill would almost certainly be taken up immediately.

Edgar J. Rich, representing New England shippers, appeared before the committee today and submitted a plan whereby the Government would aid weak railroads and leave the stronger ones to work out their own salvation. Under Mr. Rich's scheme the Government would guarantee securities issued by the weak roads for the purpose of making extensions and betterments in their properties. In return, the Government would participate in all earnings above 9 per cent., and would have on the board of every such railroad two Directors, whose vote would be final with respect to improvements for which Government guarantee of the necessary bond issues would be required.

WILL SPEND $500,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—About $300,000,000 will be spent by railroads this year for extensions and improvements and $200,000,000 for new cars and locomotives, according to the preliminary plans of the Railroad Administration announced today by Director General Hines. Much greater capital expenditures will be authorized, but indications now are that the entire program cannot be carried out before the end of the year, and no improvements or purchases of equipment will be ordered by the Railroad Administration without approval of the individual railroad company.

Director General Hines believes the aggregate expenditures for extensions and improvements may run above the $300,000,000 advance estimate, and the orders for new cars and locomotives may fall below the $200,000,000 figure. These outlays are in addition to $286,000,000 of equipment ordered last year to be delivered and paid for this year. Improvements authorized but not accomplished last year must be reconsidered now in the light of peace conditions and will be authorized again if they are deemed still desirable. In 1918 $265,931,000 was spent for additions and betterments and $289,388,000 for equipment.

OHIO TESTS 3-CENT FARE.

Moves to Oust Hocking Valley for Charging Government Rate.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 29.—A suit to oust the Hocking Valley Railway Company from operating in Ohio for violation of the State law fixing passenger rates at 2 cents a mile was instituted in the Franklin County courts here today by Prosecuting Attorney Hugo N. Schlessinger.

The State asks that trustees be appointed for approximately a half million of dollars which the railroad has collected exclusively under the 3-cent rate specified by the Federal Government since it took control of the transportation systems. It also asks that this fund be distributed according to the best judgment of the court.

The Hocking Valley Railroad was selected as the basis of the suit to test the right of the Federal Government to specify rates, for the reason that the road is entirely within the State of Ohio, its northern terminus being Toledo and its southern three coal towns in Southern Ohio. It was said this action draws a sharp line on the question of State rights, and, while the right of the Government to specify interstate passenger rates is naturally drawn into question by the suit, the real question before the court is the right of the Federal Government to fix rates for intrastate passenger traffic.

IRVING NATIONAL BANK

WOOLWORTH BUILDING, NEW YORK

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS,
IRVING NATIONAL BANK

American banking institutions have played an important part in the nation's great struggle. These institutions, in co-operation with trade organizations, in a short period of eighteen months distributed successfully among patriotic investors short term Certificates of Indebtedness in preparation of Liberty Loans in the amount of $14,589,801,000.00 and Liberty Loan Bonds in the amount of $16,974,330,000.00.

In this work the Irving's quota each time was either reached or exceeded, its total, distributed among 62,389 investors, aggregating $132,579,300.

The bank's deposits, $55,000,000.00 at the beginning of the world war in August, 1914, have increased to over $127,000,000.00. A substantial portion of this growth has been effected during the past two years.

The increase in the volume of business in the Foreign Department, and the extension of the foreign relations of this department, have been highly satisfactory. A new and beneficial departure in American banking is expressed in reciprocal working arrangements which have been entered into with Barclays Bank Limited, of London, and Cox & Co. (France), Limited, of Paris. Under this arrangement English and French departments are maintained in the Irving, and an American department in the London and French institutions.

For the second year in succession the Irving secured first prize for bank advertising in the Convention of the Financial Advertisers' Association of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

The profit-sharing plan put in operation two years ago was continued throughout the year. At present a committee of directors is studying its operations, with the intention of making such changes as will develop even closer co-ordination and efficiency throughout the organization.

After full provision for bad debts and depreciation of securities to present market values, the profits of the bank for the year Nineteen Eighteen amounted to $2,537,518.96

leaving a net profit of $1,283,688.04

From net profits there were paid to stockholders cash dividends of ... $ 540,000.00

The balance carried to undivided profit account is .... $ 698,688.04

Under the direction of the bank's examining committee, Messrs. Marwick, Mitchell, Peat & Co. have made an examination of the bank as of the close of business December 27, 1918, and their statement of that date bearing proper certificate is submitted herewith.

Respectfully,
LEWIS E. PIERSON, Chairman

HOST OF IMPORTS BARRED BY BRITAIN

MEASURE NOT PERMANENT

American War Trade Board Says It Is to Prevent Commercial and Economic Chaos.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—British import restrictions, covering many commodities, will go into effect after March 1, according to announcement made by the American War Trade Board tonight, following notification from the Consul General at London. Thereafter exporters of specified commodities can ship to Great Britain only under a special import license.

The War Trade Board tonight made this comment on the action of the British Government:

"The reasons for such action on the part of Great Britain are not hard to understand, nor do they require anything in the nature of justification. For over four years Great Britain has been subject to the shock and strain of a war which not only required the sacrifice of life and intense human energy, but also necessitated the most stringent economic readjustment and the sacrifice of private business.

"It is not strange, therefore, that Great Britain should today wish to make every legitimate effort to keep her commercial and economic status from falling into chaos, and instead to restore it to a state of equilibrium. In fact, to do anything else would be strange.

"As a natural result of such a normal, patriotic aspiration, in order to bring her own manufactures to a state of stability approaching that of pre-war days, Great Britain finds it necessary to impose such import restrictions for the time being as will permit her the opportunity to re-establish domestic business conditions on a normal basis. The import restrictions being imposed by Great Britain are for such purposes, and are not to be regarded as of a permanent nature.

"In making for the return of normal domestic conditions in Great Britain, inducing the social welfare of the empire, such measures will tend toward economic and social stability throughout the associated Governments and this country. And such a tendency is today recognized as vitally necessary for the formation of a lasting and fundamentally sound peace.

"For the further information of exporters in the United States the War Trade Board announced today that the British import restrictions upon the admission of hides have been removed. The board stated that the British prohibition upon the importation into Great Britain of raw hides of all descriptions and weights had been removed. Dealings in raw hides are now freely authorized."

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 5,770 packages. Prices were pushed down 2 and 3 cents again, and the market is still in a weak unsettled condition. Buyers are showing very little interest and the quantity of stock is considerably in excess of requirements. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 47½@48c; extras, 92 score, 46½@47c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 44@46c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 41@43c; lower grades, 39@40c; unsalted, higher than extras, 49½@50c; extras, 48½@49c; firsts, 46@48c; seconds, 43@45c; State dairy tubs, finest, 45@46c; good to prime, 42@44c; common to fair, 38@41c; renovated, extras, 44½@45c; firsts, 43@44c; lower grades, 38@42c; imitation creamery, firsts, 42@43c; ladles, current make, firsts, 38@39c; seconds, 36½@37c; lower grades, 35@36c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 35c; No. 2, 34c; lower grades, 30@33c.

EGGS.—8,704 cases. Arrivals continue moderate, but the Western markets are far below a parity with the rates recently ruling here, stock is coming in freely at many primary points, and the market is declining in sympathy with these conditions. At the moment, however, the supply of really prime fresh goods seems to be no more than needed on actual trade requirements, and sales are at irregular prices, generally within the reduced ranges quoted. Nearby white eggs are still in light supply and there is a fair demand at sustained prices. We see no extra fancy Californias offering, but there are several cars of very good stock available, generally at 64@67c. Fresh-gathered, extras, a dozen, 61@62c; extra firsts, 59@60c; firsts, 57½@58½c; seconds and poorer, 53@57c; dirties, No. 1, 54@55c; No. 2 and poorer, 50@53c; checks, good to choice, dry, 47@48c; under grades, 43@46c; refrigerator, 38@50c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 70@71c; ordinary to prime, 64@69c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 64@69c; pullet whites, 64@65c; Pacific Coast, lower grades, 63@67c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 62@67c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 64@65c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 59@62c.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices at the close of an active market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange showed a fractional recovery in the active issues from the low levels, induced primarily by the reduction on the steel dividend. Final prices, however, recorded net losses from one to three points. The only active issues to show gains were Marine preferred and American Hide and Leather preferred. Trading, especially during the morning session, was very active, with speculative interest centred in the movement in Steel common.

SENATE ENLARGES VALIDATION PLAN

Consideration of Amendments Delays Passage of Bill to Settle War Contracts.

EARLY LEGISLATION URGED

Department of Labor Sees Need of Quick Passage of Bill to Meet Employment Situation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Prolonged discussion of amendments and of the Hitchcock substitute prevented the Senate today from reaching a final vote on the Military Committee's bill to validate and permit the settlement of informal war contracts aggregating $2,750,000,000. In moving a recess Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, in charge of the measure, announced that he would endeavor to keep the Senate in session tomorrow until the legislation had been enacted.

During the consideration of the bill today the Senate tentatively adopted an amendment by Senator Henderson of Nevada, authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to adjust claims growing out of the stimulation by the Government of the production of minerals needed in the prosecution of the war. Another amendment by Senator McKellar of Tennessee, requiring the War Department to furnish to Congress the names of the contractors whose claims were adjusted and the amounts involved, was adopted, 41 to 12.

The Senate rejected, 42 to 16, an amendment by Senator Smith of Arizona, which would have prohibited the importation of Egyptian long-staple cotton for six months after the bill became a law. Senator Smith said the purpose was to protect American growers of this grade of cotton who had increased their acreage during the war at the request of the Government.

Under the Hitchcock substitute, which it is planned to dispose of soon after the Senate meets tomorrow, claims growing out of the cancellation of war contracts would be adjusted by a commission composed of representatives of the War Department, the Department of Justice, and the business interests of the country. In urging its adoption today Senator Hitchcock said he thought the adjustments should be made by disinterested parties and declared that the committee bill would authorize the Secretary of War to validate contracts made even the day before the armistice was signed and upon which not a dollar had been spent.

Senator Chamberlain denied that the measure would permit such procedure and declared that if the Secretary of War or any of his subordinates did such a thing he should be impeached.

Early action on legislation to adjust war contract controversies was urged today by the Department of Labor, in a statement showing that the labor surplus in many industrial centres had increased rapidly in the last ten days.

Plants heretofore engaged in war work were said not to be changing back to peace activities rapidly enough to hold their proper proportion of labor. The cancelling of war contracts with no provision for an early financial adjustment of the manufacturers' investment in war machinery, materials, and partially completed products, was blamed for plunging some concerns into a state bordering on stagnation, with no certainty as to their working capital.

"The Department of Labor's investigation of ways and means to stimulate building and improvements and augment the absorption of labor in industry," the statement says, "disclosed these two important ways of getting results:

"1. Legislation enabling the building and loan associations of the country to use their real estate mortgages for collateral in a system of Federal home loan banks.

"2. Legislation to authorize immediate adjustment and payment by the Government of reasonable claims growing out of the summary rescinding of war contracts.

"The former would permit home builders to avail themselves of almost $2,000,000,000 in loans; the latter would provide immediate capital for manufacturing."

The statement added that a proposed law on the first recommendation soon would be introduced in Congress. Legislation on the latter now is pending.

NEW BOARD PLANS ITS WORK

Reconstruction Commission to Consider Problems Growing Out of War.

The plans of the committees of the Governor's Reconstruction Commission, of which A. I. Elkus is Chairman and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz Secretary, are taking shape, according to an announcement made yesterday at the new offices of the commission, Room 309, Hall of Records. The Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment will hold a conference next week with State Controller Travis and Senator Sage, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate. On Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock, in the Board of Education Building, Fifty-ninth Street and Park Avenue, the Committee on Education will begin an inquiry into the military training law. Dr. Felix Adler, the Chairman, has asked the members of the Military Training Commission and the staff to meet the committee in conference. The plan of the inquiry will then be outlined.

The question of the proposed vehicular tunnel connecting New York and New Jersey has been referred to the Committee on Readjustment, of which Alfred J. Johnson is Chairman. The committee will hold a public hearing on the subject next week. At the meeting of the entire commission to be held in Buffalo on Feb. 8 there will be a conference on housing. Representatives of the Federal departments engaged in housing operations during the war will be present.

ASSERTS MILK IS TOO HIGH.

Creamery Owner Says at Inquiry Producers Are Overpaid.

Testifying before Chief Magistrate McAdoo in the milk inquiry yesterday, Henry Anstein of 795 St. Nicholas Avenue, owner of six up-State creameries, with an invested capital of $250,000, said the producers are receiving a much higher price for milk than is warranted by the production, and that a fair price at this season would be $2.96 a hundred pounds, or about 6 1-3 cents a quart. At this price, he said, he could sell milk in New York City at 9 cents a quart and make a satisfactory profit.

Mr. Anstein advocated the appointment of a State Commission, representative of all parties concerned in the milk industry, which would set a price for milk from month to month, and favored pasteurization at the creameries, as it would cost less.

In reply to a question from Magistrate McAdoo, the witness said he believed high prices were maintained through the operations of the Dairymen's League. The hearing was adjourned until next Monday morning at 11 o'clock, when it will be resumed before Magistrate McAdoo.

Temperature will rise somewhat Thursday in the Middle Atlantic States, the Upper Ohio Valley, and the lower lake region. It will not change materially elsewhere east of the Mississippi during the next forty-eight hours.

Winds for Thursday and Friday along the North and Middle Atlantic Coasts will be fresh west; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate west.

BANKER SHOT DEAD AS HE CALLS FOR AID

SLAYER WOUNDS HIMSELF

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Jan. 29.—As the result of a quarrel over money matters, Smith W. Conklin, a pioneer of this village and one of its wealthiest citizens, was shot dead this afternoon by William W. Wright, for many years a private detective with an office at 152 Nassau Street, Manhattan. Wright, who is more than 50 years old, attempted to kill himself the instant his 60-year-old victim fell dead at his feet, but in the Patchogue Clinics, whither he was removed a prisoner, it was said tonight that he would recover.

The tragedy which startled this little town all happened within a very few seconds, so few, in fact, that Traffic Policeman George W. Denton, to whom Conklin called from his front window for help when his visitor became menacing, burst into the room just as the last of the three shots fired creased Wright's own forehead. Conklin, founder of the Citizens' Trust Company, the Union Savings Bank, and the Patchogue Bank, all of this town, and a member of the recently liquidated Manhattan Stock Exchange firm of Cox, Grisby, Conklin Company, was one of the best known residents of the village. He was reputed to be a millionaire. Wright, who lived here as a boy, had many friends in the village, and the two men had known each other many years. Wright's present home is at 22 Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn.

Two stories of the dealings that led up to the shooting were gathered, one from the Suffolk County authorities who investigated the case and the other from Mrs. Wright who, in her Brooklyn home, told of her husband's financial relations with the man he had killed. The stories agreed in purport, but differed somewhat in detail.

According to Coroner W. H. Moore of Bayshore and other county officials, Conklin held a mortgage for $2,000 on a piece of property in the western end of the village which was part of the estate of Wright's father, James S. Wright, who died about seven years ago, of whose estate Wright and his brother, George Wright, were the executors. Conklin, formerly a local justice of the peace, foreclosed the mortgage about a month ago and at forced sale the property failed to satisfy the lien. Conklin then proceeded to levy upon other local holdings of the estate, satisfying his claim, but practically wiping out the Wright brothers' interest in the estate.

The story told by Mrs. Wright was that she herself held a mortgage of $1,500 on the Patchogue property which, some six months ago, she decided to foreclose. She explained that her relations with her husband were entirely amicable and it was merely to protect her investment that she thought it might be wise to take this action. Wright persuaded her to visit Conklin at Patchogue, and as a result of this visit her claim was satisfied. Beyond that, Mrs. Wright, who was in a highly nervous condition, was hazy as to details of the transactions involving the property, but said that for six months Wright had been melancholy and brooding over the tangle in an estate which he valued at some $30,000. He felt, the wife said, that he had been treated unfairly by Conklin, but she herself did not know whether such was the case.

Mrs. Wright left her home early today to attend the funeral of a friend, and had no idea that her husband intended visiting Patchogue. She knew that he never carried a pistol, but that he kept one in the office, and she felt certain if he had taken a pistol with him he had stopped at the office for it.

Wright reached Patchogue about noon. He met Constable John Glover at Main Street and Ocean Avenue, were Conklin's office looked down upon the intersection of the two busiest streets from the second floor of the Conklin building. Wright talked rather bitterly to Glover about Conklin "not having treated him right," but gave no intimation that he meditated revenge.

Just when Wright entered the office of Conklin is unknown, but if he went in just after he talked with Glover, the two men must have been closeted for two hours. It was just 2 o'clock when Conklin ran to the window of his office, flung it open, and called to Policeman Denton:

Denton started on a run for the stairway, followed more slowly by a few curious persons who heard the call for help. Before Denton was half way up the stairs a shot sounded, followed quickly by a second, and more slowly by a third, which echoed just before the policeman bounded into the room.

Conklin lay in front of the window. One bullet had penetrated his back below the left shoulder blade and the other below the right shoulder blade, both ranging downward, as Dr. W. H. Roe discovered a few minutes later. Wright had killed Conklin before he could turn from the window. Wright himself had fallen under a table. He had twisted the barrel of his weapon just enough to change what would have been a fatal shot into the brain into a deep flesh wound that caused much loss of blood, but did no permanent injury.

The Wrights have no children. Conklin is survived by a wife and a daughter, the latter Mrs. Daisy Furman, wife of County Judge Furman of Suffolk County.

Late tonight Wright made a statement concerning the shooting. Questioned by District Attorney Green, he said:

"I was in the office twenty minutes. We were talking about the property I once owned. I was ordered out of the office, but I refused to go. Conklin said he would have me thrown out. He then went to the window, opened it and called for help. I saw red, then."

"What do you mean?" asked the District Attorney.

"Oh, you know what I mean," said Wright.

"I then tried to do away with myself, but I guess I have made a very poor job of it."

The inquest will probably take place at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PICK JURY TO TRY O'LEARY.

Taking of Testimony Expected to Begin This Afternoon.

The work of getting a jury to try Jeremiah A. O'Leary and his codefendant, Adolph Stern, the last named an alien enemy, was continued in the Federal District Court yesterday. They are on trial, together with the American Truth Society, the pro-German organization of which O'Leary was the head, of having entered into a conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the military laws of the country.

It is expected that the jury will be completed today, and that the taking of testimony will begin either this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Jay Willard Robinson, who was indicted recently for treason, was arraigned for pleading before Judge Learned Hand yesterday. He entered a tentative plea of not guilty. Judge Hand set his case for trial on March 4.

PRAISES CROMWELL TWINS.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Says Their Work in France Was Remarkable.

Information confirming the belief that the twins, the Misses Gladys and Dorothea Cromwell, who for more than a year had been engaged in relief work for the Red Cross in France, had jumped overboard from the steamer La Lorraine to their death, suffering a nervous reaction after hostilities ceased, was given yesterday in an interview with Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt at her home, 660 Fifth Avenue.

Mrs. Vanderbilt said that the two young women had suffered uncomplainingly the hardships and privations incident to their dangerous work until they broke down mentally and chose the end taken by many a soldier who, having "done his bit," resorted to suicide after the armistice was signed.

"It is a special grief and loss," she said, "to all the women of the Red Cross service who have served in France to learn of the pathetic ending to the fine work of Gladys and Dorothea Cromwell.

"A special tribute was paid to them by Mrs. Mott, head of the canteen, and her assistant, Miss Harriet Rogers, last September. They reported that even in the splendid group stationed at Chalons the services of the Misses Cromwell were super-excellent. 'They are angels,' said Miss Rogers, 'who not only do first-class work on day and night service, but also find time to visit the soldiers in French hospitals and to befriend the little French refugee children. Everybody loves them and admires their efficiency and courage in real danger.'

"My only doubt when I talked with them was whether they could adapt themselves to new and difficult conditions, but they did it with a spirit which won my entire confidence.

"If they suffered a nervous reaction after the great need for effort was over, the same thing occurred to some of the best men in the allied armies. Such souls, who besides giving their best in service are too sympathetic to endure the suffering of others, are entitled not only to our warmest sympathy but our truest admiration."

Mrs. Edward Shearson, Chairman of the Committee of Fatherless Children in France, who returned on the Lorraine, said that she had seen the sisters several times, and found them to be much depressed and nervous. She refused to discuss the matter in detail, but declared with much emphasis that mothers in this country who have daughters serving as war workers in France should have them return.

"If you have a girl between the ages of 18 and 25," she said, "doing relief work in France or Belgium, call her back at once now that the war is over." She said that if a daughter answered that she could not be released from her war duties, that it would be untrue, as every war work unit or relief organization would now release every young girl wanted at home.

Who Sells

Hart Schaffner & Marx Good All-Wool Clothes

in New York?

A stranger in New York had his coat stolen. He had always worn Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes, and wanted his new coat to bear their label.

So he asked the hotel clerk who sold Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes in New York. The clerk told him instantly. To make sure that the hotel clerk was right, he asked the porter, and got the same answer.

He began to wonder if everyone in New York knew who sold Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes, and as an experiment, he asked in turn, a policeman, a stranger, a salesman in a jewelry store, and a ticket seller in the Grand Central.

Each in turn gave the information without hesitation.

"That proves," he said to us in telling the story, "that it pays to handle the clothes of a world famous manufacturer; for people not only know the clothes but they also make it a point to know the name of the merchant who sells them."

MAYO LIKENS PEACE LEAGUE TO A SEWING CIRCLE

SAYS NOW IS TIME TO ACT

ASKS VOTE FOR 16 SHIPS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Admiral Henry T. Mayo, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic fleet, before the House Naval Affairs Committee today, urged immediate authorization of a naval building program which would give the United States the largest navy in the world.

That authorization, he said, should be made by Congress without awaiting the outcome of the Peace Conference. Asked whether he thought the navies of the big Powers would be employed as an international police force, he said he did not believe there would be such a force created by the Peace Conference, and that idea ought not to be a factor in the determination of this country's naval policy.

Apparently referring to the proposed League of Nations, he said:

"This idea is rapidly getting down to a sewing circle, with no means of enforcement, and with no international police force."

Admiral Mayo advocated a new type of capital ship, embodying features of both dreadnought and battle cruiser, and insisted that provision be made in the naval bill, about to be reported to the House, for a personnel sufficiently large to maintain American fighting ships at the same strength in peace as in war times.

Appearance Deemed Significant.

Great opposition exists in the Naval Affairs Committee to recommending the building of any ships until after the Peace Conference's declaration on armament. This opposition started when Secretary Daniels sent his recommendations to the committee, containing a proposed second three-year building program, and continued when, in appearing before the committee, he insisted that the President favored the building of a navy which would be commensurate with that of Great Britain. President Wilson was declared by Secretary Daniels to have taken that position after the armistice was signed and just before he sailed for France.

The appearance of Admiral Mayo today, twenty-four hours before the committee was scheduled to vote on the naval program, was taken by several members to mean that the President had not changed his opinion on a big navy. Admiral Mayo's recommendations exceeded in some particulars the scope of the original recommendations of the General Navy Board. He estimated that to maintain a navy which would measure up to England's would cost $1,000,000,000 annually.

Admiral Mayo urged that sixteen capital ships be constructed immediately, protected with 12-inch armor plate, and having the speediest engines and the heaviest guns obtainable, with largely increased deck protection. There should be a large fleet of aviation ships as auxiliaries, he said.

A large navy, he asserted, was necessary for the protection of the American merchant marine which is being planned for trade expansion. He said the world expected the United States to have a big navy and the people in this country had been led by the speech made by President Wilson in St. Louis and the recommendations made by Secretary Daniels, to believe that this policy would be carried out.

No Foreign Criticism Now.

"The present is the time, and the only time, for us to create the greatest navy, which I believe we need," testified Admiral Mayo. "Financial centres are about to shift from Europe to America, with all the resultant jealousies. If we postpone upbuilding of the navy and start it later, other nations may be inclined to ask then why we are expanding and whether our policy conflicts with theirs. But if we do it now it will not be questioned by other nations.

"We know what the President's policy is from what he has said in his speeches, and we know that Secretary Daniels favors a greater navy. Furthermore, we know what our policy is to be regarding an American merchant marine. Everything considered, my idea is that this is the exact time to go the limit in expanding the navy."

Discussing the desirability of having new types of ships embracing the results of naval lessons of the war, Admiral Mayo said:

"We shall have enough destroyers without those now building and authorized. The same is true of submarines. We must go back to capital ships. The experience of the fleet for several years shows the necessity of having scout cruisers.

"The very wisest thing Congress could do would be to authorize sixteen capital ships, with their type, character, armor, and speed to be determined upon after exhaustive review of all informa-

Paris Gives $100,000 Site To U. S. University Union

PARIS, Jan. 30, (Associated Press.)—A building site, valued at $100,000, the gift of the City of Paris, was formally accepted for the American University Union today by Henry B. Thompson, Princeton, Treasurer of the union.

The ceremony took place in the Inter-Allied Club. M. Chassaigne-Goyon, Vice President of the Paris Municipal Council, represented the City of Paris. James Hazen Hyde presided.

The American University Union contemplates the erection of a building, for which plans already have been drawn. The funds for the building will be secured in the United States. The structure will be used as a home for American students in Paris as well as to provide French students with information regarding American universities.

COLLISION TIES UP ELEVATED, 1 DEAD

20 OR 30 PERSONS HURT

A rear-end collision between two Third Avenue elevated trains, occuring in clear weather and on a straightaway track at 175th Street at 6:18 o'clock last evening killed one woman, injured twenty or thirty persons, and tied up all traffic on the road for three hours. Only quick and cool work on the part of trainmen and firemen from a nearby station who extinguished a fire in the sixth car of the forward train prevented a greater tragedy.

The forward train, a seven-car Bronx Park local, was made up of the old-style wooden cars, while the train which hit it, a seven-passenger Bronx Park express which had been switched to the local tracks at 149th Street, was made up of the more modern combination steel and wooden cars with side doors, removed by the Interborough from its underground lines and placed on the elevated. As a result practically all the damage was done to the forward train, its rear car locking with the vestibule of the front car of the train behind and battering its way one-fourth of the distance through the sixth car.

Motorman Albert Vogt of the rear train, who was held on a charge of homicide, insisted he was going but three miles an hour when he hit the other train. Experts who viewed the wreckage were inclined to think his estimate was accurate, and that had he been going much faster there would have resulted a disaster that would have rivaled the recent Malbone tunnel smash in Brooklyn.

The woman killed was Elizabeth Graff, 21, of 2,068 Crotona Avenue, a stenographer. She was identified in Fordham Morgue by her brother, Frederick. Apparently she had gone to the rear platform on the sixth car or to the forward one of the seventh preparatory to alighting at the Tremont Station, which would have been the next stop. When Vogt's train struck the other the platform of the rear train crumpled and the wreckage so interlocked with Vogt's platform that oxy-acetylene torches had to be used to cut the two apart. As the seventh car tore its way into the sixth that car was raised from its rear trucks, its roof and sides splintering in all directions. Miss Graff was found crushed on the forward platform of the seventh car. Dr. Barrow of Fordham Hospital found she had been killed instantly, and her body badly mutilated.

When news of Miss Graff's death reached her home her widowed mother, seriously ill with pneumonia, collapsed. Miss Graff was employed by the American Society for Heating and Ventilating, of 33 West Thirty-ninth Street. She was well known in Bronx society, and during the war was very active in Red Cross affairs and a keen worker in Liberty Bond and Saving Stamp sales.

Of the injured, Joseph Alemed, a guard on the forward train, got a broken leg, and Eileen Perdisakett of 636 Oak Tree Place suffered internal injuries. They were taken to Fordham. Others who were taken home after lesser hurts had been dressed were Blanche Rad of 2,489 Tiebout Avenue, Darian Harkin of 2,307 Washington Avenue, and Emma Stohe of 2,798 Marion Avenue, all in the Bronx. More than a score of others, cut by flying glass, bruised in the scramble to escape or hurt a little by jagged splinters, went to their homes or to private physicians without recording their names with the police.

Motorman John F. Britt had just taken the local train out of the 174th Street Station, its rear car being about 200 feet north of that point when the collision came. There are no block signals there, but though it was dark the night was perfectly clear. Following the crash, first smoke and then little darts of flame appeared in the splintered sixth car, and the intermittent crackling of the short circuits added to the confusion.

Sergeant Scanlan, standing at the 175th Street corner, shouted to a patrolman to send in an alarm and raced to the platform to find men and women climbing out of windows, wedged in fighting jams in the doorways and shoving one another along the narrow walk at the side of the rails thirty feet above the street. Scanlan, joined by guards and other policemen, did much to quell the

BRITISH LABOR TO CARRY FIGHT INTO PARLIAMENT

WORKERS IGNORE UNIONS

CABINET REFUSES TO ACT

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The Parliamentary Labor Party, it is announced tonight, intends to raise the entire question of industrial unrest at the first opportunity after Parliament meets. They hope to draw a declaration of policy from the Government and, in case they do not consider that satisfactory, will bring forward plans of their own. In that they will be aiming at one of the principal causes of the present troubles.

Preoccupied as the Government is with the Peace Conference, there has been a notable absence of leadership in home affairs, and this morning the Daily Chronicle, ardent supporter of Lloyd George as it is, took the ministers severely to task for "failing behind their opportunity and their duty."

While not exonerating employers or employed from all blame, the Chronicle considered that the Government's apparent inaction had much to do with the dangerous situation. The need of clear ministerial pronouncements is urged, particularly by those who are least inclined to take sensational views of the labor troubles and who consider them inevitable.

"What did you expect?" THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent was asked tonight. "We shall not realize for ten years all we went through in the war. Strikes were inevitable, and it is lucky it is not Summer time."

Several points about the situation seem to these people to signify that, however deplorable disputes are, the great bulk of British workingmen are keeping their heads. Thus, even in Glasgow by no means all of the workers have come out, and there are many instances of strikes coming to an end and men going back pending the results of conferences.

Infected with Bolshevism.

The trouble is that it is clearly recognized that there are certain young labor elements that do not want grievances redressed at all. They are out, not to improve the conditions of labor, but to make use of the more or less justifiable complaints of the older men to foment disturbances that will ultimately undermine the present order of society.

They are infected with syndicalist or Bolshevist ideals, and are almost as much opposed to sober old trade unionism as they are to capitalism. Working through shop stewards, they are flouting the recognized trade union officials, and deliberately calling unauthorized strikes against agreements only just concluded. This is causing a good deal of anxiety to the regular labor leaders. It is rendering useless the weapon of collective bargaining just after it has been finally recognized as a result of years of fighting.

J. H. Thomas, M. P., met such a situation by offering his resignation from the Railwaymen's Union, when certain Welsh locals had repudiated a bargain he had made. It is too much to hope that all union officials will have the strength or spirit to follow his example, but the old established labor leaders are beginning to realize that they are not threatened least by the prevailing unrest.

One strange element in the situation is the excuse put forward at Belfast and other places that shorter hours are necessary in order to absorb the thousands now being demobilized. As a matter of fact, the returns of unemployed men have not so far been at all alarming. All men have not yet found their jobs, but unemployment benefits paid by the Government have prevented any distress. More would have found work, undoubtedly, if the Cabinet had announced its decisions about its commercial policy and removed more restrictions from traders and manufacturers. This is one more reason why definite pronouncements on the entire industrial situation are anxiously looked for.

Cabinet Not to Intervene.

LONDON, Jan. 30 (Associated Press).—The Cabinet met today to discuss the labor troubles. It is understood that the ministers decided against intervening at present in the strikes on the ground

Brazil to Ask for Indemnity and Money in German Banks

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Brazil will support the United States and other leading powers in all matters brought before the Peace Conference, said Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, head of the Brazilian delegation to the Peace Conference, to The Associated Press.

Dr. Pessoa said his assurance applied particularly to the disposition of requisitioned German ships, of which Brazil holds forty-three, and also the indemnities for which Brazil will make a claim.

"Most of the questions which Brazil will submit to the conference," he added, "are absolutely insignificant as compared with the tremendous problems which the powers will have to solve. The most important Brazilian question is a request that Germany return $130,000,000 which we have deposited in German banks as a guarantee for loans."

PARIS APACHES IN OUR UNIFORMS

FRENCH POLICE ADMIT IT

Wave of Outlawry Greatly Exaggerated—Thirty-four Murders Dwindle to Two.

PARIS, Jan. 30, (Associated Press.)—That Apaches of all nationalities dressed in American uniforms were mainly responsible for the acts of violence which have caused broadcast publicity to be given to an alleged American crime wave in Paris was shown by an investigation conducted by The Associated Press today.

It was further ascertained that assaults and holdups are infinitesimal in number as compared with the published figures of the crime wave, existing nearly exclusively in the vivid imagination of sensational local newspapers.

An opportunity was presented to verify at Police Headquarters the figures respecting crimes during last December. Thirty-four murders charged to Americans were discredited and dwindled to two, and 244 holdups and assaults were reduced by 80 per cent.

There have been numerous fistic encounters, however, but they were mostly between Americans, old-fashioned rough-and-tumble brawls, in which arrests are rarely made in American cities, where, for the most part, the pugnacious individuals merely would be requested by the police to go home, or a humorous policeman would advise them: "If you want to fight, go to Europe."

Brig. Gen. William W. Harts of the United States Army in a statement given out today says:

"The reports concerning the large number of murders by American soldiers in Paris are untrue. They are greatly exaggerated. The number of military police in Paris has been increased merely because of the greater number of soldiers passing through the city, not because of unusual disorder. The statistics show that the American soldiers are maintaining their high standard of discipline in every detail, wherever they may be."

The Paris Chief of Police, M. Mouton, said he was greatly pleased at the cooperation of the American detectives who have recently arrived here. "We have established a liaison between the officers of the American Provost Marshal and Police Headquarters," he added. "The French and American police are working in harmony."

Chief Mouton refused to make a statement on the extent of crime, but said that outside of some thefts of automobiles, to the prejudice of the American Army, American soldiers did not deserve the hard reputation which had gone abroad through various reports.

A high official at Police Headquarters referring to the department's records previously mentioned and the street brawls, said:

"Not all of these may be charged to Americans, as there have been many cases in which the similarity of the uniforms of Australians and Americans has led to the Americans being blamed for fights and holdups in which the Australians were engaged or committed. There have been some arrests by the British military police of Australians for misdemeanors and crimes, which at first Americans were thought to be guilty. There are also many men who are engaged in labor at the various American departments, recruited from among workingmen of all nationalities and who were discharged after the armistice. They are wearing discarded American uniforms, and in several cases they have been found guilty of holdups.

"Also, our own Apaches, strong in the belief of immunity through the popularity of the American uniform, have obtained by hook or crook some of these uniforms and have gone about their work in earnest. Surely there are some real Americans guilty, but the percentage is not nearly as great as that published."

The Supreme Council of Allied and Associated Powers at its session Wednesday heard representatives of Poland and Czechoslovakia concerning the conflict between Polish and Czechoslovak forces in Silesia, which is situated between the two countries.

PLAN FOR GERMAN COLONIES ADOPTED; ALLIED ARMY TO BE SENT TO TURKEY; TO LIFT BLOCKADE EXCEPT TO GERMANY

ECONOMIC PLAN DISCUSSED

ENEMY STATES IN LEAGUE

PLANS FOR ORGANIZATION

Convention of All the States Eligible to Membership Will Be Held.

PARIS, Jan. 30, (Associated Press.)—The War Council at a meeting today considered economic and financial questions and the subject of raw materials. The sentiment was favorable to the relaxation of the blockade so far as it concerned southeastern Europe, including the Balkans and Austria-Hungary.

A universal conference of all States desiring to participate in a League of Nations will be the final act in the formation of the league, Leon Bourgeois, the French authority on the subject, stated today. This conference would be held after the Peace Conference had approved the scheme now being drafted by the representatives of the great allied associations.

The universal conference will pass on the admission of each State into the league and enemy states will be accepted on the same footing as others. The enemy States, however, M. Bourgeois said, must give proof that they no longer foster lust of conquest and that they will "repay fully for the devastation and ruin they have caused."

No distinctively American plan will be submitted to the committee appointed to work out the details of the constitution and functions of the League of Nations, it was learned today. The American representatives, it appears, believe that it will be easier to obtain the results desired by them and insure the energetic promotion of an acceptable plan if some other power than the United States stands sponsor for the scheme.

The American plan is to occupy a receptive position, favoring such portions of the different projects advanced as seems desirable, though it appears to be accepted that the basic plan will be that which was framed by Lord Robert Cecil; and is to be proposed by Premier Lloyd George.

An effort is making to hurry the consideration of the League of Nations plan of organization by the special committee of the conference, but it is not expected that the committee will be ready to report at the next plenary session of the peace-making body.

FOOD RELIEF PLAN BARS PROFITEERING

President's Proposal to the Allies Limited the Sources of Supply.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Correspondence between Colonel E. M. House and the Foreign Ministers of Great Britain, France, and Italy, showing the origin and development of the Commission for World Food Relief, with Herbert C. Hoover as Director General, was made public today by the State Department.

The original plan as suggested by President Wilson, providing among other things for the use of German passenger tonnage in taking American and British troops home and carrying food on the return trips, was accepted, subject to a few changes recommended by the French Government and approved by the other Governments. These included provision for a commission to direct the work through the Director General rather than put this responsibility on the Supreme War Council.

While readily agreeing to the proposal that America should take the management of the administration of the relief, the French Foreign Minister said that it was vital that the aid should be given as coming from all the Allies "and that the enemy should not consider that divergence of views exists in the realisation of a humane purpose as lofty as that which the associated Governments, actuated by the same spirit, are pursuing."

To prevent profiteering, the President's plan provided that the Director General should make his purchases directly from the Food Administrations of the associated Governments or from established allied agencies in neutral countries, and this was approved.

The correspondence shows that the activities of the organization contemplated aid for enemy populations as well as for those liberated from the enemy yoke and the neutrals contiguous to enemy countries. The enemy must pay for their supplies, but money will be loaned to other nations for the purchase of supplies, except in some cases where charity will be necessary.

Allies Will Occupy Disputed Polish-Czech Zone Until a Definite Frontier Is Established

PARIS, Jan. 30.—An official French statement regarding the questions at issue between the Poles and the Czechoslovaks, to explain which delegates of the respective countries appeared before the Supreme Council yesterday, says that the Polish delegate, M. Dmowski, declared that Poland wished to recover the territory which she possessed before the partitions of 1772 and 1793, including the province and town of Posen and the town of Thorn, and to have free access to the sea by way of Danzig, protected by a strip of territory which would render the means of communication secure.

Dr. Benes, the Czechoslovak delegate, explained the Czechoslovak point of view, and more especially the incidents which led to an armed encounter between the Czechoslovaks and Polish forces on the frontier of Silesia and Bohemia. He said that an agreement was concluded on Nov. 5, 1918, between the Poles and Czechoslovaks for the provisional establishment of a frontier line between the two countries. On Jan. 24 Czechoslovaks entered the Posen district, and these were followed by Polish contingents.

The Conference Committee notified the delegates that it would be necessary to put an end to such acts, and that for a period the zone in dispute should be occupied by the Allies. To this the delegates of both sides agreed.

The question of the definite possession of the industrial centre of Silesia was, however, not settled, nor were any other of the territorial problems submitted by Poland.

The Poles maintain that the district of Posen should be Polish, as Poles constitute 55 per cent. of the population. The Czechoslovaks reply that the region is indispensable for their industries owing to its coal mines. The Peace Conference will decide between the two parties, which, according to the statement, are equally animated by the desire to be conciliatory, and have declared that they are willing to recognize the justice of its judgment.

"From now on," the statement concludes, "frontier incidents between the Poles and Czechoslovaks are settled, and that is the most essential thing."

BRITISH PRESS CONDEMNS PLAN

SEE DANGER TO BRITAIN

Failure to Support Dominions Might Disrupt the Empire, Says The Morning Post.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The discussions of the Paris conference regarding the future of the former German colonies is being followed with intense interest here.

Some newspapers express feeling against the British delegation for what The Globe calls "giving away the empire." A great majority of Englishmen, the newspaper says, strongly support Australia's claim to the islands of the Pacific and South Africa's for possession of German East Africa.

The Globe goes on:

"These former German colonies under the scheme proposed, with its mandatories and the remainder of its visionary suggestions, will fall under the control of a League of Nations which does not exist and which no practical statesman believes in. President Wilson, however, is intent on trying his prentice hand, and proposes to do this at the expense of the British Empire and its allies, France, Italy, and Japan."

The Pall Mall Gazette says it is distinctly unfortunate that the reasons advanced for President Wilson's policy are not fully expounded so as "we can see how far they counterbalance its somewhat obvious drawbacks."

The Standard opposes the mandatory scheme for the Pacific islands and German Southwest Africa, saying that the islands are necessary to safeguard Australia and South Africa. It adds that Australia is as much interested in the Pacific islands as the United States was in the Hawaiian Islands when she annexed them.

The Westminster Gazette asserts that the Dominions need not be alarmed, as they will be the permanent mandatories in the territories in question.

The Morning Post remarks:

"If the British delegates weakly persist in this attitude (of not supporting the Dominions) they are not only surrendering the British interests intrusted to them, but they are sowing the seeds of such bitter discontent as might disunite and disrupt the British Empire."

"We are authorized to state that the account of the proceedings of the Peace Conference regarding the disposal of the German colonies and the territories of the Turkish Empire, which appeared in certain papers today, is mischievous and inaccurate and entirely misleading."

The reported acceptance by Great Britain of President Wilson's theory of internationalization as applied to enemy colonies, says the Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail, involves the admission that the treaties with Japan regarding the islands in the Pacific, and with the Arabs regarding Syria, and the understanding with France as to the future status of the Kamerun must be arbitrarily modified, if not torn up. The correspondent goes on:

"The Japanese delegates are angry and alarmed, and declare their unalterable determination to claim the islands, as promised. These islands are really the crux of the whole situation.

"The Australians believe President Wilson's firm stand in this matter is due to the fact that Japanese occupation of the islands would impair his prestige in the United States, and that he fears to meet a hostile Congress in March if he agrees to the absolute retention of the islands by Japan.

"Italian delegates frankly avow their claim to Fiume, and insist that the promise of part of the Dalmatian coast stipulated in the pact of London must be made good. They declare that President Wilson's attitude regarding Fiume directly contradicts his declaration of the rights of peoples, outlined in his fourteen points."

ANTI-BOLSHEVIKI TO REJECT PARLEY

AWAIT WORD OF THE NORTH

PARIS, Jan. 30.—As yet the Peace Conference has received no formal reply from the Russian Soviet Government regarding the invitation sent to all Russian governments to meet conference representatives at the Princes' Islands, but the Russian Committee in Paris will probably make a formal response in a few days on behalf of the various other Russian governments.

This committee is now considering the proposals, but the prospects seem to be that it will decline to sit in conference with any representatives of the Bolsheviki. The expected declination, however, will be couched in courteous language and will embody a lengthy explanation of the committee's reasons for declining.

Members of the Russian Committee state that all the Caucasus governments, as well as the Omsk Government, are now in complete unity and are giving the Paris Committee their unqualified support. President Tschaikovsky of the Government of North Russia, who sailed from Archangel Jan. 1, is expected to reach Paris within a few days to confer with the committee.

North Russian Government Tells Why Shenkursk Was Evacuated.

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 29, (Associated Press.)—The Northern Russian Government, in a proclamation to the population, warns the people against any unnecessary alarm over the recent events which resulted in the evacuation of Shenkursk by American and allied forces.

The proclamation says it was necessary to evacuate Shenkursk because of the small forces available for its defense and also because of the exposed allied position on this front. It declares that the Northern Russian Government is co-operating with the Allies to the extent of its ability.

DEATH FOR INEBRIETY.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 29.—A threat to punish inebriety among Bolshevist officials of high degree by death is contained in a Soviet decree printed in late issues of the Petrograd newspapers.

The decree points out that drunkenness among such officials is increasing and proposes curative measures. If these do not prove effective, however, the offense, it is threatened, will cause the infliction of the death penalty.

COUNCIL HAS LONG DEBATE

WILSON ASKED FOR DETAILS

Great Powers Assent to Plan Only on Condition That He Find Workable Basis.

BRING UP MONROE DOCTRINE

BY RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless and Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—The whole subject of the government of the German colonies was discussed fully at today's sessions of the Supreme Council in the presence of the British colonial premiers and the representatives of the French colonies.

As a result of the exchange of views provisional arrangements were perfected for temporary government of the German dependencies in the Pacific as well as of Turkey, where disorders are becoming so widespread that the Supreme War Council at Versailles was instructed to devise means for sending troops there.

After today's session the American delegates were still confident that a solution would be reached which would carry out the principle already accepted by the majority of the powers that there shall be no annexations and that the peoples of civilized territory taken from the enemy, whether in Europe, Asia, Africa, or elsewhere, shall select the nations which will serve as administrators over them, with the League of Nations to select the Governments which shall administer the affairs of the peoples not ready for self-determination.

The Monroe Doctrine is figuring in the discussion about colonies. The question is asked whether the United States may properly continue to administer the affairs of Haiti and San Domingo under its own resolutions, in view of the acceptance of the principle that the League of Nations shall determine how the unstable nationalities shall be governed.

The American delegates contend that this matter is not involved in the principle, but the subject may cause them worry in view of the assertion by some Republicans that the League of Nations plan involves the stability of the Monroe Doctrine.

Still a Contest Over Details.

President Wilson has won half the battle for his policy of internationalization of the former German colonies, but only half. The contest is still on over the demand that the President shall show how his plans can be worked out on a practical basis.

Interest in the conference is centering on this aspect of the matter, with the American commission and particularly the President being pressed closely by those who gave a reluctant assent to the internationalization principle.

To say in this instance that the President has won only half a battle means that the acceptances of the principle, which he has so strenuously advocated, have been given with strings attached. Even Great Britain's acceptance was not unconditional, friendly as the British commission has been to practically everything that the President has proposed.

Japan is the only one of the great powers which has not acknowledged that the internationalization of German colonies should apply, but it is felt that if the President succeeds in convincing Great Britain, France, and Italy that he is able to find a working formula to make this theory practicable, Japan also will agree.

In accepting the President's principle, Great Britain, France, and Italy did so on condition that he would produce a program that would insure a successful administration of German colonial possessions under the supervision of a League of Nations.

It should be explained in this connection that the history of Colonial Administration under joint international control has never been successful. We have the instances of the Congo, Samoa, Morocco and Albania.

These experienced European diplomatists and statesmen with whom Wilson is dealing have these facts fresh in mind, and while none of them

The President's proposal, however, differs from the schemes of direct international control of territory which have proved futile. His is a mandatory system, and while this is recognized in practically all the plans for the formation of a League of Nations there are two conceptions of it which furnish an opportunity for much discussion. Briefly these conceptions are, first, that the League of Nations shall be the trustee of each German colony with some government as its agent; second, that some government shall be the trustee working under a definite mandate from the league.

But these two plans of administrating German dependencies are unimportant beside the pressing question involved in the demand that Wilson prove to the conference that his proposal of internationalisation is practical in operation and not merely idealistic and theoretical.

Want Light on Several Points.

The points on which the plenipotentiaries of the powers want illumination before giving consent to anything other than the principle are:

How is the indebtedness of these colonies to be liquidated?

What is to be the plan of economic management with particular reference to customs?

What is to be the authority of the mandatory or administrator over immigration?

The Australian delegation, which is worked up over the assent of Lloyd George to Wilson's principle of internationalization, is demanding to know whether this policy gives the right to exclude Japanese from territory near the Australian continent, such as New Guinea. One argument advanced by Hughes, the Australian Premier, in favor of adherence to the secret understanding between Great Britain and Japan, under which Japan would get the ownership of the German South Sea possessions north of the Equator, and Australia and New Zealand all such territory south of the Equator, was that this would enable Australia to keep Japanese coolies out of the islands near the Australian coast.

A number of members of the Peace Conference, including some Americans, acknowledge the force of this argument, but it is held by those who support the President's stand that the recognition of a secret agreement is a direct violation of the ideals for which the war was fought, embodied in Wilson's fourteen points, which were accepted by the European nations for their guidance in formulating peace.

The acceptance by Great Britain, France, and Italy of the principle of internationalization amounts to abrogation of the secret understanding between Great Britain and Japan, and it is not likely that there will be a parceling out of the German South Seas territory under that compact or a gentlemen's agreement or whatever it was that had been brought forward to plague the peacemakers.

This, however, does not dispose of the more pressing matter of requiring President Wilson to make good his claim that internationalization is the solution of the problem concerning the conquered German dependencies and the whole present effort of the negotiations is directed to obtaining an answer.

To Apply Principles to Adriatic.

In accepting the principle of internationalization Italy agreed somewhat reluctantly that it should be applied to her aspirations for the possession of Fiume and part of the Dalmatian Coast. But Italy expects it to be mandatory of the League of Nations to administer this territory with the understanding that as soon as possible an opportunity will be given for the inhabitants of this region to exercise the right of self-determination.

There is strong opposition in the conference to giving Italy possession of Fiume even under provisional administration. The inclination of an influential part of the conferees, including, it is believed, the representatives of the United States, is to let the Jugoslavs have outright possession of Fiume with the restriction that it shall be a free port.

The President's proposal to internationalize the German colonies, under the authority of the League of Nations, gave occasion for heated debate in the sessions of the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference. At one meeting, attended by the British Colonial Premier Hughes of Australia, he made an impassioned address, which brought him into a spirited argument with the President.

Such happenings are merely incidental to the difficulties, which are a natural part of the effort to harmonize conflicting interests, and there is rather a general feeling of encouragement that everything will work out right in the end.

As far as the American delegation is concerned, its members show a cheerful spirit and believe that the President accomplished a great forward movement when he obtained the assent of the majority of the great powers to the principle that the conquered German dependencies should be placed under the control of the League of Nations, instead of being transferred to the ownership of allied governments.

PARIS, Jan. 30. (Associated Press.)—The Supreme Council, it is officially announced, reached today "satisfactory provisional arrangements" for dealing with the German colonies and the occupied territory of Turkey in Asia.

The arrangements to which the official communication refers is the acceptance in principle of President Wilson's plan of mandatory administering of the colonies.

The reference to the occupied territory of Turkey in Asia indicates that Mesopotamia, Palestine, Armenia, and Syria are brought within the scope of this new policy of dealing with the colonies.

The Council also decided that military representatives of the allied powers at Versailles should meet and report on the most equitable distribution of the burden of supplying military forces for the purpose of maintaining order in the Turkish Empire, pending action by the conference regarding the government of Turkish territory.

The Supreme Council's action on the colonial question brings within range of practical accomplishment one of the most sweeping changes in colonial management that has ever taken place. The basic idea of this policy is that the colonies will be administered by mandate for the benefit of their own people and not exploited as profit-making enterprises by the powers claiming them.

While acceptance of the principle is, with the condition that the details may be worked out on a practical basis, yet exchanges among the powers lead to the belief that the details will be formulated for acceptance by all the colonies and powers, including Great Britain, France, Japan, Belgium, and Portugal.

The most formidable opposition has come from Premier Hughes of Australia, who has maintained that anything short of outright annexation of New Guinea to Australia might endanger the friendly feelings toward the mother country. This, however, is in process of being reconciled by concessions on details. In any event, the opposition is thought to have lost its effectiveness, since the British home Government and South Africa are favorable to the new colonial policy.

President Wilson has taken a leading part in the animated discussions, and acceptance of the new principle is credited largely to his determined attitude. There is no desire in American quarters, however, to herald a victory, but on the contrary an earnest desire is shown that the mandatory powers shall not be hampered in the least by the administration of the colonies.

Acceptance of the new principle is construed as applying not only to the colonies, but also as the establishment of a precedent of the fair dealing which will prevail when the large territorial questions come up for decision later.

The following precise information concerning the mandatory plan is made available: Three broad proposals for the disposition of the German colonies were advanced. The first proposed annexation, much as the Pacific Northwest was annexed as American territory. The second proposed international administration, similar to the first international control of the Congo, which proved a failure, as did similar systems in Albania and Morocco. The third proposal was the mandatory system, which was included in the American plan for a League of Nations.

Two Ideas of Mandatory Plan.

There are two conceptions of this mandatory system now under examination. One plan makes the League of Nations Trustee of the Colonies, working through particular States as its agent, but reserving detailed powers of oversight. The second is that the Trustee shall be one of the members of the League of Nations and working for just administration.

Certain military principles obtain concerning the mandatory system. The State, chosen as a mandate, should be chosen as the choice of the people to be governed. Another principle is the open door and equal opportunity. All nations are forbidden to have a greater military force than is required for police work, and all have the right of appeal to the league against any injustice.

Opinion inclines also to give the mandate in perpetuity in order to stimulate development, but with the reservation that the mandate is revocable for misgovernment or through the people reaching the stage of self-government.

Official Announcement of Decision.

The President of the United States, the Prime Ministers and Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the allied and associated powers, as well as the Japanese representatives, today held two meetings at the Quai D'Orsay, the first from 11 A. M. until 1 P. M., and the second from 3:30 to 6 P. M.

The exchange of views continued on the German colonies in the Pacific and in Africa, in the presence of the representatives of the dominions and of M. Simon, French Minister of the Colonies, and of the Marquis Salvago Raggi, [Italy.]

In the afternoon satisfactory provisional arrangements were reached for dealing with the German colonies and the occupied territory in Turkey in Asia.

At the afternoon meeting the Belgian delegates were present. M. Hymans, Van den Heuvel, and Vandervelde were accompanied by M. Ortz, who explained the Belgian point of view concerning the Congo.

It was further decided that the military representatives of the allied and associated powers at Versailles should be asked to meet at once and present a report as to the most equitable and economical distribution among those powers of the burden of supplying the military forces for the purpose of maintaining order in the Turkish empire pending the decisions of the Peace Conference regarding the government of Turkish territory.

The next session will be held tomorrow at 3 P. M.

Tardieu Tells of Good Feeling.

Captain André Tardieu, of the French delegation to the Peace Conference, told the correspondents in conference at the foreign office that the British and French Governments had accepted in principle President Wilson's plan concerning mandateries from the League of Nations for the administration of captured territory. The acceptance, he said, was subject to learning under what conditions the plan would be carried out.

This plan in its practical application, Captain Tardieu went on, was then under examination before the Supreme Council. The discussion on the subject of mandatories over the German colonies was proceeding among all the powers with a unanimity of sentiment and a desire to reach a unanimous agreement. This applied to Japan as well as to the other powers with colonial interests, he continued, as all were inspired by the same purpose, which was to reach an agreement in common.

Asked concerning French interests in the former German colonies, Captain Tardieu said that France desired the Kamerun and Togoland, which, owing to the character of their population and the proximity of the French colonies, France was in the best position to administer.

Direct annexation of the colonies would have been preferred by France, Captain Tardieu said, but the idea of mandatories was being carefully examined with a view to determining how it could be practically applied.

Responding to inquiries, Captain Tardieu said that the time required for defining the method of applying the system would not delay the formation of the League of Nations or postpone the signing of the peace with Germany.

Colonies Working on Special Line.

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 31.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail sends the following regarding the negotiations on the former German colonies:

"It is understood that the Premiers of Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa have agreed upon a scheme respecting what powers should be delegated under the mandatory system, and urging this scheme strongly upon the conference. It would provide practically for freedom of administration on the present dominion plan.

"Mr. Balfour has also prepared a strong memorandum on the Wilson system, pointing out the various difficulties in its application, and possible ways of overcoming them."

FRENCH BASE DISTRUST ON ALGECIRAS COMPACT

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—In the consideration of the problem created by the arrangement under which Great Britain secured the continuance of Japanese assistance in the prosecution of the war and by the terms of which Britain promised support of the claim that the German possessions in the North Pacific should remain under the control of Japan it is pointed out that Japanese statesmen have spoken with different voices in interpreting this treaty.

Referring to Kiao-Chau, Viscount Uchida appeared to agree to the restitution of the Shantung Peninsula to China, while Viscount Okuma held that under the terms of the German surrender of Kiao-Chau Japan fell heir to the concessions which Germany had acquired from the Chinese in regard to the port of Kiao-Chau and the Peninsular Railway. Between these two points of view there is a possibility of compromise.

The French attitude toward the whole question of internationalization and trusteeship is one of doubt and suspicion born of previous unhappy experiences along this line of colonial administration.

Clemenceau's Algeciras Threat.

The chief instance arose out of the Algeciras Conference, in which the United States participated, Henry White being the American representative. The French administration of Morocco was hampered by what were called in diplomatic language "the servitudes" imposed upon it by the Algeciras Conference and of which Germany took full and undue advantage. Instead of making for peace, the conditions imposed upon France were seized upon by Germany as pretexts for rattling the sabre, and on more than one occasion the two countries were brought to the verge of war.

On one of these occasions Clemenceau was in power. He suggested that the German demands be submitted to The Hague Conference. Germany was reluctant.

"Well," said the Tiger, in effect, to the German Ambassador, "what do you want? La guerre ou La Haie? (War or The Hague?) You can decide within twenty-four hours."

Germany's plans for war were not then complete, and she climbed down.

The French claim to administer Togoland and the Kameroons is based on her de facto administration of these former German colonies under the understanding she came to with Great Britain in 1916.

Elastic Plan Advocated.

One of the chief objections raised to President Wilson's proposals, as they were originally made, came from disinclination to hazard the success of a plan with the principle of which there was almost entire sympathy, on the wholesale arbitrary application of the program without due consideration of particular cases. As an innovation and the introduction of the new guiding principle into the policies of the world, it met with hearty approval from the British and at least sympathetic consideration from the French, with special reserves dictated by their past experiences.

It was felt, however, that to apply it on the vast scale required by President Wilson's proposals would be risky, and that the best guarantee of its full development in the future would be to apply it tentatively at first, with such modifications as were necessary to meet the needs of diverse cases.

One of the special points raised by Premier Hughes of Australia was this: If agents of another State come and work up a native rebellion in some territory being administered by the League of Nations, is the country most nearly affected to wait for the decision of some far distant Council before suppressing the uprising? Under the modified plan of trusteeship, such as appears to be on the cards, the administrating executive would be able to take instant action, which it would eventually have to justify before the League of Nations.

CONFEREES FEEL THE NEED OF HASTE

AFFECTS COLONIES TANGLE

But Agreement on Wilson's Plan Raises Problem of Our Taking Control in Turkey.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The perplexing problems before the Peace Conference, involved in the territorial aspirations of the various nations and self-governing dependencies, assumed a less troublesome phase today. This change in the situation was due in part to the realization by most of those concerned that if the controversy over territorial distribution should continue, the Peace Conference would be likely to get into a hopeless tangle which would work to the detriment of the world.

The element of time enters largely into the considerations which are influencing the conferees in their growing inclination to compromise on divergent views. Each day that the proclamation of peace is postponed the uneasiness and dissatisfaction of the peoples of many countries are certain to increase. They want the war officially brought to an end, the armies demobilized, and normal ways of life resumed.

This may not be well understood in America, but it is a pressing question in Europe, as the European statesmen realize.

Another incentive for arranging the fundamentals for peace without delay is found in the desire of President Wilson to be able to return to America with some record of accomplishment to his credit. It is not expected that the conference will have finished its work before he departs from France, about a fortnight hence, but at least he may be able to see the conference agree formally to some of the major principles he has laid down.

The League of Nations is the child nearest his heart, and all accounts of the progress being made at the Quai d'Orsay indicate that he will sail for home in the knowledge that the foundation stones of the league have been laid and that the superstructure is in course of erection.

Clemenceau Expedites Work.

And there is Premier Clemenceau. This grim old statesman is putting life and vigor into the proceedings of the conference that are having the effect of expediting the traditional slow-going ways of diplomacy.

Clemenceau is anxious to have the peace treaty concluded as soon as possible, and he certainly is not paying attention to precedents and over-sensitive feelings in pressing toward that end. The American delegation feels under a debt of gratitude to him for his efforts in that direction.

All this means that in the realization that the questions involved in claims to territory will take an interminable time to settle unless a compromise is effected, the conferees veered today toward the adoption of the suggestion that there should be no territorial distribution now, but that all territories in dispute should be placed under the common guardianship of the allied Governments and their administration carried on under trustees designated by the Allies. This would be a recognition, in whole or in part, of President Wilson's proposal that the former German Colonial possessions now under allied military control should be "internationalized."

The President may not succeed in having his plan carried out in its entirety, but it looks as if he would have the satisfaction of seeing the Conference confirm the principle that conquered lands shall not be parceled among the victorious powers, as was done at the Congress of Vienna, whose methods he has so frequently condemned.

But in pressing his point that the German colonies should be internationalized, the President has placed himself in a position where he is less able to combat the effort to induce him to consent that the United States shall act as administrator for Constantinople, with the Dardanelles and Bosphorus included, as well as administrator of Syria and Palestine.

Would Limit Japan's Ambition.

Should the arrangement for general allied or League of Nations control over the German colonies and other undisturbed territory be finally adopted, the United States, Australia, and New Zealand would be relieved of the embarrassment of having Japan obtain actual ownership of the Marshall and Caroline Islands, which are on the routes between the Philippines and the British antipodean colonies and America. It is likely, however, that Japan would be designated as the administrator of these two groups if the League of Nations should direct the appointment of mandatories.

In the same way, the South African Federation would become the administrator of all or part of the German African colonies, Australia would administer the affairs of the German portion of New Guinea, and New Zealand would become a next-door neighbor to the United States in taking control of German Samoa, which adjoins American Samoa.

There are still many troublesome territorial questions involved in the settlement, including the disposition of the Shantung Peninsula in China, which Japan took from Germany early in the great war; but with the principle established that there shall be no territorial distribution now, one of the principal dangers which threatened the success of the Peace Conference has been overcome.

FRENCH IMPATIENT OF DELAY ON PEACE

WANT PROGRAM NARROWED

Hostility of Paris Press Based on Distrust of So-Called Utopian Discussion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—There is an unmistakable and growing feeling in French circles that the business of the country, including such important questions as reconstruction and the settlement of labor difficulties, is being delayed, not to say suffering, on account of the Peace Conference. A Deputy who has always supported the Clemenceau administration, told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today:

"In a sense, it is highly desirable that the most important representatives of each nation should take part in the conference. Obviously they have full authority and are able to act as their judgment decides without fear of exceeding or disobeying their instructions.

"But, on the other hand, there is much to be said for the system that obtained in previous international conferences of appointed delegates who were not Presidents, Premiers, or even Ministers of State. Such plenipotentiaries had more or less definite mandates, with the result that discussion on abstract points was reduced to a minimum, and no matter how long their deliberations lasted there was little or no interference with the normal legislative and executive processes of the Governments concerned.

Asserts Shaving of Home Problems.

"In the present juncture, conditions are quite different. To take the case of France alone, it seems that the energies of the Government are being absorbed by the Peace Conference, with the result that vital internal problems are shelved or even suppressed. The same thing applies to the other nations."

This point of view is widely shared here, and has particular interest as affording an explanation of what hitherto had seemed a mystery—namely, why the most important section of the French press should take a critical, indeed, almost a hostile, attitude toward the conference deliberations. The French evidently feel that the national affairs are being neglected while the conference is engaged in talk.

There is an idea that international discussions, which are alleged to be more or less platonic, are hindering practical and vital French policies. As fundamentally a realist and practical people, trained in the school of old diplomacy, the French chafe at the delay occasioned by what most of them regard as utopian idealism.

This explains the continuous and general opposition, for it is nothing less, to the Wilson theories in the French newspapers. For instance, the Journal today says in a leading editorial:

"The régime applied to Morocco by the Algeciras conference is an exact prototype of that which Mr. Wilson would like to apply to the colonial domain of the League of Nations. Is it necessary to remind our readers to what that fine system led? To war, in one word. The principle of internationalization engenders nothing but discord and futility."

Such comments—and there have been others equally bitter—are due less to genuine dissatisfaction with President Wilson's ideas with which, after all, there is considerable and sincere sympathy in France, than to irritation caused by the notion that the conference is wasting time to the detriment of French affairs.

What the French public wants may be expressed in two phrases: a settlement of the conditions to be imposed on Germany, and amelioration of internal conditions, especially the high cost of living, which cause nine-tenths of the industrial trouble. France feels that once those two points are disposed of, and not before, it will be time to regulate the exact status of the trusteeships or sovereignties over the former German colonies, or to discuss the intricacies of the League of Nations procedure and organization.

FRANCE'S VIEW ON AFRICA.

Feels She Has Claims There That Should Be Recognized.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The general idea of the French Government in placing its African claims yesterday before the Council of Ten was as follows:

The German colonies have been conquered by the Allies, acting in perfect understanding, and they are being administered (particularly Togoland and the Kameruns) under an understanding with the British Government made in 1916.

France's claim is based upon this de facto administration. Great Britain has rights in and on the borders of these possessions which will be regarded.

The case of Morocco is different. Here France is handicapped by the conditions imposed by the Congress of Algeciras. Instead of these conditions making for peace, the brutality with which Germany represented and attempted to enforce them more than once brought the two powers to the brink of war.

This unhappy instance of international control is accountable for much of the French suspicion of the American and British principle of trusteeship.

At the same time it is recognized that conditions are greatly changed, and in any case France is as anxious as any power to establish in any territories of which she assumes control safeguards of the rights and well-being of the natives and large facilities to all nations for trade.

HUGHES REFUSED TO ANSWER.

Would Not Tell Whether He Was Satisfied with Colonies Plan.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Premier Hughes of Australia and Premier Massey of New Zealand showed the greatest reluctance today in discussing with interviewers the attitude of the Peace Conference toward the German colonies. Mr. Hughes was asked:

"Are Premiers Botha, Massey, and yourself satisfied with the situation?"

TO TAKE UP LABOR QUESTIONS.

British Delegation to Paris Has Already Drafted Labor Bureau Plan.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The Commission on International Labor Regulations established by the Peace Conference will begin regular meetings next week.

The British labor delegates, who completed today a plan for an international labor bureau to be laid before the Peace Conference and forwarded it to London for consideration by employers, are pleased at the speed with which they were able to complete the draft. The consultation between the laborites lasted only two and a half days, at the end of which they had reached complete agreement.

NO INDEMNITY FOR WAR COST?

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The Peace Conference has settled an important point with regard to the indemnity question, the Paris correspondent of The Evening Standard says he has reasons for reporting. The conference, he asserts, has eliminated all intention of calling on Germany and her associates to pay the allied countries the cost of the war, or imposing heavy indemnities on the enemy nations.

"But the minds of the conference," the correspondent adds, "are fixed that there shall be full and ample reparation for unjustifiable damage done. Very sharp distinction is being drawn between damage which resulted from legitimate warfare and damage which was wanton."

The correspondent says that Serbia and Belgium have formulated claims for reparation in detail. Serbia's bill is the largest, but as Belgium suffered first she will receive first consideration.

The idea that Germany should return the indemnity she took from France in 1871 has been abandoned, the correspondent continues. British claims, he adds, are for damages done in air raids and through the sinking of merchant ships. In the case of ships, reparation to Great Britain will be in kind.

CHILDREN DIRECT WILSON.

PARIS, Jan. 23, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—President Wilson's grave responsibilities in Paris have so absorbed his attention that he has not yet been able to get his bearings so as to find his way about easily when he goes walking, as he still does, without giving notice. As was the case in Washington, the President is frequently on his way up one of the boulevards before the Secret Service men are aware that he has left his Paris White House. He always walks at a brisk pace, and generally gets a good start of his guards.

The President is almost always recognized by little French children, who are usually his reliance when he loses his way. They post themselves as sentinels along the route frequented by the President, salute him as he passes and sometimes trot along beside him, soliciting a little attention.

Mr. Wilson's French is good enough to enable him to explain where he wants to go and he rewards with a smile and a handshake the proud boy or girl who put him on the right road.

WILSON TO VISIT BELGIUM.

Likely to Make It the Last Event Before Sailing for Home.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—President Wilson's present plans indicate that he still hopes to visit Brussels before sailing for home and will make the trip at the last possible moment previous to his departure.

The President was prevented from going to Belgium this month because of the important matters coming up at the Peace Conference, but if present plans hold, he will be able to visit Brussels and probably some battlefields of Belgium before sailing from Brest. In this case he would leave Paris Feb. 8 or 9 and arrive at Brest between Feb. 12 and 15.

STAFF OF PEACE CONFERENCE.

Personnel of the Executive Force Is Completed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The State Department today made public the personnel of the Peace Conference organization as finally formed. Besides Georges Clemenceau, the French Premier, as President, and Secretary Lansing, Premiers Lloyd George of Great Britain, Orlando of Italy, and Saionji of Japan as Vice Presidents, the members are:

Secretary General—M. DUTASTA, France.

Sir MAURICE HANKEY, HERMAN NORMAN, and ERIC PHIPPS. For France—M. P. GAUTHIER, Minister Plenipotentiary, and M. DESCARN. For Italy—Conte A. DROVANDI, Marquis CHARLES DURAZZO, and M. G. BRAMBILLA. For Japan—SADAO SABURU.

BORAH HITS PARIS "SECRECY."

And Insists We Must Not Become Mandatory for Any Colonies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Opposition to the plans reported from Paris for the internationalisation of former German colonies was voiced in the Senate today by Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho. The speaker said that he was not in favor of the United States assuming any "obligation to control, govern, or be responsible for any part of the German possessions."

Senator Borah said that Australia, in demanding the German islands of the Pacific, had announced a Monroe Doctrine for Australia, and he added:

"If we, as a member of a league, interfere with the Monroe Doctrine of Australia, or the Monroe Doctrine of Japan, or of some other nation, how long would it be before they would interfere with our Monroe Doctrine?"

The Idaho Senator criticized the reported private conferences between Colonel House and General Smuts regarding disposition of the German colonies. He said that this was another exhibition of secret diplomacy and asserted that a League of Nations, based on secret proceedings, would be an "infamous institution."

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, defended the action of the American Commissioners in holding private conferences, asserting that these were necessary to formulate views for presentation to the Peace Conference. All the meetings of the Peace Commissioners, he said, could not be heralded "from the housetops."

CHINA-JAPAN SNARL BIG PEACE QUESTION

PEKING WANTS KIAO-CHAU

Insists Concessions Wrung from Her by Japanese Shall Also Be Nullified.

Copyright 1919 by the Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The question of Kiao-Chau and the Pacific isles constitutes the key to the situation in the conference of the five great powers over the disposition of the German colonies.

China insists upon the restoration of territory which Germany seized twenty-one years ago, while Japan, which wrested the German protectorate on the Chinese coast from Germany, demands the retention of railway property, a port, and concessions in the Province of Shantung.

The American position, which favors China's claims, is based on the principles of self-determination and no territorial acquisitions.

The conflict of claims between China and Japan is quite intense, although Japan, when starting to take Kiao-Chau, cabled to America: "Japan has no ulterior motive or desire to secure more territory, and no thought of depriving China or any other people of anything that they now possess." Its subsequent actions were not in conformity with these sentiments.

After the surrender of the German protectorate on the Chinese seacoast Japan sent demands to China. China notified Japan that military operations being over she intended to declare the war zone ended. Japan responded with a demand that China give assent to all matters upon which the Japanese Government might agree with the German Government relating to the disposition of Germany's rights and concessions in the Province of Shantung. China was warned against making these demands known to any other power. In addition, Japan's demands included the right to construct a railroad to Weisein and China was not to lease to any other country any territory on the coast of Shantung and must open some cities as commercial ports.

China made a bitter response. It asked the retrocession of Shantung and indemnification for the losses caused by Japan's military operations and demanded that China should participate in any negotiations with Germany over Shantung. Japan's reply was an ultimatum, giving China forty-eight hours to accede.

China finally gave in and signed the agreements, but issued a statement to the world saying that she had acted under constraint. These agreements provided that it should be left to Japan and Germany to dispose of Germany's rights in Shantung, that China should apply to Japan for a loan for the new railway in Shantung, and that China should alienate no territory on the coast to any foreign power.

It was agreed further that Kiao-Chau should be left to the disposal of Japan and that it would be restored by the Japanese to China on the condition that it be opened as a commercial port; that concessions under the exclusive jurisdiction of Japan should be established at a place to be designated by Japan; that an international concession should be established if powers chose, and that the disposal of the buildings and property of Germany was to be arranged between China and Japan before the restoration was made.

The Chinese now assert that this agreement was obtained under a threat of hostilities and does not constitute a valid right. China will resist any encroachment in Shantung, and the controversy is one of the critical ones now before the Peace Congress.

DISAVOWS OKUMA'S "POLICY."

Japan's Delegation Says He Does Not Speak for Cabinet.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—The Japanese peace delegation today issued a formal denial to the publications in Paris newspapers, based on an interview with Marquis Okuma, former Premier, which purported to give the Japanese peace policy.

The denial terms the publications as "glaring impositions," and says that the use of Marquis Okuma's name was unwarranted. It is declared that the assertion that the present Japanese Cabinet bases its policy on Marquis Okuma's statement is absurd.

SHARP REPLY TO JAPANESE.

Chinese Mission Here Answer Claims Set Up by Makino.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Chinese Mission from Canton, now in Washington, issued a statement tonight saying that the press dispatches from Paris, reporting the claim made by Baron Makino for Japanese retention of Tsingtao Harbor and the German railway concessions in the Chinese province of Shantung, omitted to mention vital points.

"The Japanese," said the statement, "base their claim on the Chino-Japanese treaties of 1915, which, the Chinese contend, are null and void, because, besides being the fruit of a Japanese ultimatum, threatening war against China, as a war settlement, demanding revision by the Peace Congress on precisely the same principle applied by America and the Allies to the treaties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest.

"The Chinese also contend that the Chinese declaration of war against Germany involved the cancellation of the treaty relating to Tsing-tao and all railway and mining concessions to the Germans in Shantung and revested them in China.

"The Chinese contention further insists that the present claim of the Japanese to be the beneficiaries of German ruthlessness in Shantung is a vital feature of the Japanese policy which has already found expression in the annexation of Korea, in the gradual Japanization of South Manchuria and Eastern Inner Mongolia, in the Japanese control of the richest iron areas in the Yangtze Valley, in the establishment of Japanese police centres in the Province of Fukien, and in the growing grip of Japan on the political, military, and economic life of China."

LOANS FOR TRANS-SIBERIAN

Will Be Advanced to Stevens Commission by Allies Jointly.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—With respect to the agreement reached between the United States and the great powers for joint interallied supervision of the Siberian railways, the administration and management of which will be left in the hands of John F. Stevens and a commission in the form of a Russian Institution, the Russian ownership of the roads will be in nowise infringed. The United States, Japan, and other powers will confine themselves to extending support to the commission and assisting in the policing and defending of the line.

The railways for the present cannot be run at a profit owing to the commercial and industrial demoralization of the country, and it will probably be necessary for the powers to advance necessary funds to the Stevens Commission to continue them as going concerns. But this, if done, will be open to all five powers jointly, in order to avoid the possibility of the establishment of any one power in a position of special advantage.

The American officials concerned in the negotiations are enthusiastic over the significance of the agreement. They consider it an initial measure of tangible accomplishment among the Allies for the benefit of Russia and Russians, which cannot be considered as unfriendly by any Russian faction, and is devoid of all suspicion of special interest. They believe that it may serve to introduce further inter-allied measures toward the economic relief and the industrial and commercial restoration of Russia.

WILHELMSHAVEN REBELS BEATEN IN FIGHTING

Spartacides Surrender There and at Cuxhaven and Bremerhaven—Move to Combat Strikes.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 30.—The Spartacides at Cuxhaven and Bremerhaven have surrendered, according to advices reaching here. A state of siege has been decided on at Wilhelmshaven.

The advices say that when the Spartacides declared Wilhelmshaven an independent republic the people called a general strike. The authorities closed the postal lines, the telegraph and railway services, and a mass meeting was held at which the arrest of the Workmen's and Soldiers' delegates was demanded.

After the Spartacidee had raided the State bank, from which they took 2,000,000 marks, street fighting took place, which resulted in the unconditional surrender of the rebels.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The German Government contemplates strong measures to combat the growing strike wave there and will soon bring forward a bill compelling men to work and severely punishing strikers, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

ACRE FOR EACH SOLDIER.

British Plan to Provide Cottage Also —Farm Profit Sharing Urged.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—A bold Government scheme to aid the fighting men will be embodied in a bill at the coming Parliamentary session.

It is understood that the Government holds the opinion that the best form of settling former service men on the land in large numbers is to give them each a cottage, with perhaps one acre of land, which will be partly garden land, the other part to be used for keeping poultry pigs, or goats, and for fruit growing. The occupier or owner will make the main part of his living by work either in a neighboring town or on the land.

It is also desired to have farms on each of which there will be a manager and which will be cultivated by men who are not agricultural laborers, although they will get the agricultural wage of the district. They will be partners in the concern and benefit by its progress. The men will get their share of the surplus profits, and the farm will be cultivated intensively.

The view is held in official quarters that with inexperienced men with very little capital this is one of the best ways of putting them on the land and giving them a real interest in industry. It is hoped that the Board of Agriculture will receive power to buy land for cash.

The Government proposes that county councils shall buy and equip the land with proper regard to economy, but for the next seven years the Board of Agriculture will pay any deficiency between receipts and expenditure on the holdings. That means that a man will be put upon a small holding at a rent which the land is capable of producing, and not at a rent based on the capital outlay.

This is intended as a recognition of the debt the country owes to former service men, and for this purpose the Government, subject to the consent of Parliament, is disposed to put aside a sum of money running into many millions. It will come from the taxpayers, and not from the local ratepayers.

The scheme applies to Scotland, except that the Scottish Board of Agriculture would act instead of the county councils. Ireland has its own separate scheme.

ATTACKS WILSON'S CRITICS.

Senator Pollock Sees Politics in Opposition to World League.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Critics of President Wilson and his proposal for a League of Nations were sharply rebuked in the Senate today by Senator Pollock of South Carolina, Democrat, who in his first prepared address, charged that partisan politics was the basis for much of the criticism voiced recently in the Senate. Senators Lodge of Massachusetts, Knox of Pennsylvania, and Borah of Idaho, Republicans, and Reed of Missouri, Democrat, the South Carolina Senator said, were among those who had labored for "destruction instead of construction" in the peace plans.

"I warn the gentlemen in this body that this is no ordinary political question," said Mr. Pollock. "I warn the gentlemen that the American people will not look with favor upon any man who would play politics with the people's blood. The American people will hold them responsible if they place obstacles in the way of saving the world from a repetition of its anguish of the last four years."

Senator Pollock, who took his seat last month to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Tillman, said he spoke "merely as an ordinary man and a humble member—unknown largely beyond the limits" of South Carolina, but added that he was fresh from contact with the plain people of America, who desire an agreement among nations to prevent future wars.

Senator Pollock said he had listened with impatience "to petty partisan criticisms of the President" by Senators "attempting to bring the President of the United States into the disfavor and contempt and ridicule of the world," and praised ex-President Taft for his support of President Wilson's efforts in behalf of a League of Nations.

SENATORS HEAR CAILLAUX.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—Joseph Caillaux, former Premier, charged with treasonable dealings with the enemy, was brought today from prison to the Senate, where the Special Commission of the Senate, to which the case had been referred, proceeded to examine him.

Three detectives guarded M. Caillaux, whose arrival passed almost unnoticed, the only spectators being five policemen standing in front of the Senate Building.

British Criticise Delay in Mails.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Failure to dispatch mail on fast steamers operated by the British Government between English ports and New York between Jan. 7 and Jan. 30 has been criticised by newspapers here. The Ministry of Shipping says that, owing to an oversight, it failed to give the Post Office the usual notification of fast ships sailing during the period mentioned. The Post Office failed to make inquiry, and consequently the ships sailed without mail.

SEES BOLSHEVISM AS PERIL IN BRITAIN

Prof. Struve Thinks It Has More Chance of Success There Than in Germany.

OPPOSES PARLEY WITH REDS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The Daily Chronicle publishes an interview which Harold Williams had with Professor Peter Struve, the distinguished Russian economist, on the latter's arrival in London from Russia. Professor Struve last visited England two and a half years ago for the purpose of accepting an invitation to lecture at Cambridge and receiving the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Now he comes as a fugitive from the reign of terror.

He spent over three months hiding in Moscow, sleeping nearly every night in a different house, then set out for Archangel and for months wandered about the forests of the north disguised as a merchant's clerk, seeking a way out beyond the barrier, waiting for British troops to advance or for some peasant rising to bring him within the area of allied occupation. But the allies did not come through and finally he returned to Petrograd and after a series of romantic adventures found his way into Finland and so across to England.

"For me," says Mr. Williams, "Professor Struve seems the greatest political thinker now living. In the early nineties he with Lenine and Professor Trias Baronovsky was a protagonist of the new Marxian school in Russia but whereas Lenine remains embedded in the Marxian dogma and developed his faith to a point of furious destructive fanaticism, Struve continually probed economic and political facts in search of a larger and freer conception.

"He became a Liberal and for some years before the first revolution published abroad the Journal Liberation, the organ of the Constitutional Union. He was a cadet member of the second Duma, but is bound by no party ties and has often aroused offense by his independence of thought. He is Professor of Political Economy at the Polytechnic Institute of Petrograd, where his flat now stands empty and plundered, and he is editor of the monthly Review Russkaya Mysl, which is of course suppressed.

"Struve is a great worker behind the scenes in political combinations, an inspirer of ideas which often violently opposed today are accepted a year after by his political associates."

Giving his views to Mr. Williams on the Princes' Islands proposition, Professor Struve said:

"In the first place the scheme is impracticable. In the second place, if it did succeed, if the powers could arrange a meeting with the Bolsheviki, they would find themselves on inclined planes leading to chaos. The Germans lost the war through their moral mistakes, of policy, beginning with the invasion of Belgium. Their most fatal mistake, their most criminal blow against civilization, was their part with what they themselves called 'the gang of murderers' in Russia. If the allied powers repeat this error they will plunge Europe still further into the depths.

"It is a dangerous moment to play with Bolshevism, particularly for England. It is my firm opinion, in spite of the skepticism the Bolsheviki themselves express, that Bolshevism has more chance of success in England than in Germany. British workingmen have not had the political education which German workers have received through their powerful and experienced Social Democratic Party, and it is my opinion that they might more easily be misled by delusive Bolshevist promises, particularly if, as seems possible, there is a revival of the syndicalist movement that was active in England before the war. And the danger of a general swing in the Bolshevist direction will be greatly increased if the allied governments give even partial recognition to the Bolshevist Government in Russia.

"The old trade unionism is not an effective barrier, for it is one of the chief objects of the Bolsheviki to upset trade unionism. Then it seems to me from what I have read in the press that an entirely false idea is current here as to the real strength of the Lenine Government in Russia. The Red Army is not strong. Its whole effectiveness lies in possession of the munitions of the old Russian Army. There is a strong nucleus of troops consisting of Letts, a small proportion of Chinese, and a number of Hooligans who serve for profit. Apart from these there is a large force of so-called 'mobilized' troops who have been forced into service. They have frequently protested by revolt during mobilization, are held in subjection by terror, and would mutiny at the first opportunity.

"It is characteristic that the Bolsheviki consider these troops so untrustworthy that they only serve out arms to them when they go to the front. The Red Army would yield to organized international pressure."

DENIES IT BACKS FESS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Denial that the Anti-Saloon League of America is espousing the candidacy of Representative Fess of Ohio or any one else for the Speakership was issued tonight by Wayne B. Wheeler, Secretary of the Legislative Committee of the league and its general counsel.

"The statement in a Washington morning newspaper," said Mr. Wheeler, "that the Anti-Saloon League is making plans to control the next Republican Convention and secure the nomination of Representative Fess as the candidate for President is unwarranted. The league's position is nonpartisan. It will not confine its activities to any one party.

"Our chief interest will be to see to it that candidates of all parties are nominated who will stand for honest enforcement of the prohibition law."

Gwinner to Quit Deutsche Bank.

BERLIN, Jan. 29, (Associated Press.)—Arthur von Gwinner announces his retirement at the Managing Director of the Deutsche Bank on March 31. He has been Director of the institution for twenty-five years and has been identified with Berlin banking interests for forty-six years. Herr von Gwinner is a member of the Prussian House of Lords, but took little part in politics.

ALLIES WARN ARGENTINA.

Will Reroute Cargoes if the Maritime Strike is Not Settled.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 30.—Two of the allied legations here informed The Associated Press today that the reports of the allied boycott of the port of Buenos Aires were greatly exaggerated, but admitted that the allied legations had informed the Argentine Government that they were determined no longer to submit to the present situation, and that if the port strike was not definitely settled within two or three days all the vessels now in the roadstead, neutral as well as allied, would proceed for Montevideo, where they would unload their Buenos Aires cargoes, proceeding thence for other ports to take on new cargoes.

Fifty vessels have left the docks and anchored in the roads since the strike began, and a hundred are now in the roads, they pointed out. The Allies, they said, are no longer in need of Argentine wheat, and their only interest in the proposed Cereal Convention is that it would permit postponement of payment for two years.

They intimated that, as Argentina was more anxious to sell than the Allies were to buy in the case of the present crop, no agreement would be signed until assurances would be given that there would be no further boycott. The Argentine Government understands that, though the Allies prefer to buy Argentine meat, they are preparing to buy Brazilian meat rather than risk further trouble here.

The Government conferred with the strikers and owners today in an attempt to persuade the Maritime Federation to agree that neither ships nor shippers shall be boycotted in future strikes and also agree to withdraw the demand for a labor delegate aboard the ships.

One Minister said today: "Argentina will require more than a generation to regain the prestige lost in the last two years."

LABRADOR STONE ALUMINIUM.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 29.—A special dispatch to the Extrabladet of Christiania reports that Norwegian electrotechnical factories have succeeded in producing aluminium from so-called Labrador stone, which is found in great quantities in the western part of the country.

Aluminium has long been extracted from Labrador stone, or Labradorite, a variety of feldspar. Hitherto, however, it has never paid to extract the aluminium from it except from waste, for in itself, it is usually cleavable, its surfaces are capable of high polish, and its use in ornaments—table tops, snuffboxes, jewel cases, &c.—make it a semi-precious stone.

Aluminium is now produced by electrolosis and chemical reaction from clays and various stones in such large and increasing quantities as to cause its price to fall from $90 a pound in 1855—the first year it was isolated for commercial purposes—to 23 cents a pound at present. The United States extracts more than half the aluminium produced in the world.

PHONES FROM SHIP TO SHIP.

First Wireless Talk to the Patrol from Transport Mongolia.

Patrolman William J. Ferrick, radio operator on the police boat Patrol, had the distinction of receiving the first radio phone message on board the official welcoming boat of the Mayor's Committee yesterday afternoon.

The message was directed to Colonel Charles F. Enright, Jefferson City, Mo., State Commissioner of Banking, who had gone to meet his son, Lieutenant William Fairleigh Enright, Battery E of the 75th Coast Artillery, who was returning from service abroad on the transport Mongolia.

"Try to get me off tonight if you can," said the clear voice of the man speaking on the transport. "I may be able to get off and I may not be able. Casual officers generally get off, but there seems to be some hitch this time. Lieutenant Enright."

As the patrol is not equipped to transmit radio phone messages the reply was sent back to the Mongolia by wireless.

Lieutenant Enright was married a year ago yesterday, and his wife was waiting to receive him at the pier. He was a student at Harvard University when he enlisted.

General von Einem Retires.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—General von Einem has been retired from active service in the German Army, according to advices received here from Berlin.

General von Einem was formerly Prussian Minister of War and at the opening of the war received command of the Second German Army, made up of troops from Saxony. Last September it was announced that he was the commander of one of the six German armies shattered by the great allied offensive.

Urge Tenants in Hungary to Rebel.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Jan. 29, (via Geneva.)—Budapest communists are beginning a movement toward expropriating real property, urging tenants to refuse to pay rents for the February quarter. The landlords' remonstrances have elicited a weak response from the Government, which has promised to institute a Committee of Inquiry.

France Honors Frank Dilnot.

Frank Dilnot, correspondent of The Daily Chronicle of London, has been made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the French Government, according to information reaching this city yesterday. Mr. Dilnot is a frequent contributor to American newspapers and magazines, and is President of the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents in the United States.

BIG RADICAL LOSS IN PRUSSIAN VOTE

CONSERVATIVES ARE ELATED

Socialist Groups Will Have About 170 Convention Votes and Other Parties 231.

BERLIN, Jan. 29, (Associated Press.)—Unofficial returns from Sunday's elections to the Prussian Constitutional convention, without taking Posen's twenty-one delegates into consideration, show the success of 142 Majority Socialists, 24 Independent Socialists, 87 Christian People's Party delegates, 41 German Nationalists, 18 of the German People's Party, 61 Democrats, 6 Guelphs, and 1 Democrat-Peasant.

The Socialists are not likely to have more than four of Posen's delegates, which would make the combined Socialist strength in the convention 170, as against 231 Bourgeois delegates.

The results of the popular vote as far as it has been tabulated show a considerable loss for the radical parties—the two Socialist factions and the Democrats—and small gains for the National and Christian People's Parties when compared with the National Assembly results.

The Majority Socialists vote fell off 21,500 in Berlin, that of the Independents 5,500, and that of the Democrats 20,000, while the Nationals gained 7,000 and the other eight parties about held their own.

In Potsdam the two Socialist groups together lost 42,500 votes and the Democrats 21,000. The Nationals gained 1,000.

The Conservative and National Liberal press hails the result as evidence that the people are beginning to weary of the Government's methods since the revolution. The radical press thus far has not commented on the elections.

DR. FRANZ MEHRING DEAD.

Rebuked Prussian Minister Who Said Our Army Could Not Cross.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 30.—Dr. Franz Mehring, Independent Socialist member of the Prussian Diet, is dead. Advices received here say that his death was due to pneumonia.

Dr. Mehring in 1917 was elected to the seat of Dr. Karl Liebknecht in the lower house of the Prussian Diet after the imorisonment of Liebknecht on a charge of treason. Like Liebknecht, Dr. Mehring was opposed to the war, and at one time incurred the displeasure of the authorities and was placed under "preventive arrest."

In the Diet in January of last year Dr. Mehring made a sneering rejoinder to a speech of the Prussian Finance Minister with regard to a big army coming from the United States to aid the Allies, which the Minister said "can neither swim nor fly," and that it would not come.

"If Canada," said Mehring, "with less than 9,000,000 inhabitants, has been able to throw a quarter of a million soldiers into Europe who were not able to fly or swim, what grounds has the Minister for denying to the United States, with 110,000,000 inhabitants, any military capacity?"

The Minister, Dr. Hertz, replying, said he was unable to prove his statement concerning the American Army, but that he was still convinced it could not come over.

SOCIALISTS MEET AT BERNE.

Germans There for Conference—Belgians Refuse to Meet Them.

BERNE, Jan. 30.—The International Socialist and Labor Conference has been definitely called to meet here on Feb. 3. Seven countries are already represented here by delegates who discussed preliminaries for the conference at meetings on Tuesday and Wednesday. Among those present at Tuesday's meeting were Herman Muhlkenbuhr, Herman Mueller, and Otto Welz, German Majority Socialists; Carl Kautsky, German Minority Socialist, and the French Socialists, Jouhaux and Demoulin.

During the discussions Camille Huysmans, the Belgian Socialist, said the question of responsibility for the war inevitably would arise during the conference and the majority of those present agreed with him. Herr Mueller said that Germany had no territorial aims regarding Lettish territory.

Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish Socialist leader, declared that small countries and neutrals could not be excluded from the work of forming a League of Nations.

DENIES RADIO VIOLATION.

Daniels Says Mann Probably Was Confused in Making His Charges.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—In reply to the speech of Republican Leader Mann in the House yesterday, declaring Secretary Daniels should be impeached for purchasing radio stations after authority had been refused by Congress, Mr. Daniels said today the Navy Department had not proceeded in any way toward the acquisition of high-power commercial radio stations or the building of a new naval plant since Congress failed to authorize these projects.

The Secretary said Representative Mann probably was confused by the fact that the department as a war measure bought low-power stations doing a ship-to-shore business with radio extension funds provided by Congress, for which specific authority never was asked or refused.

OFFICER'S STORY DOUBTED.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The attention of several Senators and Representatives has been attracted by an interview in a Philadelphia newspaper in which Commander Sweeney of the United States Navy is quoted as saying he participated in the revolution in the neighborhood of Archangel by aiding in the distribution of paper money alleged to have been forged by the British and issued with an alleged intent to discredit the Bolsheviki. It was stated today in a New York newspaper that Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania and Senators Johnson of California, France of Maryland, and La Follette of Wisconsin would undertake to have an investigation made.

Mr. Kelly confirmed this statement in part today by saying he had intended to take the matter up with the Secretary of the Navy, but had been prevented from doing so by pressure of business. He said he wished to ascertain first if the story was true, and, second, in case it was true, on what authority the American naval officer had acted.

"The thing struck me as a mad tale, almost preposterous," said Senator Johnson. "I know no more about it than has been printed. I have not undertaken any investigation, and have not consulted with any one concerning such a move."

Senator France, too, said he had not talked with any one about the matter, nor had he heard of a possible investigation.

"However," he said, "I do think it is a matter that should be taken notice of. If it is true, it is a criminal act for us to allow an officer to enter another country, print money, and try to buy its citizens. Whoever is responsible should be punished to the extent of the law, if the story is true, although it sounds incredible."

DEFENDS HOG ISLAND.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Hog Island shipyard, which will cost $66,000,000 when completed, was defended today before the Senate Commerce Committee by Matt C. Brush, President of the company operating the plant, "as the only war venture where every single cent spent is still good."

"Aside form the shipbuilding facilities," Mr. Brush said, "the construction of Hog Island is justified as a terminal. It is worth more now than the United States Government has invested in it because it is as good a deep water terminal as there is in this country. I am willing to stake my reputation as an executive that the yard can be made a success."

Mr. Brush quoted Howard Coonley, Vice President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, as saying Philadelphia could afford to spend $100,000,000 to acquire Hog Island and continue its development as the city's great water terminal.

Credit for the launching of fourteen ships, five of which are in commission, was given by Mr. Brush entirely to the former management of the yard and the men working there. He left the presidency of an elevated railroad in Boston last October, went to work as a shipbuilder at Hog Island in November and the following month was elected President of the American International Shipbuilding Corporation, which is constructing the yard and the ships. His salary is $40,000 a year.

The witness said the Hog Island yard is the first concern to undertake the employment of wounded soldiers, positions in which they are making good.

With the close of the session the committee concluded the investigation, which has been in progress for a year. There is no indication as to when a report or recommendations will be made on the basis of the evidence obtained.

BERNSTEIN RESIGNS.

Declares Himself Opposed to Policy of American Hebrew.

Herman Bernstein, who recently returned from Russia, where he has been studying conditions, announced yesterday that he had resigned from the editorship of The American Hebrew.

"I have resigned," Mr. Bernstein said last night, "because I am not in sympathy with its policy. That is all I care to say at present."

This policy was described at the offices of the publication yesterday as "anti-nationalistic and non-Zionist."

LABOR WILL CARRY FIGHT TO PARLIAMENT

that they have not been authorized by the trade unionists and that therefore intervention would be unwise. It is the view of the ministers that the men, in the absence of the usual strike pay, are not likely to keep up the movement long, and that the Government therefore should confine its action to preserving order.

At the meeting the ministers discussed a telegram received from the provost of Glasgow, containing the request of the strikers for the Government to intervene to secure for them a forty-hour week. Andrew Bonar Law, Lord Privy Seal, on behalf of Premier Lloyd George, sent a reply to the provost declining to intervene.

SHUT OFF POWER IN BELFAST.

Electricians Join Strike and Many More Plants Close.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The situation both on the Clyde and in Belfast, where strikes are in progress with widespread paralysis of industry, became more serious today. In Belfast, manufacturing firms which were generating their own electric current for power purposes had to close down their plants, as the workers in the private electric installations joined the strikers. The blacksmiths, the boilermakers, and the shipwrights decided to notify their employers that the conditions of the settlement they asked should embody an increase of 30 per cent. in the gross earning powers of the peace workers.

Along the Clyde many corporation electricians went on strike, compelling the corporations to stop the current for public works, retaining such current as they were able to generate for the use of the hospitals and for street lighting.

The industrial confusion that reigns in the Clyde region is depicted by the Glasgow correspondent of The Star in a dispatch today. Tempers are rapidly being lost in the strike, he says. In front of two of the large Glasgow shipyards strikers have massed themselves and are adopting every measure of intimidation to compel the workers to join the strike. They forced their way into the yards and dragged nonstrikers into their ranks.

Unless negotiations are open by tomorrow, the correspondent adds, the strikers threaten to throw Glasgow into darkness and to shut off the light even from the hospitals.

Street cars are running in the city today, but the strikers declared that if their operation interfered with the processions of the men the cars would be stopped.

"Revolutionary language is now on the tongues of the leaders," the correspondent reports.

CLASH ON ARRIVAL OF HARVARD UNIT

DENOUNCED AS A BLUNDER

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 30.—The Harvard surgical unit, which had seen continuous service with the British forces in France since July, 1915, returned today on board the White Star steamship Megantic, which arrived here this morning from Liverpool by way of Halifax. There were twenty-seven medical officers and 103 nursing sisters, all wearing British uniforms, in the force that landed from the liner and went on to Boston by special train.

General Hospital No. 22, which was the base of the Harvard unit, was raided from the air on many occasions by German flyers. In September, 1917, according to Lieut. Col. Hugh Cabot, who was in command, thirty-eight medical officers were saved from certain death when the Hun raiders dropped bombs on the huge tent in which they had their quarters only because they had been called out in the night to receive a large convoy of British wounded.

During the German offensive in Flanders and Picardy last Spring the hospital received frequent visits from the German air raiders who, however, failed to do any damage beyond the serious shock that was caused to the sick and wounded.

The hospital was at Camiers, which, during the severe fighting in March and April last year, was only from thirty to forty miles back of the line held by the Allies. It was one of the largest, if not the largest, of the British base hospitals in France. There were 2,370 beds all told, but, Colonel Cabot says, as many as 4,000 were cared for frequently at one time.

Altogether the doctors and nurses of the Harvard unit cared for 126,000 wounded at the base hospital and approximately 27,000 at clearing stations and on hospital trains, almost 10 per cent. of all the British wounded on the front in France since hostilities opened. More than 99 per cent. of these recovered.

The unit received a great send-off both in France and England before returning to America. Dinners, luncheons and receptions filled their days for the final fortnight. It is believed that the unit accomplished much toward the development of a better understanding between Great Britain and America.

BOSTON, Jan. 30.—Members of the Harvard surgical unit while on their way to Boston this evening were startled by receiving orders from the War Department to proceed to Camp Devens for demobilisation.

The Harvard unit, which has been affiliated with the British Army in France as a volunteer medical organization, came home on a British transport at the expense of the British Government, and its commanding officers had secret instructions from the British military authorities as to the method of dismissing the members upon their arrival in this country, but apparently Secretary of War Baker was not cognizant of these facts.

The telegram said that the order was from the Secretary of War. It is believed that the confusion at Washington resulted from the fact that Harvard sent two units to the war, the other serving with the United States forces.

Lieut. Col. Cabot turned the matter over to Colonel Herbert W. White, President of the Harvard University Press, who went to Europe to bring the unit home. Colonel White said he would ignore the order, and that "if they get us to Camp Devens tonight it will be under arrest."

"The War Department has no authority over the Harvard unit, which was mustered out of service by the British military authorities on Jan. 8," said Colonel White to a TIMES correspondent. "Of course if any American officers appear I shall apprise them of a situation with which the War Department should be fully familiar. It is a most astounding exhibition of ignorance on the part of the department."

The members of the Harvard unit received an ovation when their train arrived at the North Station at 9 o'clock this evening. The medical officers and nursing sisters formed in line and marched to the Common, where they were addressed by Colonels Cabot and White, who thanked them for their services during the war.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—It was explained at the War Department tonight that a Harvard medical unit, designated officially as Base Hospital No. 5, was organized in connection with the American Red Cross. This is a War Department unit and under War Department orders.

A high official of the army said that the War Department did not claim to have any authority over the original Harvard unit, which served with the British. If a mistake had been made in confusing the two units in orders, it was explained, it would be quickly rectified.

WILL STAY IN WAR WORK.

500 Women, at Mrs. Astor's, Pledged to Continued Activity.

At the request of Mrs. Harold Irving Pratt, in charge of women's Y. M. C. A. work in the metropolitan district, about five hundred women workers attended a meeting held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Vincent Astor, 840 Fifth Avenue, to discuss the question whether women should continue in war work. It was the unanimous decision of the assembly that women should continue, since the problems of peace, perhaps more even than war, made imperative the work of women.

"It has been said that women are no longer needed abroad," said Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Chairman of the Women's Division of the Y. M. C. A. National War Work Council, "and I want to protest most emphatically that they are not only needed urgently now, but they are needed more than ever before."

"This is a carry-on meeting," said Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., "and we women must be in earnest about carrying on. The work in Europe is tremendous and must not be dropped."

Special emphasis was also laid on the importance of women's work on this side of the ocean by Mrs. Pratt, who said in part:

"Dramatic war work is over, and we can no longer go to the zones of actual fighting to serve men whose lives are constantly in danger, and we can no longer endanger our own lives for them by serving chocolate under shellfire; but the 1919 job is just as important, even though it is not so spectacular. We must not lay down our work at this critical time when thousands of men are being returned to civilian life, often bewildered and dazed, needing us as certainly in this time of change as they did during the war."

In her address of welcome, Mrs. Astor said:

"I find it very satisfying to come back and serve here in the Y. M. C. A. Victory Hut after serving in Brest. I feel as if the work here were quite as important as it was across the water. A war doesn't stop in a day, and war work can't stop as soon, either."

Walter T. Diack, General Y. M. C. A. Secretary for the New York district, also spoke. The meeting, which was composed entirely of volunteers, included workers from Fort Schuyler, Jay, Governor's Island, and Eagle and Victory Huts.

QUITS WIRE COMMITTEE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Asserting that to retain her position would "amount to a serious betrayal of the rights and interests of my fellow-workers, whom you have charged me to represent," Miss Julia O'Connor, representative of the organized telephone and telegraph workers on the committee appointed by Director General Burleson to investigate wages and working conditions in the telegraph and telephone companies, today filed her resignation. The committee, she stated in a letter to Mr. Burleson, has attempted no procedure worthy of its name, and its work in general has been so hampered that its efforts have been futile.

Miss O'Connor charges that "repudiation of contracts, interruption of friendly relations, destruction of long-established arrangements for collective bargaining, persecution and hostility for membership in a union—this has been the unpleasant history of Government control of the telephone industry. Methods of discrimination unparalleled under private control have been practiced by officials of the telephone companies upon employes who joined or remained members of a union; and in the absence of a disavowal the odium of this state of affairs must rest upon the Post Office Department."

As to the telegraph workers, Miss O'Connor says:

"A memorandum presented to the committee showed that on Aug. 24, 1918, the Western Union Telegraph Company made an agreement with its employes by which increases of 5, 10, and 15 per cent., based on seniority, would be granted all employes and would be dated to take effect as of Aug. 1, 1918. This agreement was never placed in effect because you denied to the individual companies operating under the Telephone and Telegraph Administration the right to negotiate with their employes on the subject of wages."

Instead, according to Miss O'Connor, Director Burleson issued an order reducing the maximum increase from 15 per cent. to 10 per cent., and dated Jan. 1, 1919, instead of Aug. 1, 1918.

MUSEUM IN PARK ARSENAL.

Ancient Building to be Leased by City to Safety Institute.

Philip Berolzheimer, President of the Park Board and Commissioner for the Boroughs of Manhattan and Richmond, announced last night that he had had an interview with Governor Alfred E. Smith a few days ago at the City Hall regarding the future of the Arsenal in Central Park.

This building belonged to the State before the park was in existence, and was later turned over to the city. The Commissioner said he intended to grant a permit under a ten-year lease, to the American Institute of Safety on the recommendation of the Board of Estimate for the purpose of displaying safety devices, which it is hoped, will be the forerunner of many similar institutions in other large cities for the purpose of saving life and limb.

Mayor Hylan, the Commissioner declared, had given his approval of the project under the condition that the institute would restore the old building at its own expense, which will cost about $100,000, and that Commissioner Berolzheimer will have absolute control over all exhibits.

The police station of the Thirty-third Precinct, the office of the head keeper of the menagerie and section foreman will remain in the building, whereas the Meteorological Observatory of the United States Weather Bureau will be removed to a place nearby.

REPORT ON NEAR EAST DRIVE

Account of Turkish Atrocities Told at Workers' Luncheon.

At the luncheon of the workers in the $30,000,000 drive of the Committee for Relief in the Near East, held in the Bankers Club yesterday, Dr. Graham Hunter, member of the Red Cross Mission to Palestine, who arrived home on Tuesday, told of conditions in the Near East and described for the first time how a community of 8,000 Armenians in a mountain village had been reduced to fifteen survivors by atrocities committed by the Turks and Kurds.

Dr. Hunter said he got his story from one of the survivors, a woman school teacher, who said that not a man or a male child over seven years old was left alive. When the slaughter was over 400 women and children were all that were left. They fled into the desert where all but the fifteen died of starvation.

Alexander J. Hemphill, Chairman of the Executive Committee, reported a total of $26,735 received by the committee. An anonymous contribution of $50,000 in Liberty Bonds, a contribution of $5,000 from Jacob H. Schiff, $5,000 from Mrs. John S. Kennedy, $5,000 from A. and M. Karagheusian, and $1,800 from Dr. William H. Nichols were among the subscriptions announced yesterday.

SEES PEACE LEAGUE AS SEWING CIRCLE

tion we now have or can get as to the best type of fighting craft. By all means we ought to have aviation ships, as auxiliaries to our fleet."

Representative Butler, the ranking Republican member of the committee, interrupted to call attention to differences in recommendations made by the General Board of the Navy and those of Admiral Mayo.

"I admit that all experts are not agreed," he replied. "Of course, there is always a certain amount of risk involved in building any ship, because advance is rapid and types may become obsolete before ships are off the ways."

"It is your opinion, then," said Chairman Padgett, "that conditions have changed so that a smaller ship of less cost is not advisable."

Admiral Mayo replied that the smaller ships were necessary, but that a powerful navy was founded on powerful ships. He approved the recommendations of the Bureau of Navigation for an increased personnel of officers and men. He said there should be provision made for 8,000 officers by 1920 and that the naval personnel should be large enough to maintain the navy at war strength.

"Under your proposal a larger complement of officers and men would be placed on our naval craft in peace times than is advocated by the General Board," observed Representative Hicks, Republican, of New York. "Don't you think it would be sufficient to have a smaller number of men in peace times?"

"Well, why not take all the men and officers from the ships and tie them up in peace times?" said Admiral Mayo.

"But why keep them up to war strength?" asked Mr. Hicks.

"Because that is what the navy is for," replied Admiral Mayo—"to operate in time of peace, so as to be ready for war."

"If we should supply enough men in ordinary times to furnish the quota on our ships in peace equal to that of Great Britain. I mean ships of equal size, wouldn't we be doing pretty well?" asked Representative Kelley, Republican, of Michigan.

"We would not if our ships called for a larger complement," replied Admiral Mayo. "It is not an exact science and never can be. The situation in regard to officers is worse than in regard to men. We have now a permanent officer force of 2,552. The reserve, emergency, and temporary officers will be going out. The Naval Academy cannot turn out officers fast enough for our needs. Personally, I indorse the recommendations of the Bureau of Navigation for 8,000 officers by 1920."

The committee had planned to vote on the Naval bill tomorrow. The testimony of Admiral Mayo may cause a postponement. It was said by those opposing an enlarged navy that the bill would be reduced from $750,000,000 to $550,000,000 with no increase in the building program.

Sentiment seems to be uncertain as to what course should be taken as to the naval program, and Democratic members of the committee say that President Wilson's influence will be necessary to get a bill through Congress to provide for increasing the navy at this time.

PLANS AIR SERVICE ALL OVER CANADA

F. G. Erickson Says Syndicate Which Bought 500 Airplanes Will Carry Passengers.

NOT TO HANDLE THE MAILS

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 30.—F. G. Erickson, who is acting here for a syndicate headed by Roy U. Conger of New York, today confirmed the report that he had purchased at least 500 airplanes and airplane material from the Imperial Munitions Board for upward of $8,000,000.

In the fields of sports and commerce Mr. Erickson hopes to find a ready market for his wares. He says he will have the flying machines overhauled and will sell them in a few months at a price lower than is generally paid for an automobile; for somewhere in the neighborhood of $2,000. Mr. Erickson is an aeronautical engineer and is not only a flier himself, but has completed various inventions connected with flying machines.

Mr. Erickson says he believes that the airplane has come to stay as a big factor in the pleasure and commerce of Canada. Opportunities for flying development here, he thinks, are greater than in the United States.

At the present time 90 of the 500 machines are assembled at the Leaside factory. The balance are scattered among the various R. F. C. camps and will be shipped to Toronto.

"Did you have much competition in buying the planes from the Imperial Munitions Board?" he was asked.

"There were quite a few after airplanes, but many of them could not give satisfactory explanations of what they intended to do with them."

The syndicate which purchased the planes is said to be chiefly composed of young men, practical fliers, who have been connected actively with flying on this continent since the early days of the war. The syndicate has plans under way, it was said today, to establish a passenger service, then an express, and finally a freight service between the principal cities of the Dominion.

The announcement was further made by officials that the deal will not accelerate demobilization of the Royal Air Forces in Canada, nor will it interfere with the plans of the Dominion Government for the establishment of a Canadian air service for mail, naval, and military purposes. Camps Mohawk and Rathbun, at Deseronto, and the Beamsville camp are to be dismantled as soon as their machines and parts and tools can be concentrated at Leaside, which, for aviation purposes, includes Armour Heights.

ARRIVE FOR AUTO SHOW.

Manufacturers and Dealers Here for Opening Tomorrow Night.

Automobile manufacturers and dealers from many parts of the country are arriving in New York to attend the big motor car show which opens tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden and the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory, on Lexington Avenue, close to the Garden, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Streets.

It is many years since the show has been held in the Garden, but a return there is necessary, since the Government is using the Grand Central Palace as a debarkation hospital. The show this year is held by the automobile dealers of New York City. The manufacturers, as a war measure, abandoned the idea of the annual national show usually held here in the first week of January several months before the signing of the armistice. They have co-operated heartily with the dealers, and the number of exhibitors seeking space was so large that it was necessary to hire the armory.

The show will last two weeks, the first week being devoted entirely to passenger cars and the second week, beginning Monday, Feb. 10, will be the commercial exhibit, when motor trucks and smaller business vehicles will be shown. For the passenger car week fifty-eight makes of all the popular models of American cars will be shown. There will be no foreign-made cars. In all, there will be about 250 cars in both buildings ranging in price from less than $1,000 to $10,000.

Genuine new models will be scarcer than formerly owing to the fact that most of the big manufacturers have been engaged for more than a year on war work and the production of cars has been greatly curtailed. Many of the leading automotive engineers have also been in war service, so that the majority of the cars will show but little change except in certain refinements of design and mechanism from the 1918 models. There is, however, one new car in the moderate-priced class which the manufacturers had designed over a year ago but withheld until the return of peace.

In addition to the cars there will be over 200 exhibitors of parts and accessories. The show will open in both buildings at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, and with the exception of Sunday will continue every day and night next week.

WAR BRIDES ARRIVE TO JOIN HUSBANDS

Fourteen Who Married Soldiers Abroad Come on Transport, 12 of Them Alone.

THREE SHIPS BRING TROOPS

Regulars, Marines, and National Army Men on Mongolia, Plattsburg, and Cruiser Frederick.

Two transports, the Mongolia, from St. Nazaire, and the Plattsburg and the armored cruiser Frederick, both from Brest, arrived yesterday, bringing officers and men from service in France. The Mongolia brought 4,429 regular army, Marine Corps, and national army troops, all classed as casuals, and a detachment of the 39th Hospital Unit.

In the national army on board were represented California, Virginia, New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Oklahoma, Missouri, Texas, Minnesota, Michigan, and Ohio. There were also 142 colored troops and Tractor Artillery School detachment of Ft. Slocum, consisting of 1 officer and 54 men, on board. The Plattsburg brought 1,631 troops, including the 323d Machine Gun Battalion, 12 officers and 484 men, of the 83d Division; Machine Gun Company, 5 officers and 160 men, of the 330th Infantry of the 83d Division; 60 men of the personnel of Naval Base Hospital No. 2, at Strathfeffer, Scotland, and a number of casual companies which included New York men. The Plattsburg brought 2 officers and 22 men who are convalescing from wounds.

Baby and Brides on Plattsburg.

The cruiser Frederick arrived early in the day with 1,547 troops, including 24 officers and 1,022 men of the 1st Battalion, comprising Companies A, B, C, and D of the 330th Infantry; the headquarters medical detachment of the 83d Division, and the 466th and 492d Aero Squadrons, together with a number of casual officers of the National Army from Ohio and West Virginia, which made up the 83d Division.

The list of the Plattsburg contained one baby" and when the vessel came alongside the American Line pier last evening the baby was a centre of interest. He is William Robert John Lewis, six months old, and he was introduced to his father, William Lewis, of the 165th, the old 69th Regiment.

The baby was born in London and comes of fighting Irish stock, as his father admitted, who has a record to prove it. He enlisted and served three and a half years with the Australians, and when America entered the war he obtained his discharge and enlisted in the 165th in Paris. He wears the British Military Medal, the Croix de Guerre, and the Gallipoli service medal. Mrs. Lewis came over with her baby to join her soldier husband. They met in London and were married there on July 14, 1917. Mr. Lewis lives at 607 Second Avenue.

Fourteen brides, twelve of whom journeyed across the Atlantic alone to join their husbands who are now on this side, came on the Plattsburg. Mrs. Alwood Gloesbeck, who was Miss Honneur, a singer, before she married Captain Gloesbeck of Schenectady in the 6th Infantry, is London, came with her husband. The Captain was in Lancaster Gate Hospital when Miss Honneur came to sing to the wounded.

The youngest bride on board was that of Lieutenant Henry Oswald Wyatt, who also arrived with her husband. His home is in Richmond, Ve. He was stationed at a British camp and was billeted with a British flyer. The latter asked him to spend his rest periods with him at his home at Carluke, twenty miles from Glasgow. When he returned to camp from his third visit he was engaged to Miss Elizabeth Young, 18 years old, and they were married on Nov. 21.

Other War Romances.

The end of a holiday in the country began the romance of Mrs. Marie Vogt, wife of a private in the Aerial service, whose home, she said, is at 866 East 164th Street. Returning from her holiday she came to London on the same train with Private Vogt. When they alighted at the station the soldier, whom she saw for the first time, asked her the way to an Eagle hut. She showed him the way and they became friends. Six weeks later they were married.

On Aug. 12, the day he had to join his ship, Paul David Clough of Kansas City, a radio electrician on the battleship Florida, married the girl he met in London. Mrs. Clough arrived last evening to join the husband with whom she parted on their wedding day.

Each bride had a story to tell. Among those who arrived was the wife of Lieutenant W. T. De Rede, to whom she was married in London in September; Mrs. Alvin Pettit, wife of a private in the aerial service, who lives at Youngstown, Ohio; Mrs. E. D. Johnson, whose husband, a private, is from Brooking, N. D., and while she was a clerk in the British Air Service was billeted in the same house with her future husband; Mrs. John Plater Steele, who was Miss Pearl Ramus before she married Sergeant of Marines Steele in November; Mrs. Zachariah Hameetman, whose husband is now said to be at Camp Upton, and Mrs. John Brositz, who met and married her husband in Nottingham, England.

Among the civilian passengers on the Plattsburg were Henry A. Bumstead, professor of physics at Yale University. He had been engaged in war work abroad since 1917.

INSTALL BROWNING GUNS.

Entire Third Army to be Equipped with the New Weapons.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Jan. 20, (Associated Press Correspondence.)—The task of supplying the eight divisions of the Third American Army with Browning machine guns and automatic rifles was begun recently. The Brownings are to replace the machine guns and automatic rifles, with which all the troops of the American Expeditionary Forces have been armed. For the army of occupation approximately 158 cars will be required to transport the weapons from France to the occupied territory.

Each division is to have 768 automatic rifles and 224 machine guns.

SIEGEL OPENS FIGHT ON IMMIGRATION BILL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Burnett bill to restrict general immigration for four years is destined to meet strong opposition. Directing the fight is Representative Isaac Siegel of New York, who will have the support of Representative Sabath of Illinois, a member of the House Immigration Committee. They will present a minority report on the bill, which Mr. Siegel today characterized as "un-American and against the spirit of American institutions."

In the opinion of Mr. Siegel, the talk of a threatened inrush of Bolsheviki and radicals from Europe "is ridiculous and hysterical." He thinks the argument is employed to frighten American capital. The bill, he said, is demanded chiefly by organized labor, which seeks to maintain wartime wages.

"It will take nine months to bring the soldiers back from overseas at the present rate at which they are being moved, and we will need all the ships we can get together for that purpose," said Mr. Siegel. "There will be no ships in which to carry the thousands of immigrants who are said to be about to come here to spread Bolshevism. It is a fact, as San Francisco demonstrated, that workmen flock to devastated areas instead of avoiding them, because of the great amount of work to be done and the high prices usually paid for such work.

"Workmen will not abandon the devastated and impoverished areas of war-torn Europe. The Europeans will stay at home to perform the great reconstruction task they have before them. American workmen will be needed over there, too.

"That is the history of all wars. Immigration came almost to a standstill after the Franco-Prussian war. There is no work to be done here compared with what is before the laboring men of Europe. The governments of Europe probably will enact laws to prohibit emigration for a period of several years if it is found that labor is leaving.

"There is not the slightest necessity for anti-immigration legislation. I do not believe Congress will enact it. I regard such legislation as ill-advised, to say the least, especially when the bill we have before us would permit immigration from Canada, Mexico, and other countries contiguous to the United States, but bar out immigrants from Britain, France, Italy, and others of our allies. Such discrimination is sure to prove embarrassing to President Wilson at the Peace Conference. I don't for a moment believe that Congress will enact the bill."

AGAINST IMMIGRATION BAN.

Manufacturers Oppose Burnett Bill, Says Stephen C. Mason.

In a statement sent out yesterday, Stephen C. Mason, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, said that manufacturers throughout the country were not in favor of the Burnett bill, which would prohibit immigration from any but adjoining countries for four years, as they believe it is neither wise or in accord with the principles of our Government. He thought a better solution would be the adoption of suitably restrictive legislation with immigrant distribution machinery along the line of that of Canada.

"To shut off practically every avenue for new labor forces for the next four years," he said, "is not squarely meeting an important problem of readjustment. It is creating possibly more grievous problems and conditions than those which it is sought to correct. We are weak, indeed, if, on the pretext of preventing the importation of one of Europe's war aggravated social diseases, known as rampant Bolshevism, the only remedy we can adopt is to prohibit the continued arrival of those still remaining healthy and vital forces of European labor which may come to our shores to escape the very social conditions we, ourselves dread."

2,197 LAND AT PHILADELPHIA

The Haverford Brings Back Many New Yorkers, Including Jay Gould.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—Philadelphia today extended a hearty welcome to 2,197 men of the American Expeditionary Force, first of the overseas contingent to arrive at this port. They came on the liner Haverford. After being entertained at luncheon by women of the various war organizations, the veterans marched to the Pennsylvania Station and entrained for Camp Dix.

Most of the returning soldiers were members of the 65th Regiment, Coast Artillery. In addition, there were 238 colored casuals from nearly every American division that fought in France, thirty-seven officer casuals, and nine naval officers. Nearly all of the casuals were wounded. Among the navy men were Ensign Jay Gould of New York, who had been stationed at Murmansk, Russia, and Lieutenant Neilson Poe of Baltimore, once a Princeton football star.

The 65th Regiment is composed mainly of men from Washington, Oregon, and California. Colonel Benjamin H. Kerfoot of Kansas, a veteran of the Philippines, is in command.

The regiment claims the honor of being the only organization of American troops to fire the British 9.2-inch howitzer in action, and is said to have handled the heaviest mobile armament, outside of the railroad mounted guns, used by the American First Army. The regiment fired 15,000 tons of steel and explosives at five different points in the German line of defense, all within a period of seventy days and nights. During this time, Colonel Kerfoot said, the casualties amounted to only three men killed and ninety-nine wounded in action. His records show that since the regiment's inception there had not been a courtmartial of either an officer or enlisted man.

Thirty-seven sick and wounded officers were brought back on the Haverford. They included two who fought with the 77th Division, which trained at Camp Meade, Md., and three others who were with the 28th, the "Iron Division." They were First Lieutenant S. A. Dobre of New York, who was with the sanitary detachment of the 316th Infantry, and Lieutenant Theodore Snook of Waverly, N. Y., who was with the 313th Infantry.

The "Iron Division" officers were Second Lieutenant Ayman Cater, Company L, 109th Infantry, of New York; Second Lieutenant Harry C. Flinn, Company A, 110th Infantry, of Brooklyn, and Second Lieutenant Robert J. Doran of Wilkes-Barre, Penn.

COLLISION TIES UP ELEVATED; ONE DEAD

incipient panic, and by the time reserves arrived from the Tremont and Morrisania stations several hundred persons were being shepherded in orderly lines back to the station and thence to the street.

When Acting Battalion Chief Gillespie came with apparatus responding to a special alarm, he found the guards and policemen fighting a losing battle with the flames spreading through the sixth car. By then they were endangering the woman wedged under a mass of twisted iron and wooden debris, for it was not known whether she was alive. Gillespie sent for the Rescue Squad, which came from Great Jones Street in nineteen minutes. By the time it arrived, however, the flames had been extinguished. Acting Captain Wines of the Bronx Detective Bureau, who took a squad of detectives to the wreck, found that Motorman Britt had been penned in his cab but had smashed his way out through the window. He was doing what he could to help quiet the excitement. Britt was sent to the Tremont Avenue Police Station where Assistant District Attorney Delagi learned that he was 44 years old and had been ten years in the interborough service. Britt could give no explanation of the accident, except that he had slowed his train almost to a standstill because of a slight block at the Tremont station ahead of him, when the train behind suddenly slammed into his.

Motorman Vogt of the rear train was finally discovered wandering aimlessly about the platform, his head in his hands and tears rolling down his face. He told the Assistant District Attorney he had been in the service nine years and that during that time he never before had had an accident. Britt was not held. Vogt was released after the Interborough had furnished $1,000 bond for his appearance to answer the homicide charge.

George Keegan, assistant to General Manager Hedley and H. M. Norris, Hedley's Secretary, arrived within a few minutes and took charge of the wrecking work. Keegan put about seventy-five men on the job, all who could work in the narrow space and three hours later southbound service was resumed. Within another half hour a crippled northbound service was begun, the trains switching around the wreck by using the express track. At midnight it looked as though it would be some hours before normal conditions could be restored on the road.

Meantime northbound elevated trains had been stalled for more than a mile behind the wreck. The Union Railway Company stripped its barns of every available surface car, a hundred jitneys appeared, and slowly the crowds made their way homeward, jamming the subway and defying all regulations by riding outside and on top of trolley cars and every place there was foothold. Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney and Charles Standfast, a supervisor for that body, inspected the wrecked trains and then went to the police station to examine the motormen.

PUTS WAR'S BIG LOSS ON LACK OF TRAINING

ALSO REFORM ATHLETICS

Suggests Compulsory Exercise for Students Who Need but Will Not Take It.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 30.—The unnecessary loss of life due to inexperience of officers, which might have turned the scales in favor of Germany, should not be repeated, says President Lowell in his annual report made public tonight. To make this impossible the President advocates a certain amount of military and naval instruction at colleges and universities. He says:

"The war has shown the need of a broader preparation for modern war than most of our officers received. There seems to be no doubt that our losses in battle were much larger than they need have been if the officers had been more familiar with the conditions they were called upon to meet. This means not only unnecessary sacrifice, but in a hard and closely contested war it might mean the difference between victory and defeat.

"Surely it ought to be possible to teach the art of war as other applied sciences or arts are taught. We do not instruct engineers or industrial foremen by merely training them in manipulating existing machinery and requiring the regulations for its use to be committed to memory. We teach them something at least of the mechanical principles on which all machinery rests, in order that they may be able to understand new devices and show the workmen under their charge how to use them. Nor does such a process unfit them for actual manufacturing plants. On the contrary, it makes them far more valuable. There is no obvious reason why the same method could not be effectively applied to training reserve line officers in the art of war.

"The military art is the application of the principles to the condition of actual warfare, and in that sense they are invariable as the principles of mechanics, the application alone changing with the weapons or machinery in use. It ought to be possible to teach those principles and explain by means of them the meaning and intent of field regulations and of military organizations and supply, thereby training line officers who would not only be familiar with existing practice, but able also to apply their knowledge rapidly to the unknown conditions and amended regulations that a new war will certainly produce.

"These things could well be taught during the academic term and their practical application learned in Summer camps, where more continuous and extended operations with field manoeuvres covering many days would furnish better material for systematic observation than could possibly be provided in term time.

"A similar plan might be adopted for the navy, the students being taught the necessary mathematics, physics, astronomy, and navigation in college and learning the seamanship and drill during the Summer at naval stations and afloat.

"So long as there is no universal compulsory service military studies at most of the colleges must be voluntary; but the Summer camps would present strong attractions to the students and might go far to solve the problem of the long vacation idly spent by far too many men."

On the question of athletics, President Lowell says that after a year and a half of war, in which the intercollegiate sports have been suspended, athletics should be resumed on a more rational basis than in the past.

"Athletic contests are only a part of the physical training that should be given," he says. "An athletic system which resulted only in having the great mass of students sit on the bleachers and applaud a few exceptional men in the field would be hopelessly defective and in fact the great intercollegiate games have been too exclusively the object of attention. This has had two unfortunate results. It has lent an exaggerated importance to these games and to the men who take part in them, and it has led to a neglect of the ordinary student and his bodily condition.

"It may be worth while for the college to consider whether it ought to go so far as to compel some form of exercise for those who need but will not take it."

ALLEN RENEWS CHARGES.

Says 35th Division Suffered 4,623 Out of 6,301 Argonne Casualties.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 30.—Reading from what he said was an official report prepared by ex-Captain Harry R. Coffman of Chicago, former psychiatrist of the 35th Division, Governor Henry U. Allen of Kansas, in a speech here today, renewed his charges that the Missouri-Kansas Division suffered heavy losses as a result of inefficiency of transportation and inadequate air protection in the Argonne Wood battle. Captain Coffman was in charge of the first-aid casualty station in the Argonne action and rendered a report of the division's casualties.

At that station, according to the report, a copy of which the officer mailed to Governor Allen, the entire casualties which passed through included those of seven divisions, totaling 6,301. Of that number, the report stated, 4,623 were from the 35th Division. The 91st Division, he said, furnished only 789 of the casualties. The 28th had 423 and the 37th had 67.

French and English trucks were used to transport wounded, he report asserts, after the American transportation

THE 59TH MUSTERED OUT.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, L. I., Jan. 30.—The 59th Coast Artillery, which arrived here last Friday from abroad, was mustered out of the service today. Its officers and a few clerks remained in camp to finish up the business of the regiment, but the remainder of the unit left on a special train at 3:30 o'clock. The 59th was formed from the old 13th Regiment of Brooklyn, and two-thirds of its men are from Brooklyn.

The train that took them home stopped at each station between Jamaica and Flatbush Avenue. The men received new clothes in exchange for their old ones and looked as if they had just entered the service. Last night they celebrated their discharge by giving dinners purchased with company funds.

Major W. T. Harris, the commander, was dined by Battery E, over which he formerly had command, and the supply company had a party. The march to the station today was in formation and the men maintained discipline until they broke ranks on the platforms. They said they would go direct to their homes and arrange for a reception at their armory later.

ATWATER TRIAL NEAR END.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Jan. 30.—The trial of Morton Atwater, of the firm of Atwater, Foote and Sherrill, charged with grand larceny in the first degree, goes to the jury tomorrow. The allegation is that he stole Liberty bonds, appropriating them for his personal use. His trial continued all this week beginning last Monday morning. The case grows out of the failure of the stock brokerage firm of Atwater, Foote and Sherrill, on April 16, 1918. The liabilities amounted to more than a million dollars.

Twenty-eight indictments were returned against members of the firm. Gilbert F. Foote pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery in the third degree, and was sentenced to Sing Sing. Harold W. Sherrill pleaded guilty to the same charge and is in jail here.

A Federal Grand Jury has returned indictments for evasion of the draft law against Gilbert Foote and his two sons, Giraud and Gilbert F., Jr.

DRAFT BOARDS MAY DEMOBILIZE ARMY

War Department Said to Favor Enright's Plan for Sending Men Home to be Discharged.

WOULD AVOID CONGESTION

Demobilization of military units by draft boards instead of the present method of discharging soldiers from service at cantonments or from camps for the reception of returning overseas veterans, with its consequent liability to create congestion in military districts and nearby cities by freeing large bodies of men at frequent intervals, has been recommended to Secretary of War Baker and Provost Marshal General Crowder by Police Commissioner Enright, who returned from Washington yesterday. He urged the change for the benefit of the men and to relieve the economic and employment situations, and would have each draft board act as a co-operative agent in aiding its quota to find employment.

When the armistice was signed the Commissioner sent a similar suggestion to Mayor Hylan, who presented it to the War Department, but it was then disapproved. The chief difficulty at that time was to get the men to the draft boards without much detail work and confusion in handling local draft contingents.

"At the conference with Secretary Baker and General Crowder it was agreed that the obstacle would be disposed of by authorizing the various draft boards to disburse the pay due to each soldier, together with the mileage allotted to him," said Commissioner Enright. "This would work automatically to the advantage of the soldier as well as the military authorities, who would be relieved of much detail work. Under the proposed plan, when the soldier is discharged at camp he must report to his draft board to get his pay and final release from service."

The Commissioner said Secretary Baker had promised to reconsider his decision, and that Provost Marshal General Crowder had already announced his approval of the Board project.

"General Crowder intimated that he considered the project entirely practicable, as it was merely a reversal of the Draft Board system of calling the men to service," said the Commissioner.

Commissioner Enright asserted that there were 50,000 discharged soldiers here who were drafted from out of town localities. Under the present system of discharging soldiers, said he, many of the men flock to the large cities instead of returning to their homes. They leave camps with their pay, which is often spent or lost before they are ready to go home and are left stranded and subject to hardship.

Major Pullman, head of the Washington police, told me that the congestion of discharged soldiers in that city had created a difficult problem for the authorities," Commissioner Enright said. "In Chicago, too, there is a similar problem, where it is reported that 100,000 demobilized negro soldiers have gone to that city from adjacent camps. With the aid of the draft boards all this congestion and confusion would be done away with by a natural and easy method of distribution of the men, who would thereby be aided in many ways and particularly in getting employment.

"It is proposed to have the draft boards act as co-operating employment offices—a sort of clearing house for each local community, where offers of employment would be received and adapted to the qualifications of the ex-soldiers. Furthermore the men, once they reached their home places, would have their relatives of friends to assist them."

An Agreement With the Carpenters' Union

To the Public:

The New York District Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners ordered its members to strike on the new Pennsylvania and Commodore Hotels, the Army Base, Brooklyn, and other rush jobs of the members of the Building Trades Employers' Association on November 14th, 1918, in violation of their trade agreement. Their violation of the trade agreement was approved by W. L. Hutcheson, International President of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Chairman of the Section of the War Labor Board that is now endeavoring to adjudicate the differences between the Boat Owners' Associations of New York and their employees. The Chairman of a War Labor Board was engaged in conducting a strike of the carpenters, in violation of a trade agreement, while sitting as an arbitrator in the boatmen's dispute and representing the Government of the United States. He was conducting a strike against the United States Government on the Army Base buildings and piers in the Borough of Brooklyn, which have been at a standstill since November 14th, 1918, rendering a Government investment of $45,000,000 useless. He was also conducting a strike of the carpenters against the United States Government on the Quartermaster's Stores under construction in New Orleans, La., and on the work of the United States Housing Commission at Bridgeport, Conn. The strikes in New Orleans and Bridgeport were sympathetic in support of the strike on the Army Base, Brooklyn.

A request made of President Gompers by Secretary of War Baker on December 10th, 1918, that the carpenters be returned to work on the Army Base and that the existing agreement be lived up to has proven ineffective.

We ask for the moral support of investors, building operators and owners, architects, and the public in the fight that we are making to protect the building industry of our city from industrial anarchy. We refuse to bargain with a union while its members are on strike in violation of its agreement. We decline to abandon our principles and cast aside a policy through the pursuance of which we have maintained peace and conditions that have been fair to labor for a period of more than fifteen years.

WILL ADVOCATE LAW TO END PROPAGANDA

Senate Committee Investigating German Activities Soon to Submit a Report.

EXONERATION FOR DAMON

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Senate committee investigating German propaganda in this country resumed its public sessions today. The committee probably will conclude the taking of testimony next Tuesday. Immediately thereafter it is understood the committee will report the result of the investigation, with the recommendation that a law be passed to protect the people of this country from the activities of Bolsheviki, anarchists and other agitators.

At today's session the first matter taken up was the list of men and women placed in the record last week, which list purported to give the names of some of the principal supporters of various radical and pacifist organizations in this country. The matter came up with the appearance before the committee of Professor Lindsay T Damon of Brown University, one of the many college professors whose names appeared on the list as it was submitted by Archibald E. Stevenson of the Propaganda section of the Military Intelligence Division of the General Staff.

Professor Damon was one of those listed as a member of the Intercollegiate Socialist Society. At present Professor Damon is in the employ of the War Department, his assignment being the settlement of claims against the War Department growing out of the operations of the Student Officers' Training Corps in various New England colleges.

After listening to the statement of Professor Damon the committee informed him that they did not consider him either pacifistic or disloyal and ordered that the opinion be placed in the record. The committee, however, refused to take Professor Damon's name off the list in the record.

A letter written by Captain Boy-Ed, the then German Naval Attaché in Washington, was read into the record. This letter was written in Berlin in January, 1915, and was addressed to von Papen, then at the front in command of troops. The letter, written a year after Boy-Ed was ordered out of the United States, was the one in which he said he had taken with a grain of salt German predictions of a German revolution in this country in case of a declaration of war against the Fatherland.

More of the threatening letters sent at the direction of the German Government to workmen of German and Austro-Hungarian blood employed in American munition plants were offered by Major Humes as furnishing conclusive proof of the Government's contention that the so-called Workman's Aid of New York and other cities, also sometimes referred to as the Libau Employment Agency, was financed by the German Government. Other documents in support of this view also were placed in the record.

There was also placed in the record a report of L. S. Perkins of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation on the Hans Libau Bureau. This report, dated May 22, 1917, shows that Libau was questioned on April 7, the day after Congress declared war on Germany. In this report Perkins states that Libau admitted that practically all of the funds used to finance the bureau were donated by the German Government, and were transmitted to the agency through Dr. Heinrich Albert, the former fiscal agent of the German Embassy.

Another man named in the report is R. H. Otto, the former German Consul at Jamaica, who when the war broke out sought refuge in Plainfield, N. J. One item of $19,000 opposite Otto's name in Albau's ledger was the gift, according to the report, of the German Club of New York. Altogether Otto handled between $25,000 and $30,000 for the bureau.

That none of the names on the Stevenson list will be expunged from the record of the committee was decided at an executive session late in the afternoon. It was announced that if any among those listed desired to testify the committee would accord a hearing. Senator Overman said the action today was in no wise to be taken as indicating that the committee entertained the view that the fact that a man or woman belonged to this or that radical or pacifist organization was evidence of the disloyalty of such person.

CUT PRICES FOR SOLDIERS.

Women's League Obtains Discounts for Men Leaving Service.

Civilian clothing for soldiers and sailors discharged from the service, it was announced yesterday, could be obtained at a discount through the Shopping Bureau of the National League for Women's Service, which has made arrangements with a number of men's furnishing dealers. On suits and overcoats the greater number of shopkeepers agreed to give 10 per cent. discount, and one large clothing house has offered a 30 per cent. discount. There is a 30 per cent. discount on all haberdashery and a variable discount on shoes. Men who wish to take advantage of these discounts, it was announced, should apply to Mrs. Guy H. Tulman at the headquarters, 257 Madison Avenue.

Men leaving the service who are about to marry are also to be aided by the bureau in setting up housekeeping, as a furniture house, it was said, had offered a 10 per cent. discount on all household goods, and if installments were paid promptly this would be increased to 15 per cent. The Shopping Bureau was instituted to aid soldiers and sailors in nearby camps. Twenty professional shoppers volunteered their services, giving a day a week, to help the men make their purchases.

O'LEARY JURY COMPLETED.

Taking of Testimony in Conspiracy Trial to Begin Today.

The taking of testimony in the trial of Jeremiah A. O'Leary and others on a charge of conspiring to obstruct the military laws of the country will begin today before Federal Judge A. N. Hand. The work of getting a jury was not completed until 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Many men called for jury duty were excused on pleas of having formed unshakable opinions concerning the guilt of the defendants, and others for various other reasons.

The jury, as finally completed, is as follows: Ernest R. Hunter, foreman, investments; James W. Harte, salesman; Albert Blumacher, plater; James S. Kirk, electrician; Bertie J. Kelsey, clerk; Frank H. Janke, assistant treasurer; James C. Hull, secretary; John J. Hammond, harbor pilot; George E. Hall, hat manufacturer; William L. H. Gallin, contractor; Isador Scherick, retired; Silas J. Cabot, automobiles.

Two Unusual Marine Items.

Shipping men noted two unusual items in yesterday's marine news at this port. The British steamship Cairnvalona, from Salonikl, brought in yesterday a cargo of currants and Turkish tobacco, the first vessel load of these commodities to arrive here from the Orient since early in the war. The schooner Harry G. Deering of Bath, Me., arrived from Para, Brazil, having completed the 3,000-mile voyage in twenty days. This, marine men say, was a remarkably fast passage.

CHORUS GIRL CLAIMS SHARE IN FIELD ESTATE

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—At the instance of Peggy Marsh, a former chorus girl residing at 120 East Eighty-second Street, New York, who claims that the late Henry Field, grandson of Marshall Field, was the father of her child, a suit has been instituted in the Superior Court here for a construction of the Marshall Field will. The object behind the suit, however, seems to be the enforcement of an agreement which the woman alleges was entered into between her and Henry Field, whereby she was to receive $100,000 for the support of herself and their child.

The story is told in a deposition made several days ago by Peggy Marsh in the New York office of De Lancey Nicoll, representing the trustees of the elder Marshall Field's estate, who are defendants in a friendly action by his grandson, Marshall, and granddaughter, Gwendolyn, to construe the merchant's will.

According to the story told by Peggy Marsh, she received from young Field, who died in July, 1917, at least $50,000 in cash and presents. He is further said to have signed an agreement to pay her $100,000.

A formal claim for this amount was filed several months ago in the Probate Court against Henry Field's estate, but it is said that this will not be contested by the Field family, who are alleged to recognise that Henry Field was the father of Peggy Marsh's son, who bears the name of Henry Antony Marsh. That the Field family intends to carry out Henry's agreement with Mrs. Marsh, as she calls herself, is indicated by her testimony that since his death she has received $500 a month from Marshall Field, 3d.

In the action in the Probate Court, Mrs. Marsh was represented by ex-Governor Edward F. Dunne. The guardian for Henry Antony Marsh is Attorney Edward F. Dunne, Jr., who appeared in New York at the taking of the deposition.

"We feel that Mrs. Marsh has a perfectly legitimate claim as is further shown by the fact that it is recognized by young Field's family," said the younger Dunne.

Peggy Marsh's testimony was taken in New York before Commissioner Myles A. Walsh. She said that her real name was Annabelle Greenough, and that she was born in Chelsea, Mass. She testified that she became acquainted with Field in the Savoy Hotel, London, early in 1915. She was at that time playing at the Alhambra. From that time young Field is said to have shown her constant attention, finally engaging a house in London where they lived for several months.

Mrs. Marsh made it clear that there was never a marriage ceremony between herself and Field and that she had never considered herself his wife or been so recognized by him or introduced as such to his friends.

The $100,000 agreement between the couple is said to have been entered into "on or about Feb. 7, 1917." It was on that date that Henry Field married Miss Nancy Perkins, a niece of the Langhorne sisters of Virginia.

WOULD HAVE SMITH APPOINT WELCOMERS

HEARST ATTACK ON McCOOEY

The statement of Senator Wadsworth urging Governor Smith to appoint a State Committee to welcome returning troops was commended last night at a meeting of the Independent Citizens' Committee of Welcome, held in the Murray Hill Hotel. This resolution was telegraphed to Senator Wadsworth:

The Independent Citizens Committee for welcoming our soldiers and sailors expresses to you its hearty approval and appreciation of your statement urging the Governor of the State of New York to appoint a State Committee to welcome our returning troops, in order to bring to an end the unfortunate and discreditable situation which has been created in this city by the appointment of Mr. William Randolph Hearst on the Mayor's Committee of Welcome.

The meeting was attended by a majority of the organizations which form the committee. It was decided that the organization should first take up the soldier unemployment problem, pass next to the distribution of signs reading "Welcome Home," inquire into the reason for delayed pay, and also distribute anti-Bolshevist literature among the soldiers who are still abroad.

Dr. S. Dana Hubbard, Director of the Bureau of Public Health Education of the Department of Health, yesterday announced that he had resigned from the Independent Committee. Dr. Hubbard, in a letter to Dr. William T. Manning, said he got out "because the committee has taken on a political complexion," whereas he had joined "in the belief that it was to be purely nonsectarian and nonpolitical."

A stir was caused in Brooklyn yesterday by the appearance in The New York Evening Journal, one of the Hearst newspapers, of an article attacking John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Kings County. Mr. McCooey would make no statement concerning the matter, but it was noted about the Borough Hall that the attack followed Mr. McCooey's refusal to take steps to have Nathan S. Jonas, President of the Manufacturers' Trust Company, removed as Chairman of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee, under whose auspices James M. Beck appeared at a mass meeting at the Academy of Music on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Jonas, it was asserted, had incurred the enmity of the Hearst forces by declining to withdraw Mr. Beck as a speaker at the meeting, notwithstanding the fact that Borough President Edward Riegelmann in a letter requested him to do so. Mr. Riegelmann's letter was sent after a committee from Bay Ridge protested against Mr. Beck speaking. Following Mr. Jonas's refusal to remove Mr. Beck, it is reported, a demand was made upon the Borough President for the removal of Mr. Jonas. This demand, it is said, was communicated to Mr. McCooey, and he refused to agree to it.

Mr. McCooey declined yesterday to make any comment upon the article attacking him. He asserted positively that there had been no one from Mr. Hearst to see him about the matter. E. T. O'Loughlin, former Register of Kings County and leader of the Hearst political forces in Brooklyn, it is said, spent a short time at the office of Mr. McCooey on Monday. The purpose of his visit was not disclosed at that time.

Borough President Riegelmann when asked yesterday what he would do in the face of Mr. Jonas's refusal to withdraw Mr. Beck said very emphatically, "I have nothing to say." He denied that there had been any communication between himself and the Hearst forces as to Mr. Beck and reiterated that his only object in asking for the withdrawal of Mr. Beck was because of his belief that Mr. Beck had assailed the head of the city Government, of which he is a member. It was learned yesterday that Mr. Riegelmann sent a second letter to Mr. Jonas on Wednesday asking for Mr. Beck's withdrawal in the interest of "peace and order." Mr. Jonas paid no attention to either letter or to a personal request made by the Borough President.

Mr. Jonas said that whatever reply he had to make to the letters of Mr. Riegelmann or any other matter concerning the Celebration Committee would be made at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the organization, which has been called for 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Riegelmann has been asked to be present.

MEXICAN SCENES FILMED.

An eight-reel film entitled "Typical Mexican Aspects," made by George D. Wright, with the co-operation of President Carranza's Government, was shown yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Mexican Consulate General to invited spectators at Wurlitzer Hall.

The film begins with the celebration of Mexican Independence Day, Sept. 16, showing the President and members of his staff reviewing a parade of soldiers, sailors, and military cadets, whose number and equipment would seem to indicate a high degree of development. The picture then presents specimens of the people of Mexico, giving views, first, of the more primitive natives at their farming, boating, fishing, and spinning, and next, glimpses of artisans and mechanics, business and professional men, and Government officials in typical surroundings.

Commerce and industry are treated in the same way. The manufacture by hand of baskets, jugs, and other articles is illustrated, and also the selling methods of small merchants at their street stands. The busy inside of a large cigarette factory is then shown, and after it the making of double-headed wax matches, rolled steel, and airplanes in modern plants. There are a number of views of Tampico and its adjacent oil fields, with close-up views of the working of a well.

The final scenes are of Mexico City. President Carranza is shown at his home on the hill of Chapultepec, taking a ride with his staff, voting on election day, walking in his garden and receiving the congratulations of foreign Governments on Mexican independence.

As shown yesterday the titles were in Spanish, but the pictures will be divided into one-reel lengths, supplied with English text, and distributed to theatres by the Educational Films Corporation.

YIELDS IMMUNITY IN PACKERS' INQUIRY

FREIGHT BOYCOTT CHARGED

Move in House Committee to Compel Trade Commission to Name Witnesses.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Questions of whether the appearance of packers' representatives before Congress would grant them immunity from prosecution under Federal laws and of compelling the Federal Trade Commission to disclose the identity of witnesses upon whose testimony charges of collusion were brought against the packers came up today at hearings before the Senate Agricultural Committee and the House Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Louis F. Swift, President of Swift & Co., after conferring with his counsel, told the Senate committee that he would waive any rights he might have in respect to his testimony regarding the abandonment of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad stockyards at Fort Worth, located near plants in which Swift & Co. and Armour & Co. were interested.

In taking up the examination of Mr. Swift regarding the M. K. & T. yards, Francis J. Heney read letters to show that Swift & Co. and Armour & Co. had refused to ship livestock over the railroad as long as the road maintained its yards, and that later when the yards were abandoned an agreement was reached to ship a certain volume of stock over the line on certain days.

Mr. Swift said that the railroad stock yards were "merely feeding yards," had not been successful, and probably would have been abandoned by the railroad anyhow.

Suggests Coercion of Railroad.

"You and Armour refused to ship on the 'Katy' in order to bring all the livestock to your yards, though, didn't you?" asked Mr. Heney.

"There were negotiations with the railroad, but as to how far they went in the way of a threat I don't know," was the reply.

"We may have withdrawn some—" Mr. Swift started to say, but was interrupted by Mr. Heney, who said:

"You withdrew so heavily that you forced the 'Katy' to close its stockyards in return for your shipping a certain amount of stock."

Mr. Swift said he thought the M., K. & T. might have closed the yards more quickly if the action had not been requested.

Says Veeder's Pay Exceeds Swift's.

A sharp clash between Mr. Heney and Henry Veeder, counsel for Swift & Co., over methods used by the Federal Trade Commission, took place.

Mr. Heney asked Mr. Swift if his company had made application for a public hearing during the commission's inquiry, declaring that he resented charges made by the five big packers that the commission's investigation and report were unfair.

Mr. Swift said that a telegram sent to the commission in February, 1917, asked that the packers be heard, a statement which Mr. Heney vigorously denied. Mr. Veeder, who was sitting among the spectators, attempted to speak.

"You'll be called in time, Mr. Veeder," said Mr. Heney. "Mr. Swift is on the stand now, and I understand he is head of Swift & Co., although your salary of $85,000 a year is larger than his of $50,000."

Mr. Veeder insisted upon stating that he had interviewed members of the commission in an effort to obtain a hearing.

"And Mr. Davis and others," was the reply.

"You did more to obstruct the investigation than any one else," said Mr. Heney, "and you desired by the use of the unlimited money of the five big packers to drag out the proceedings until our money had all been spent."

Wishes Yards Were at Gary.

Asked regarding the payment of a subsidy by the Stockyards Company to the packers to keep their plants in Chicago, Mr. Swift said he was sorry he had not moved, as he would be better off today. The Stockyards, he said, should be at Gary, Ind.

He denied that the packers had attempted to control the election of officers of the National Livestock Association.

"Did you combine to discredit the attorney and a member of the Marketing Committee of the association," asked Mr. Heney, "in order to replace them by men with another viewpoint?"

"If anyone attacks Swift & Co. we defend ourselves to the best of our ability," responded Mr. Swift.

The labor situation and condition of the stock yards at Chicago were brought up by Mr. Heney.

"Do you think there is any excuse for the present unsanitary conditions of the yards?" he asked.

"I know nothing about the yards," was the reply, "but if I had anything to do about it, I'd see they were kept clean."

Mr. Heney charged that laborers there worked sixteen and seventeen hours a day, and frequently on Sunday.

In connection with testimony that on the reorganization of the Chicago stockyards, J. Ogden Armour retained an interest while the other packers were eliminated, Senator Norris asked:

"Do you think Armour treated you squarely?"

"It doesn't look very square," Mr. Swift said.

"Do you expect to get your share yet?" went on Senator Norris.

"If I can get it above board I might take it if it has to be done under cover, I might not," the witness responded.

Move to Uncover Witnesses.

T. E. Wilson, President of Wilson & Co., was testifying before the House committee when members brought up the question of requiring the Federal Trade Commission to give the names of witnesses who furnished material for charges. The suggestion was embodied in a resolution offered by Representative Decker of Missouri, which specified that if the commission refused to give the names the committee should demand them.

Objection was made by Chairman Sims, who said the committee did not have that power. Mr. Decker replied that the committee could go before Congress and get the power if that was necessary.

Mr. Decker's resolution was not voted on because several members objected, saying that Mr. Wilson should be allowed to proceed with his testimony. The committee expects to dispose of it tomorrow.

When Mr. Wilson's examination before the House Committee was concluded late today, Arthur G. Leonard, President of the Union Stock Yard and Transit Company, Chicago, took the stand to protest against proposed Government control or regulation of stockyards. He objected "to having the business squeezed dry by Government regulation without ownership."

Vote to Maintain Post Office Tubes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Committee amendments to the annual Post Office Appropriation bill authorizing the Postmaster General to continue the postal pneumatic tube service in New York and Brooklyn and prohibiting removal pending action by Congress of the tube systems in the other large cities, were adopted today by the Senate.

REVENUE BILL READY TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Senate and House conferees on the War Revenue Bill considered today arguments presented by Senators in connection with luxury taxes and other schedules, and as a result the completion of the final draft of the bill was not accomplished when adjournment was taken tonight. It is now announced that the bill probably will go to the printer in final form by noon tomorrow, and will be ready for presentation to the House on Monday.

It is understood that no material changes were made as a result of today's deliberations. The bill in its completed form probably will include the Senate provisions for normal taxes of 6 per cent. on personal incomes not in excess of $4,000 after deductions are made, and 12 per cent. on net incomes in excess of $4,000, with a scale of surtaxes of from 1 to 65 per cent.; the Senate method of excess and war profits taxes on corporations with the rate on excess profits in the second bracket increased from 60 to 65 per cent.; the Senate amendments on transportation and beverage taxes; the House system of estate taxes with slightly decreased rates of taxation; the Senate schedule of taxes on luxuries, special taxes and, as a general thing, on theatre admission taxes, and the Senate's amendment restoring the 2-cent an ounce rate for first-class postal matter. The Senate amendment reducing second-class postal rates is reported to be abandoned and the zone rate system in the present revenue law retained.

Definite information on many of the points involved, and concerning numberless details which will affect the amount of taxes collected have been withheld, and will not be known until an official statement is issued.

HOLD DETECTIVE AS SLAYER

Special to The New York Times.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., Jan. 30.—Although weak from loss of blood William W. Wright, the Brooklyn private detective who shot and killed Smith W. Conklin on Wednesday in the latter's real estate office here and then shot himself, was brought before Justice of the Peace Robert MacIntosh today to answer to the charge of first degree murder. He pleaded not guilty and was held.

Two witnesses testified as to the business troubles of Wright and Conklin over the foreclosure of a mortgage by Conklin on property Wright owned. Wright expressed regret that he had not killed himself. He said he had had a hot quarrel with Conklin, and that when Conklin went to his office window and summoned a policeman to come up to eject him, he went mad, and from that time till he "came to" after shooting himself he remembered nothing.

DISTILLERS TO BEGIN FIGHT IN CALIFORNIA

PERSONAL LIBERTY DEMAND

Association Opposed to National Prohibition Not Interested in Liquor—Illicit Still Seized.

The Executive Committee of the Distillers' Association of America, which had been in session for three days at the Hotel St. Regis, concluded its work yesterday afternoon and adjourned without date. Theodore A. Bell of San Francisco, one of the counsel to the committee, who will have charge of the proceedings in California to invoke the referendum on the Federal Prohibition amendment, which the Legislature of that State already has ratified, left for Washington yesterday afternoon. After two or three days at the National Capital, he will go directly to California and begin the fight.

Members of the Executive Committee of the Association Opposed to National Prohibition conferred yesterday with the distillers, but the conference accomplished nothing. While the two organizations are opposed to the Federal Prohibition amendment and the members of each are on the friendliest terms with one another, there can be no amalgamation of the two associations and no pooling of interests, it was said yesterday, because the membership of the New York organization is quite different from that of the Chicago organization. The latter's membership is made up almost, if not entirely, of men in the liquor business. In the membership of the New York organization, except for the hotel men who are members, there is no one identified with the liquor trade.

In fact, many of the members of the Association Opposed to National Prohibition are teetotalers, but have joined the association, not to fight prohibition per se, but to fight national prohibition as it was intended to bring it about by the Federal amendment. The members of the New York organization, so James Woods, its Chairman, said yesterday, are much more interested in the economic and personal liberty issues involved than they are in trade in alcoholic beverages.

"Our people believe," said Mr. Woods, "that, in the name of prohibition, the Anti-Saloon League has dealt the deadliest blow ever aimed at constitutional liberty in the history of the world. If the members of one organization like this can take away a man's liberty to drink what he pleases, what is to prevent some other organization, operated as skillfully as the Anti-Saloon League has been operated, taking away by similar methods a man's liberty to smoke what he pleases or eat what he pleases?

"It is much more the means employed than the end accomplished that the Association Opposed to National Prohibition is concerned about. It is for that reason that our membership, which is growing every day, is made up of men and women of almost every profession and every business, except the liquor business. To be sure, some of our members who are in the hotel business—I say some, not all—sell liquor over the hotel bars. But the liquor end of the business of a hotel is incidental. What we are most concerned about is the filling of our rooms. It would be almost as correct a use of English to say that a hotel man is in the provision business because he sells food as to say that he is in the liquor business because some hotels sell liquor as an incident of their business."

A man who said his name was Harry Grabitch was arrested here a day or two ago, charged with taking orders for "good home made whisky" at $6.15 a gallon. From him the police learned that a still of the Russian type was being operated somewhere on the shores of Jamaica Bay. The police reported to the Department of Internal Revenue and on Wednesday night two revenue officers and Captain Donahue and five policemen of the Miller Avenue Station found the still in full operation, in a little house on the Jamaica Bay meadows. The still, so the Internal Revenue agents said, had a capacity of 100 gallons of whisky a day which could be produced for $1 a gallon. Twenty barrels of whisky and the still were seized.

AMENDS LIQUOR TAX LAW.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 30.—In order to have the Liquor Tax law of the State conform to the Federal Prohibition law, a bill was introduced in the Legislature today to amend the State law by making the manufacture, sale, transportation, export and import of liquors a violation of the Liquor Tax law. Under the terms of the bill a violation of the Federal law will also be a violation of the State law and will be punishable as a misdemeanor. The bill was introduced in the Senate by John B. Mullan and in the Assembly by Nicholas J. Miller.

In commenting today upon the action of the Legislature in ratifying the Prohibition Amendment, Governor Smith had this to say:

"The Republican majority in the Legislature, by the aid of a party caucus, have succeeded in ratifying, by strict party vote, the pending amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for prohibition. In my first annual message to the Legislature I recommended that action be taken only after the people of the State had an opportunity to give expression to their will in the matter. Not only have our people been refused that opportunity, but the Legislature has seen fit to record them without ascertaining their wishes. As the Governor of the State I can only take my place in the great army of our citizens who have faith in the fundamental democratic principle that the majority should rule, and I deplore the fact that we have been denied a right so fair that it does not admit of argument, except from those who are unwilling to listen."

TELLS HOW EUROPE IS TO GET OUR GRAIN

SEES PRICES MAINTAINED

Says France and Italy Take 155,000,000 Bushels, Germany 6,000,000, Monthly.

An estimate of the extent of Europe's needs for food during the coming year, most of which will have to be supplied from this country, was given out yesterday by Julius H. Barnes, President of the Grain Corporation of the United States Food Administration, from cable reports received from Herbert Hoover. These substantiate the estimate made by Mr. Barnes on Wednesday that the entire surplus wheat supply of the country, and of other grains as well, would be required from America before the end of the present crop year. Mr. Barnes reiterates in his statement that the Grain Corporation will maintain the 1918 guaranteed price for wheat.

The statement says:

"The French and Italian governments have made firm purchases from the grain corporation of approximately 80,000,000 bushels of wheat and flour. The Allied government program calls for about 75,000,000 bushels of oats also.

"If restrictions are removed on cereal imports to European neutrals they will require about 50,000,000 bushels of wheat, rye or barley, in grain or flour, to bring their bread consumption to normal, mostly from the United States. They will also require a considerable amount of oats, corn and cottonseed cake for feeding purposes.

"The European relief program called for about 60,000,000 bushels of wheat and rye, fully one-half as flour, but the present program allowed the Germans alone, by the Allies, calls for about 6,000,000 bushels of breadstuffs per month, largely from the United States, if they can find the money to pay for it. As we have already shipped from the United States more than 160,000,000 bushels of wheat or flour, the grain corporation will easily dispose of all wheat, with perhaps a small carryover, if any, at next harvest.

"The basis of price of all these wheat sales includes not only the basic price paid to the farmer, but the handling and storage expenses of the Grain Corporation. The Grain Corporation is, therefore, in a strong position, because of firm sales about equal to its stock on hand. With its available $150,000,000 capital the corporation will emphatically maintain the 1918 guarantee for which purpose it was created.

"There is necessarily some delay in equipping and bringing into use the German shipping for the transportation of foodstuffs to countries under the relief administration. In the meantime the Food Administration has asked the Shipping Board to provide it with the tonnage to maintain the American share of the relief program and to relieve food congestion at American ports.

"The Supreme Food Council, under military advice, has granted Germany the right to import 150,000,000 pounds of pork products per month as soon as she arranges payment and shipping. This and the neutral demand should overtake any surplus of these products in two months after being started. In fact, by peace there will be a shortage in pork production. The re-establishment of new markets and normal trading during the armistice is slow and difficult. In order to get over many of the difficulties of trading in flours and wheat during the period of the armistice, the Grain Corporation is establishing stocks for sale at Rotterdam, Trieat, Constantinople, and other points to as large an extent as the Shipping Board can furnish tonnage.

"Thus it is expected to further relieve the present congestion just as fast as our grain merchant fleet can serve our food producers."

IS SURE FAHNESTOCK WAS NOT MARRIED

WOMAN USED TWO NAMES

Registered as "Mrs. C. Farnum," but Told Father She Was to Marry Major Fenton.

While it was denied yesterday by the Fahnestock family and their attorney that the late Major Clarence Fahnestock of the 301st Regiment had married Miss Azeele Packwood, who committed suicide on the Palisades, a search of the records of the motor corps of the National League for Women's Service showed that Miss Packwood had in the latter part of February, 1918, given her married name as "Mrs. C. Farnum."

Miss Packwood left the motor corps on Oct. 1, 1917, saying that she was going to be married, and on her return in the latter part of March of the following year, said that she wished to rejoin because her husband was in France. Within a week after giving the name of "Mrs. C. Farnum" she asked to have this name stricken from the records of the corps, according to an official of the corps, and to have her maiden name substituted.

"She said that she did not want to have her married name on the list," said the official of the corps," because she hoped to go to France and to pass herself off as being unmarried. I explained to her that if she applied for work in France a careful investigation of her past would be made and the fact of her marriage discovered. She was so insistent, however, on having her maiden name on the rolls of the corps that I was very much puzzled about it. We were much relieved when she resigned a little later and joined another motor corps.

"I have a recollection that she said the first name of her husband was Charles. She was very reticent about her husband and we did not consider her statements in that connection to be very trustworthy. She said that her husband was a Major. He never appeared at the motor corps headquarters and I don't know of any one who ever saw him with her."

None of the young woman's relatives had ever heard, before her disappearance, that she was married. She had visited her home at Tampa, Fla., last October, and told her father, according to dispatches from there, that she was going to marry a "Major Fenton." Her brother, George D. Packwood, held a conversation over the long distance telephone from St. Louis yesterday with Prosecutor Huckin of Bergen County, N. J., where the suicide occurred, and said that he had never heard that his sister was married. Mr. Packwood, who is with the Malone Electric Company of St. Louis, said that he would make a journey East to take charge of the body.

While the members of the family and Adrian Larkin, the attorney for the late Major Fahnestock, were positive that there had been no marriage, they did not profess to know whether Major Fahnestock had ever been attentive to the young woman or whether she might not have been so deeply affected by the news of his death that she took her own life.

Employed Two Names.

The circumstances that in all accounts which she gave of her husband he was a Major and that the apparently fictitious names of "Major C. Farnum" and "Major Fenton" somewhat resemble the name of Major Clarence Fahnestock, seemed to fit in with the theory advanced that she killed herself because of his death.

Miss Packwood apparently used the name of "Major C. Farnum" in the first place and later used the name of Fanton, either from forgetfulness of the original appellation which she had assumed or from a desire to make the name distinct from that of Major Fahnestock. The name of "Major C. Farnum" which she gave to the Motor Corps as that of her husband is interesting in view of the fact that it is almost a maxim with detectives that a person who acts unguardedly in giving an assumed name is almost certain to use the initials or some of the syllables of the original name.

The theory that Miss Packwood committed suicide because of the death of Major Fahnestock rests chiefly on the statement of Mrs. Jeanne Cazeaux of 1185 Broadway, who for two years ended in 1917 was a neighbor at that address of Miss Packwood. She said that she had seen Major Fahnestock calling frequently on Miss Packwood, and had seen him take her out frequently in his automobile. Mrs. Cazeaux said that she went out to dinner or to the theatre frequently together, and that she had looked upon them as engaged. Her last sight of the couple together, she said, was about two years ago, but she was positive that grief over his death in France from pneumonia had caused her to kill herself.

Her story received corroboration yesterday from H. E. Heald, a salesman at an art store at 2,123 Broadway, who indorsed the application of Miss Packwood for an automobile license. Mr. Heald said that he had known the woman only during the last two years, or since the time when Mrs. Cazeaux last saw her, and he said that he had heard that she was engaged to Major Fahnestock.

"She had not been here for several months," he said, "but before that time she was here quite frequently to make purchases. The Automobile License Bureau was in this building at that time, and I helped her get her license and aided her with her car, which was like mine. At this time I had heard the story that she was engaged to Major Fahnestock. I don't care to say how I came to hear it, but it is a fact that I did. I have no doubt that she killed herself on account of his death."

Mrs. Hugh Cameron, the housekeeper at 25 East Forty-eighth Street, said yesterday that she did not remember the date exactly, but that she believed it to be about the middle of October of last year, when Miss Packwood told her that her husband had died in France. Major Fahnestock died on Oct. 5 and the news of his death was published on Oct. 9.

Confident There Was No Marriage.

Adrian Larkin, who was Major Fahnestock's attorney, said yesterday:

"I knew Major Fahnestock for many years and our relations were quite close and confidential. During that time, I never heard him mention the name of Miss Packwood. I never heard from any other source that he was acquainted with her, but I can say positively that he was not married. I am in a position to say that, absolutely.

"But, putting aside my personal knowledge, the supposition must seem untenable to any outsider. If Major Fahnestock was married, there was no reason why he should conceal it. There is no reason why his wife would not have been liberally supported. There is no reason why she should not be mentioned in his will. And it is not likely that, if he had left a wife, even by a secret marriage, that she would have failed to assert her claim to his estate."

Mr. Larkin said it was not true that detectives were to be engaged by the family to try to ascertain the real facts. Since both were dead, he said, nothing could be gained by proving or disproving any theories about them, and the family believed that such an investigation simply would keep the subject alive without serving any good purpose. Harris Fahnestock, a brother of the late Major Fahnestock, said yesterday that he had never heard his brother speak of Miss Packwood, and that he thought the story was entirely without foundation.

Major Fahnestock left an estate of $5,000,000, which he divided by will among his relatives, making no mention of a wife or of Miss Packwood. Major Fahnestock was a son of the late Harris Fahnestock, a wealthy banker and broker, and was himself a physician and a specialist in diseases of the ear, but had retired from active practice some years ago and spent a good deal of time in big game hunting. Instead of joining the Medical Corps he entered the infantry when the war broke out. He first attended Plattsburg, was later at Camp Upton and later at Camp Devens at Ayer, Mass. He went to France early in 1918. Major Fahnestock had been married several years ago to Marguerite Sawyer of Boston, but she obtained a divorce in the State of Washington.

As far as is known, there is no one in whom Miss Packwood confided. Mrs. Cazeaux said that her knowledge of the young woman's friendship for Major Fahnestock was based entirely on her seeing them together, and that Miss Packwood had never said much to her on the subject. Miss Packwood's acquaintances in the Red Cross Motor Corps, to which she belonged shortly before her death, and in the other corps, to which she belonged previously, all described her as extremely reticent. Mrs. Hugh Cameron, housekeeper of the apartment house at 25 East Forty-eighth Street, said that Miss Packwood had not spoken of having a husband up to the time that she said she had received news of his death.

ACCUSES POLICE IN STRIKE.

Garment Workers' Girl Pickets Harassed, Says Union President.

Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, said last night that he would call on Mayor Hylan today to protest against the attitude of the police in parts of the city toward the striking garment workers. Many young women pickets had been arrested unnecessarily, he asserted, while it was evident that the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association had employed agents in an attempt to disrupt the picketing forces.

"I am going to ask the Mayor and District Attorney Swann to prevent unlawful interference in the strike on the part of the police," Mr. Schlesinger added. "The strikers are within their rights and there is no excuse for the attitude of the police.

"As a reply to the threat made by Morris Weiss, President of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, that the manufacturers will start engaging strikebreakers beginning next week, the General Strike Committee of the union has made arrangements to have 10,000 girl strikers on the picket line next Monday morning in front of the shops in the dress and waist district."

It would be definitely decided by next Monday, Mr. Schlesinger said, whether it would be necessary to call out the remainder of the union workers on women's garments. The manufacturers could either come to terms, he said, or see more than 25,000 workers on cotton goods, the Swiss embroidery workers, and house dress workers added to the original list of 35,000 strikers.

Conference Next Week.

A conference will be held at union headquarters early next week between the officials and representatives of the cotton garment manufacturers. About 10,000 women are employed in this trade, making women's underwear. Harry A. Gordon, general counsel for the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association, is also attorney for the Cotton Garment Manufacturers' Association. It was said yesterday that nothing had been accomplished at several conferences which have been held as to a renewal of the agreement which is expiring this week.

"Next week's conference will determine whether the white goods workers will have to be called out on strike," said Mr. Schesiinger last night, following a meeting with members of the manufacturers' association in the children's dress trade in the Hotel McAlpin. It was apparent at this meeting, he said, that the employers would concede the demands, which include, in the children's dress industry as in the ladies' garment trade, a forty-four hour work week, a 15 per cent. increase in wages, and other union conditions.

"Within a few days the agreement of the house dress and kimono industry, which employs about 7,000 workers, will expire," he continued. "The international union invited the independent manufacturers in this trade to a conference. Should this conference not bring satisfactory results the workers of this trade will also be called upon to strike. A strike is also likely in the Swiss embroidery industry, which employs about 3,000 workers in Hudson County, New Jersey. The embroidery industry of New York is fully organized."

In Yorkville Court yesterday Magistrate Douras told seven men, garment strikers, who had been charged with disorderly conduct, that there was no legal objection to picket duty, but when this measure became a cause of disorder in the streets and congestion of sidewalks, the offense was punishable. The prisoners had been picketing the store of Hickson & Co., in Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-second and Fifty-third Streets. Magistrate Douras suspended sentence.

Declare War on Carpenters' Union.

Addressed to the public and appearing as a newspaper advertisement this morning is a statement by the Building Trades Employers' Association, which asserts that the agreement which was made with the Carpenters' Union is a "scrap of paper." The New York District Council of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, says the statement, called a strike on the new Commodore and Pennsylvania Hotels while they were in process of construction, as well as at the Army Base, Brooklyn, "and other rush jobs of the members of the Building Trades Employers' Association."

The statement adds that these strikes had the sanction of W. L. Hutcheson, the International President of the brotherhood and Chairman of a section of the War Labor Board, and concludes:

"We ask for the moral support of investors, building operators, and owners, architects, and the public in the fight that we are making to protect the building industry of our city from industrial anarchy. We refuse to bargain with a union while its members are on strike in violation of its agreement. We declined to abandon our principles and cast aside our policy through the pursuance of which we have maintained peace and conditions that have been fair to labor for a period of more than fifteen years."

TAKE HOPEFUL VIEW OF LABOR SITUATION

Secretary Wilson Warns Against Hysteria During the Reconstruction Period.

ASKS CONGRESS FOR HELP

Suggests Temporary or "Buffer" Employment to Prevent Spread of "Philosophy of Force."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Discussing unemployment today before a joint meeting of the Senate and House Labor Committees, William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, said there was considerable hysteria in the country over reconstruction, but that the problem would be worked out successfully. He said that, although reports to the department showed 262,000 unemployed men at 123 industrial centres, this week, compared with 235,000 last week, he did not consider the situation alarming. The Secretary said, however, that this condition indicated "a trend and need of legislation that will be a buffer to tide us through a brief period of unemployment."

Secretary Wilson suggested immediate enactment of legislation to provide "buffer" employment so as to prevent the "philosophy of force" from gaining a foothold during the reconstruction period. He said that he did not look for a social revolution, but he urged that precautions be taken against such doctrines as the I. W. W. preached.

Legislation should be passed at this session of Congress, he said, because the critical period was from five to six months after the signing of the armistice. He thought that unless Congress took some action at the present session or early in an extra session "we will either have tided over the period of social disturbance or it will have broken and we will have to meet it."

The Secretary said there was a class that believed there should be a change in government and that this change should be made by force rather than by constitutional means. There were such people in New York, Philadelphia, in the mountainous mining regions, and on the Pacific Coast, he declared.

Referring to the doctrines of force preached by the I. W. W., he said it had been possible to meet the situation during the war, but if conditions developed where workmen were being thrown out of employment it would be a hard matter to convince the workingman that there was a mutual interest between the employer and labor, where a man was unable to obtain work. Should the philosophy of force find a foothold, he said, there would be social disturbances in some cities which might make it necessary to use force to keep order.

Looks for Better Times.

Secretary Wilson expressed the opinion that the present unemployment difficulties were only temporary, and after reconstruction had been accomplished a period of great industrial activity would be experienced. He also expressed the belief that the present wage standards would remain virtually unchanged for some time.

Much of the present uncertainty, Mr. Wilson said, was due to fear on the part of the business men of the country that the present prices of labor and material were not stable and to lack of confidence in conditions. They felt, he said, that there would be a decided decrease in prices, and for that reason were not engaging in new activities.

The Secretary declared that abnormal profits resulting from the war must be eliminated before business could get back into the "after-the-war swing," but that business men feared the transition and hesitated to undertake any conferences designed to bring about a readjustment in prices because of the Federal anti-trust laws. Consequently, he added, the Department of Commerce plans to conduct conferences with business interests in an effort to get prices back to normal. Wage rates per hour, Mr. Wilson said, had just about kept pace with the increase in the cost of living during the war, although wage workers had been better off because they had steadier employment.

"If industries could immediately resume their pre-war activity," he added, "it seems apparent to me we could take care of our demobilized army and war workers. The trouble is business is not resuming."

He characterized as "folly" the idea of starting work that was not needed simply to provide employment.

Favors the Kenyon Bill.

Senator Kenyon's bill providing for the creation of a Federal commission which would work in conjunction with the States and municipalities in meeting the unemployment situation was indorsed by Secretary Wilson. He said his department had urged constantly in correspondence with Governors and Mayors that normal production and maintenance of public utilities be resumed in their jurisdictions. Construction of highways, the Secretary said, was a good means of providing employment, as well as resumption by the Government of the construction of necessary buildings and river and harbor improvements.

"We are almost in the same kind of an atmosphere we were when we entered the war," Mr. Wilson said. "At that time there was a fear that we would not be able to meet the situation confronting us; that we would not be able to mobilize enough soldiers to be effective, that we would not be able to mobilize labor. When the great crisis came and Germany broke through the west front, it was these same boys of ours that stepped into the breach at Chateau-Thierry, turned the Germans back and restored the morale of the British and French forces. If we could meet that situation, surely by intelligence and energy we ought to be able to reach the problems of demobilization."

James I. Blakslee, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, urged increased construction of roads and extension of the motor truck mail service which he said would furnish employment to many returning soldiers.

The Department of Labor announced tonight that during the week ending Jan. 18, the United States Employment Service received 139,730 applications for work, and of this number 121,120 were from men and 18,604 from women. Of the total registrations 95 per cent. were referred to jobs, and 91,299, or 65.3 per cent. were placed.

During the week the service received 164,224 applications for help, of which 130,749 were for men and 24,475 were for women. This is a net decrease in opportunities for employment of 38,533 over the previous week, when there were 202,737 applications for help.

GOV. SMITH MOVES TO PREVENT STRIKE

Appeals for Common-Sense Discussion Between Textile Employers and Workers.

CONFERENCE ON AT ALBANY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 30.—Governor Smith is hereafter to be considered a factor in New York State's labor difficulties. He made this plain today when through his efforts and those of a subcommittee of the Governor's new Reconstruction Commission, a move was made to avert the threatened strike of some 50,000 textile workers. Representatives of the textile manufacturers and employes met with the sub-committee and later after agreeing to attempt to effect a settlement, were urged by the Governor not to cripple the industry by the contemplated walkout on next Monday.

To night the committees of employers and employes had failed to reach an agreement, but both sides expressed a willingness to continue discussion of their differences which have arisen over a demand of the workers for an eight-hour day. It was said tonight that the committees would resume their deliberations tomorrow.

Governor Smith, in calling on the employes to continue work until their committee and that of the employers came to an agreement, placed the facilities of the State at the disposal of either side and offered his personal aid in settling the controversy.

"There never was a quarrel that happened in this world that could not be settled before it commenced if there was a disposition on the part of the people to do it," the Governor declared to the committees which called on him in the Executive Chamber.

"I believe that the great war that brought misery, more death, and more suffering into the world than any other conflict in its history, might have been averted if there had been enough brains to sit down and talk it over.

"About three weeks ago we had trouble in New York on the question of milk. The distributers of milk in New York had issued an ultimatum to the farmers of the State that so much and no more would they pay for the product. The District Attorney of New York, after investigations, was seeking amendment to the law, and the whole State was in a turmoil over the situation.

"We were successful in bringing together the representatives of the Dairymen's League, the representatives of the milk distributers, and the representatives of the consumers, and setting them down at a single table in the Hotel Biltmore in New York, it was frankly admitted by both sides that as long as they had been doing business together it was the first time they had ever sat down to talk it over in a business-like way.

"Now, I believe, if both sides to this quarrel approach a discussion of it in the proper spirit, with the proper feeling, and with the proper desire to settle it, that it can be settled without a strike or without any loss to the State, either to our manufacturers or to our laboring people. The success of industry, of business in this State is dependent upon how business men and their employes get along together. It is the concern of everybody.

"As Governor of the State my interest lies with both sides to this quarrel, equal and even, and I can only express the desire that the committees representing both sides of the controversy get together and settle the differences without resorting to a strike. There is really nothing to be gained by that—it is a loss to the laborer and it is a loss to the manufacturer. It is a waste of time and a waste of money that can never be made up."

Employes in Two Lawrence Mills Issue Strike Ultimatum.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 30.—Operatives of the Washington and Ayer mills of the American Woolen Company voted today to reject the offer of the company to establish a 48-hour week with 48 hours' pay. About 7,500 workers are employed by these mills.

The vote of the operatives of the Washington mill, where 2,500 are employed, was 1,768 to 373. The vote of the Ayer mill workers was not announced. The operatives also voted not to return to work next Monday and to picket the two mills unless the company should announce a change in its policy by tomorrow night at 7 o'clock. Earlier in the day the employes of the Wood mill voted to accept the company's offer.

OUR 22 MONTHS OF WAR COST $26,356,000,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Although nearly three months have passed since the signing of the armistice, the American Government's war disbursements show no signs of decreasing materially, except in loans to the Allies.

In January the Treasury paid out about $1,600,000,000 for ordinary war expenses, exclusive of allied loans, or only $70,000,000 less than in December, $55,000,000 less than in November, and considerably more than in any month theretofore.

Officials explained that this was not to be taken as indication that production of war materials is continuing at the tremendous rate of several months ago. Manufacturers now are presenting their bills and receiving payment for materials delivered long ago, however, and this keeps up disbursements. The liquidation of war contracts, after passage of pending legislation providing for validation of informal orders, is expected to be a new source of high outlays for the next month or two.

Payments to the Allies fell to about $190,000,000 in January. When these loans were first instituted, the Government contemplated turning over about $500,000,000 credits to the Allies every month, but actual payments ordinarily ran around $380,000,000 monthly.

The Treasury cited figures on the present Government outlay to emphasize the necessity for another big war loan of five or six billion dollars in April. Current expenses now are paid largely out of borrowings from banks and other purchasers of the Government's short-term certificates of indebtedness.

The Government's aggregate expenses in the twenty-two months of war have been $26,356,000,000, it was calculated today. This includes $7,875,000,000 loaned to the Allies. Latest unofficial reports place at $40,640,000,000 the cost of more than four years of war to Great Britain, including $5,535,000,000 loaned to her allies. From the same British source also comes the estimate that the war has cost Germany $38,750,000,000, of which $2,250,000,000 was loaned to her allies.

COMMENDS NAVAL HEROES.

Daniels Honors Men for Bravery in Performance of Duties.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Commendation of fifteen enlisted men of the navy for bravery shown in the performance of their duties was announced today by Secretary Daniels.

Boatswain's Mate Ben Winslow, Sawtelle, Cal.; W. R. Wells, Rubicon, Ark., and H. H. Lewis, San José, Cal., of the U. S. S. S. Cleveland were commended "for their heroic and excellent seamanship displayed" in twice going over the stern of their ships while in dangerous waters to secure a broken shaft and prevent it from battering a hole in the vessel.

Eight members of the fireroom crew of the American steamer Westgate, sunk in collision on Oct. 7 with the steamer American, were commended for remaining at their posts until all precautions had been taken to prevent an explosion of the boilers. The men are: Peter Kujawh, Milwaukee; F. L. Erickson, San Antonio; O. F. Mattern, Wabash, Ind.; M. V. Syvert, Toledo; J. Blanchard, Munson, Mass.; E. A. Elliott, Bethalto, Ill.; E. L. O'Harra, Florence, S. C., and H. A. Peterson, Greenwood, R. I.

Action of J. J. Logan, chief machinist's mate of Strafford, Penn., in taking precautions to prevent an explosion of the gasoline tanks of the scout patrol Victor, off Cape May last Feb. 10, when a fire occurred on board the vessel, was praised by the Secretary. Recognition also was given Seamen Raymond R. R. Artz of West View, Penn., and J. McK. Monarch of Richmond, Va., who as members of the crew of the Victor's dinghy traveled seven miles to shore through lines of ice floes to obtain assistance. The two seamen and Walter Fulmer of Philadelphia, who is also commended for courage and efficiency during the fire, are members of the Naval Reserve Force.

John Powell, the eminent American Pianist-Composer, will give a recital at Carnegie Hall on Monday, February 3rd. Hear Powell in person and then hear his beautiful playing reproduced by the Duo-Art Pianolo Piano.

JOHN POWELL

One of the Few Great American Pianists

THE DUO-ART PIANO

JOHN POWELL is a musician of whom his countrymen should be proud. He has already achieved a position as pianist of highest rank and is now rapidly winning fame as a composer; his writings disclosing great creative ability as well as lofty ideals. John Powell is undoubtedly one of the most interesting American musicians alive today.

In the Record-Rolls Powell has made for the Duo-Art Piano, the outstanding characteristics of this pianist are readily noticeable. These are his fine command and unusually clear, distinct tone, coupled with a full realization of both the poetic and dramatic possibilities of the composition.

The Duo-Art Piano with its record-rolls made by the greatest pianists of the world and reproducing not only their technique and expression, but their very "personality" as Josef Hofmann says, is the most wonderful musical instrument that genius has yet given to man.

To appreciate this great gift, to arrive at a full realization of the extraordinary character of the Duo-Art, you should hear John Powell in his coming recital and then visit Aeolian Hall and hear the Duo-Art's absolutely perfect reproduction of the great artist's playing.

Besides its marvelous power to play for you as the great pianists play; besides being a pianoforte of unexcelled merit for hand playing, the Duo-Art provides for the untrained musician a perfect technique, being a Pianola of most advanced type.

WIFE OF LONDON BREWER

One of the most important paintings to come to this country for some time is Whistler's painting "Lady Meux," purchased by Duveen Bros. for a sum approximating $200,000. The portrait was obtained from the family of Lady Meux and was bought by Duveen Bros. for themselves.

It is a matter of great interest to all lovers of art that one of the most important of Whistler's full length portraits has been purchased and brought to this country. The portrait is the second painted by Whistler of Mrs. Meux, later Lady Meux, the wife of a wealthy brewer in London and in her early days a pretty barmaid at the Gaiety Theatre. In spite of this humble origin, she had the excellent taste to commission a portrait of herself by Whistler shortly after his return from Venice in 1880, which at that moment required no little courage and conviction. During these first years after his return Whistler was not popular. Mrs. Meux and Lady Archibald Campbell, (whose portrait is in the Wilstach Collection in Philadelphia under the title, "The Yellow Buskin,") were the only sitters who made their way to the Tite Street studio. "No others came," says M. Duret in his "Whistler."

Although Whistler was one of the best-known men in London through the notoriety he received from his quarrels with his critics and the comments of the press, he was considered more and more as a writer and a fighter and a wit and less and less as a painter. Nevertheless, the brewer's wife was so delighted with the portrait he painted of her in black velvet against a black background, with a great mantle of white fur thrown about her comely shoulders and huge diamonds on her head and about her throat, a picture described as "the State portrait," that she commissioned a second portrait that turned out far more beautiful than the first and is the one recently brought to America.

"There was a story that, being one day not up to the mark, she sent her maid to stand for her, dressed in the sables. This so offended Whistler that promptly the maid's face appeared in place of the mistress's, and if the picture still exists, there it probably remains. It may be true or false, but I certainly heard it at the time."

The second portrait bore one of the characteristic color titles adopted by Whistler, "Harmony in Pink and Gray." The color scheme is one that Whistler apparently particularly loved, as he used it with variations in a number of his finest pictures. It forms a salient contrast to the darker harmonies such as that of the noble Rosa Corder and the "Yellow Buskin," and gives the artist opportunities for lovely passages of flowerlike color such as occur in the "Miss Alexander," the fairest blossom in the whole garden of his art. As a salesroom acquisition the "Lady Meux" is one of the sensations of the season. A great picture by an American painter, its presence here denotes the opening of the post-war season in the private galleries of the country.

'PEACH TREE BOTTLE,' $650.

Returns of $11,073 for the fourth day's sale of the Rufus E. Moore Oriental collection at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon brought the total for the sale to date to $70,990. A decorated "peach tree bottle" brought the highest price of the afternoon, $650, paid by a buyer giving the name of Duff. This was a Chien-lung piece, in famille rose colors, the design showing a large peach tree with nine (the sacred number) peaches, the Chinese fruit of immortality. This is a perfect example of the famous imperial nine-peach bottle.

Henry Simon paid $300 for a famille rose plate on a pedestal stand, a large decorated Yung Cheng vase in peachbloom and blue went to C. T. Loo for $550, and to the same buyer a K'ang-hsi giant club-shaped vase, dragon decoration in gold on a pure white glaze, also for $350, and a large decorated jar with twisted tree trunks and branches with fresh Spring blossoms, in the contrasting browns and pink and white, went to Bernet, agent, for $510. A Ming celadon jardinière, teakwood cover and stand, the latter having a green jade Buddha-hand top, went to N. N. Nichols for $450.

TAKE WOUNDED TO SHOWS.

Friars Provide Theatres Nightly—Lee Shubert Host to 300.

The fourth dinner and entertainment for wounded men at the Friars Club is announced for Sunday night, Feb. 16, when 350 men will be taken care of. The dinner will be made possible by a contribution of $2,000 from George M. Cohan, whose royalties on his war song, "When You Come Back" are being divided among the soldier entertainment funds of the Friars, the Lambs, and the Stage Women's War Relief.

Provision for the entertainment of wounded men in the theatres continues to be liberally made. A delegation of Friars, headed by Jess Dandy, has been providing entertainment nightly for ten to fifteen of the severely maimed from Debarkation Hospital No. 3, in the old Greenhut store. The men were taken last night to "Tillie" at Henry Miller's Theatre, and will be the guests of Nora Bayes tonight. Following the shows they are entertained in the theatre auditoriums by the members of the casts.

Wounded soldiers and sailors from the Ellis Island, Greenhut, and Grand Central Palace Hospitals will attend a special performance at the Strand Theatre at noon today under the auspices of the War Camp Community Service.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

"Monna Vanna."

"Monna Vanna," opera in three acts, by Henri Fevrier, was revived last night at the Lexington Theatre by the Chicago Opera Association. This was the cast:

Monna Vanna	Mary Garden
Prinzivalle	John O'Sullivan
Guido	Georges Baklanoff
Marco	Gustave Huberdeau
Borso	Octave Dua
Torello	Desire Defrere
Trivulzio	Constantin Nicolay

Conductor—Marcel Charlier.

French was the language sung.

This opera was first heard here on Feb. 17, 1914, at the Metropolitan Opera House, with Mary Garden, Vanni Marcoux, and Huberdeau. It had been produced by the Boston Opera Company in December, 1913, and by the present organization Jan. 23, 1918. Miss Garden was the heroine on that occasion, and was greeted with overwhelming applause. The première of the play "Monna Vanna" occurred at the Nouveau Theatre, Paris, May 17, 1902. We had the good fortune to see it a week later and in the distinguished company of Maurice Maeterlinck, whose wife, Georgette Leblanc, was the original Monna. Jean Froment, Darmont, and Lugné Poé were the other principals. The drama enjoyed an immediate success all over Europe from Bergen to Palermo. London alone stood firm against its blandishments. The censor forbade a production, probably because it was not coarse and brutal enough. New York first saw it in English with Bertha Kalich at the old Standard Theatre, Harrison Gray Fiske, manager. But the exact year escapes our memory.

A versatile woman, Georgette Leblanc was first known in opera. She has sung Thaïs, Sapho, La Navarraise, Carmen, Françoise—in Bruneau—Zola's "L'Attaque au Moulin"—and Charlotte Corday. We recall her in song recital when she interpreted the new music of Fauré, D'Indy, Debussy. Her voice was her least artistic asset. As a diseuse she won more honors. She is distinctly a personality. Her hair is of an extraordinary red, her mask a peculiarly expressive one. As you look at her you recall one of those portraits by some old unknown Italian master of a woman whose eyes follow you from the canvas, eyes that peer from beneath tumbled tresses, crowned with a sweeping picture hat. As an actress her methods are halfway between Sarah Bernhardt and—George Leblanc. She has facile diction, is plastic in her poses, and indulges in those undulating serpentine rhythms which are the invention of the "divine Sarah." But she is herself. Her Monna was interesting because, presumably, it was the incarnation of her husband-poet's conception. Curious to relate, we have seen the rôle enacted with more plausibility, more variety, though not with more subtlety. Stella Hohenfels and Joseph Kainz—wonderful actor, the Austrian Edwin Booth—and Reimers, handsome as Maurice Barrymore, as Prinzivalle, gave a vivid performance at the Hofburg Theatre, Vienna, in 1903.

As a play it was a new departure for Maeterlinck. It is almost theatric. In the heyday of his glory Sardou never devised anything more arresting than the dénouement—setting aside any consideration of the psychologic imbroglio. There are weak spots in the dramatic scheme which tax the credulity. However, something of the improbable must always be granted a playwright, be he never so logical. The rapid mental change of Vanna hints at a native-born casuist, an Italian Renaissance type of mind. Her love of Colonna could not have been deep-rooted. But she did not betray him in the tent, and yet she has been adjudged profoundly immoral; in a word, not to put an edge too fine upon the sophistries of the situation, this heroine committed an imaginative infidelity as well as uttering a splendid falsehood. The madness of the finale is the logical outcome of her passion for Prinzivalle. All that has gone before in her life had been a bad dream. The true, the beautiful moment is at hand. It will be both her revenge and her justification.

She goes to Prinzivalle in his cell. "This must end here; it is too perfect. * * * It is one blaze about me and within me. * * * Oh, some death will run its sudden finger round this spark and sever us from the rest!" Thus Browning sings "In a Balcony." In his admiration for the English poet Maeterlinck is second to none.

The play's the thing! though it did not seem to catch the conscience of the composer. Nevertheless, "Monna Vanna" is more grateful to our ears than "Gismonda." There are too many "things" that are set to music in the Sardou libretto, while Maeterlinck deals only with the primal passions, love, jealousy, hatred, conflict of wills. There is more unity in action and mood in the older score. The music is Wagnerian from first to final curtain, but it is cleverly assimilated and swifter, more poignant. The introduction to the third act recalls the third act of "Valkyrs"; so we were not surprised to find Brunhilda pleading, or to hear the chorus shrilly cry the Valkyr theme. In the tent scene, "Tristan and Isolde" reign, as might be expected. The first act has been cut and to its advantage. It is now effective. Of the scenic settings, the Hall of State, with Pisa, the leaning tower and the Duomo, in the middle distance, was the most vital. The spacing of the massive pillars made the picture attractive, that and the luminous atmosphere. All these acts were painted by the company's artist, Peter J. Donigan.

The performance was a memorable one, even if Conductor Charlier did drown the voices of the principals in all the climaxes. Miss Garden, for example, was barely audible at the close of Act. II. This climax is trying and needs nursing, for it taxes the soprano because of its tessitura. But as a rule the orchestra played with refinement. A great artist, both as singer and actor, is the Russian Georges Baklanoff, who impersonated Guido Colonna, a typical husband, who earnestly desired to disbelieve in the fidelity of his wife. He sang with power and expressiveness, occasionally forcing a superb vocal organ. His first act revealed his artistry at its best. In the opening of Act III. his posture was eloquent. His facial play was significant. Huberdeau as the old Colonna was admirable, a true Maeterlinckian father, wise, discreet, pitying. A surprise was John O'Sullivan, another O'Sullivan altogether from the inexplicably mediocre Romeo of last Tuesday night. He sang with more freedom, he acted with more spontaneity. His top notes—and there were several—were delivered without the "white" quality, and the finale of the tent scene was genuinely thrilling. Encores were numerous for Mr. O'Sullivan, and he deserved them, although he was not the strong man of the evening. Baklanoff was. The audience recognised this fact in an unmistakable manner.

As this was our first view of Mary Garden as the mediaeval Judith who fetches to Pisa her beloved Holofernes, Prinzivalle O'Sullivan, we frankly confess that the impressions of her interpretation were so strong that we prefer reserving their recital until we have sifted and sorted these "reactions" in cooler blood. This much may be said: Monna Vanna will rank in her portrait gallery among the finest. It far outshines Gismonda, as Monna herself outshines the incredible, erotic Duchess of Athens. There was no attempt to make a disrobing scandal in the tent scene; that is obviously theatrical film-flam. Miss Garden disposed of the situation simply. She did not appear half nude, but clothed in exquisitely-toned draperies. But if she did not show her lovely form she spilled for us the soul of the heroine who saved her country and lost her reputation. In the opening act she did little, but suggested the psychology of a woman who had begun to loathe a supine husband. Note the nuance with which she uttered "J'rai, mon père," and the repetition when she says it to Colonna. It was like molten steel first; it was cold, rigid steel, the steel of unalterable resolution the second time. Yet how tender is her "si" when she turns to her fuming spouse.

There was tenderness in the tent scene, despair and pride modulating into amazed joyfulness at meeting her early friend in the person of the stern enemy. But the last scene gave us the most moving side of this wonderful woman's art. The shock of incredulity caused by her husband's suspicions, merging into the supreme ecstasy as she grasps the key that is to unlock the future—in sooth, no such acting has been witnessed in this city for a long time. The scale was essentially smaller than Bernhardt's, but as subtle as the art of Sarah were the indications of love triumphant with death staring her in the face. The tiny play of shadows round her eyes and mouth as she sees her lover trapped were touching. That she was a picture in every act is a matter of course. Her slow march to the open door was most impressive. It was a veritable march to the scaffold. Fevrier's music in this last episode rings true. He was called before the curtain with Miss Garden many times. What a pleasure it is to have the French language spoken with pure diction. Decidedly New York deserves French opera.

CARUSO SINGS SAMSON.

Saint-Saens's Opera Given to Big House—Claudia Muzio as Butterfly.

French opera drew a Caruso house last night at the Metropolitan, where the Italian tenor, with Mme. Matzenauer, recently returned, and Mr. Couzinou lately added to the familiar cast, gave Saint-Saëns's "Samson et Dalila" for the third time this season. The historic spectacle with its feats of vocalism and elaborate dances under Mr. Monteux's direction earned much applause.

In the afternoon Miss Farrar was to have sung a postponed matinée of "Madam Butterfly," but was still hoarse, and her place was taken for the first time by Claudia Muzio. The young singer won friends in the rôle, which she had sung abroad and in the West. Mr. Lazaro, new as the hero, was also vocally powerful. His lack of inches beside the tall heroine marred their duet, though Miss Muzio crouched low in her kimonos throughout the first scene, as Emmy Destinn once did in Boston with the tenor Lafitte. Mr. Montesanto sang the Consul and Mr. Moranzoni conducted the matinée.

GOLDMARK'S "REQUIEM."

Philharmonic Plays Work Based on Lincoln's Gettysburg Speech.

Lincoln's Gettysburg speech was printed in last night's Philharmonic program books at Carnegie Hall, its text—of which some words were quoted over phrases of the music—having furnished the theme of Rubin Goldmark's manuscript "Requiem," for which the composer was called on the stage after a stirring performance. The new work was "not intended to be programmatic, except in so far as Lincoln's immortal address called for the certain moods in the composer." Its five unbroken episodes began with trumpet calls of war, then grief for those fallen in battle, an elegy, a martial dirge, and a glowing conclusion.

Themes representing Latin sentences of the "Requiem" and Lincoln's "Government by the people" were developed with a ring of sincerity in the instrumental voices of that fiery finale. There was a wreath for Mr. Goldmark from the New York Bohemians. Harold Bauer in Tschaikovsky's concerto closed the concert, which Mr. Stransky had begun with Bach, nine short pieces, set for orchestra. The entire program will be repeated this afternoon.

The Symphony Society played in the same hall yesterday afternoon, and will again on Saturday night, a program with Toscha Seidel as star in Mendelssohn's violin concerto, in which the most strenuous of the young Russians showed unexpected grace and gentleness of style. Mr. Damrosch also gave a recent "Symphonic Suite" by the Italian de Sabata, and an entire second part of selections from Wagner's "Master Singers," "Parsifal" and "Tristan."

In One Building, Edison Service Saved More Than $11,000 Last Year

The change from the former private plant was made in December, 1917. The figures showing this saving were prepared with the owners. They show that the cost of plant operation for light, power and heat, using high pressure steam, during 1917, with prices figured on the 1918 basis, was $59,291

The cost of equivalent service during 1918, using low pressure steam, with the Edison Supply, was $47,815, a saving of $11,476

This saving, though of large proportions, indicates the difference between wasteful private plant methods and economical, efficient Edison Service

Let our engineers study your plant. Without cost or obligation, they are "At Your Service"

THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

Must the price of bread to all the people be controlled by the standard price of $2.26 per bushel of wheat which the Government must pay to the farmers? It is a grave question, it has many sides, ethical, fiscal, economic. It will not do for the Government or for the Food Administration to make a mistake about it.

The Government must pay the price it promised to pay; nowhere is there any question about that. It made the pledge in order to encourage the farmers to increase their acreage of wheat. The ending of the war could not then be foreseen; it was the Government's purpose to assure abundant production in order that our own needs and the needs of the Allies might be met. The pledge of $2.26 per bushel had the desired effect. It is expected that we shall harvest more than a billion bushels of wheat this year. But the war is over and in the world's markets the price of wheat is now lower than the price the Government must pay. England has canceled her contracts here because she can get wheat cheaper in Australia and the Argentine. But for the Government's guarantee, it is believed that there would be a material fall in the price here. The question is whether the Government, having kept faith with the wheat growers by paying $2.26 per bushel, will then let wheat seek its natural price level in the market. It is a very important question for consumers. A lower price for bread would materially reduce the cost of living.

But Mr. Barnes, President of the Grain Corporation of the United States Food Administration, says this is not to be. He insists that, broadly speaking, it is not true that the world's price for wheat is below the price level fixed by the Government here; that the demands upon this market will exhaust all the 1918 crop surplus. Therefore, the Food Administration is not inclined to adopt the policy of disposing of the surplus at a loss to the National Treasury. Mr. Barnes evidently feels that he is confronted with both a condition and a theory. The condition is a matter of fact, to be determined by time and inquiry. If, notwithstanding our enormous crop of wheat, the price in the free markets of the world shall be maintained at or near the Government level, that would mean that there is still a great scarcity of wheat and the Government's problem would be solved at once. There would be buyers enough to take the wheat at the "pegged" price, and the Treasury would not need to concern itself about any loss. The question whether the Treasury should assume the possible loss is one of theory and we do not think the solution is difficult.

The offer to the farmers was a war measure. If, after the Government has bought all the wheat at $2.26 per bushel, the market price declines and the loss falls upon the Treasury, that loss should be counted as part of the costs of war and should be defrayed like other war costs out of taxes and the proceeds of bond sales. The argument that it would not make much difference to the people whether they made up the Treasury loss by paying high prices for bread or by paying taxes and buying bonds is not sound. That would be equivalent to putting a special tax upon bread to defray the expense of war. It would be wasteful because the profits of middlemen must be considered, which would materially increase the levy upon the pockets of the people above the billion or so the Government might have to take in taxes and by the sale of bonds. But if the price of wheat really is going to fall in the world's markets, the United States Government cannot put itself in the position of maintaining a fixed and extortionate price for the commodity here, not even to avert a loss to the Treasury. There is a principle involved which we cannot too soon take for our guidance in all these matters. It is that the Government as promptly as possible should retire from business, should give up its control of business and prices.

POLAND AND PADEREWSKI.

The formal recognition by the United States of the new Polish Government in which Mr. Paderewski is Premier and Foreign Minister shows the confidence of our Administration, and incidentally of the allied Governments, in the new régime. Precarious as the situation of Poland still is, with wars on every border, a Bolshevist invasion impending, and the country desolated by the German occupation, conditions are considerably better than it seemed possible to hope a few months ago. The Polish people is struggling successfully toward unity. A harmony appears to have been effected between the Paderewski and Pilsudski groups, and it seems that General Pilsudski, whose services to his country before, during, and since the war have been very great, is loyally supporting the Paderewski Government. In the meantime, the strong party in Poland which Paderewski and Dmowski represent, and the Polish colonies abroad, are solidly supporting the administration, and Mr. Dmowski's diplomacy is bearing fruits in the favor with which his country is regarded at Paris.

This favor might profitably be translated into concrete assistance over and above the transfer to Poland of the Polish troops in France, and it is to be hoped that the allied commission now on its way will report promptly and recommend some action. The Peace Conference is doing well to devote immediate attention to the conflict between Poles and Czechs in Silesia; till lately the Czechoslovaks were the only friends of Poland among her immediate neighbors, and Professor Masaryk's well-known political policy makes it exceedingly unlikely that his Government is much to blame for the recent turn of events. If the Peace Conference stops the fighting as soon as possible, it will be for the good of Czechoslovaks and Poles as well.

In any case, the establishment of a genuinely representative and apparently stable Polish Government will materially promote the quieting of Eastern Europe. Mr. Paderewski's personal contribution to this event is very great. His personality and his reputation were factors of enormous value in familiarizing the American people with the character and importance of the Polish question. Almost all of his private fortune has been spent in the national interest. On the platform he spoke as well as he played. And now he seems to have displayed tact and political wisdom of a very high degree in harmonizing the internal conflicts which had threatened to weaken Poland today as they did two hundred years ago. The world has seen a number of eminent politicians, from Nero all the way to William Hohenzollern, who made themselves artists, and bad artists; it is a pleasant contrast to see a great artist developing into a distinguished statesman.

WAR TAX PROGRESS.

It is promised that on Monday we shall know what the conference committee did with the Senate's 602 amendments to the House's War Tax bill. In a general way it is known that the sufficiently high rates of the House bill have been increased. This is announced on the same day that fifteen billions of appropriations and authorizations are canceled in the Emergency bill. The reduction of costs after the armistice is more in keeping with the country's sentiment than the increase of taxes after war profits have ceased actually, although the cessation of hostilities is only technical peace. The bill will make no friends for the Democrats, and they would be glad if somebody or something would relieve them from the odium of it. The bill has not been improved by anything done during the long delay, and public opinion is less tolerant now of burdens which would have been borne more patiently if put upon the taxpayers before the problems of reconstruction had cooled the "win the war" temper.

Congress has been so dilatory that it is necessary to compel others to hurry, and it is expected that the first payment will be required earlier than under the existing law, although the filing of the returns will be later. Last year payments were delayed until the end of May, but it will not be surprising if the first payment is required with the delayed returns, about the middle of next April. That is about the time when subscriptions will be asked for the Victory Loan, and puts problem on problem when either was sufficient. No country ever did, and no country but ours could, both pay such taxes and subscribe a six-billion loan. Incidentally, there are a couple of billions of current funds used in production which are tied up in bank loans by the Government's delay in paying its bills while it is pressing the country to come forward so liberally. The prospect, therefore, is that neither the general public nor the banks will have either the disposition or the ability to lend money free-handedly to either the Government or to industry. There is danger that the funds will be found by shrinking trade rather than from "excess" profits. If the [illegible] had left more with the producers they could and would have been freer with their funds for wages, taxes, and loans at the time when they should have been asked for. In effect, Congress has turned off the forced draught at a time when there is more need of keeping the machinery going full speed than slowing down.

The newspapers are suitably punished for daring to hold and express their views. Chairman Kitchin decided that there should be no bill unless the mail zoning penalty upon the circulation of intelligence was retained. It is reported that he was in a minority among the conferees, as his party is in the country, but it was necessary to pay his price to get a bill even of this sort. It is still an open question whether it was worth while to put such a premium upon obstinacy, and thus invite repetition of obstruction to support personal rather than party policy.

It is now sure that there must be an extra session of Congress, for other reasons than the tax bill, and there is in force a tax bill which would relieve the Government's pressing necessities until a more intelligent and sufficiently productive tax bill could be passed. Will the Republicans favor the Democrats with obstruction until the Treasury proceeds under the present law? The intention to force an extra session was once imputed to the Republicans as a fault by those who now would welcome their help to escape from the hole digged by the Democrats for themselves. But there is now no such hope for a "better hole." The Republicans may debate a little, but they would rather fasten this tax bill upon their opponents than relieve them from their responsibility.

WHICH TUNNEL?

A conference at Albany yesterday resolved to proceed with the negotiation of a new treaty, or amendment of the old treaty, between New York and New Jersey for the sake of unifying the Port of New York and joining the parts with a wagon tunnel. This is good news, for the Governor had been quoted as asking where New York's half of the cost, $12,000,000, was coming from in the present embarrassed condition of the State's finances. There was, and is, apparently no hope that the nation will help the two States with a task which is more national than local, and yet the Postmaster General chooses this time to press his proposal to build a tunnel to carry express and baggage, parcel post packages, and perhaps letters, between the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations in this city.

This will cost an estimate of $1,500,000 to begin with, and nobody can say how much more, as the freight tunnel is extended to other distributing centres. Once there was a tube system which distributed letters as the Postmaster General now wishes to supply facilities to distribute trunks, but he caused its abandonment in favor of motor trucks. The trucks have been a nuisance, and now comes the proposal for a Post Office tunnel for the carriage of light freight. There is before the Senate a proposal that the Post Office should renew the use of the postal letter tubes, which would require only payment to the owners, who presumably have been put into a negotiating frame of mind by the Post Office's arbitrary procedure.

The baggage tunnel may be built later, or the work may be left to the railways, but it seems to be a question of now or never with the wagon tunnel between the two parts of the port for the promotion of the commerce which has been discouraged by the withdrawal of lighterage privileges for war reasons. New Jersey is ahead of New York on the wagon tunnel, having voted its full half, while New York is only able to make a beginning. That will commit the State and the rest will be forthcoming. It will not be reasonable to begin and leave New Jersey alone. As the matter stands New Jersey has purged itself of the imputation of separatism and of the desire for privilege for its side of the harbor. Now it is setting the pace for New York, and perhaps will lend a hand to New York in its desire to get the vehicular tunnel.

THE PROCLAMATION CEREMONY.

Complying with the custom of distributing among eminent characters the pens with which famous official documents are signed, "association" pens, as it were, Mr. Frank L. Polk, Acting Secretary of State, rationed among divers eminent advocates of prohibition the pens with which he signed the proclamation of the ratification of the Prohibition Amendment. Forty-four States have ratified, and it seems almost a pity that the proclamation could not have been postponed until the ratification was made unanimous, if the unregarded four lagging States are not singular enough to have and express an opinion of their own.

How far the emotion of the war and the contempt engendered by it for mere billions contributed to the amazingly easy approval of what seemed to be one of the most controversial and disuniting of reforms "the historian of the future" may be able to understand better or misunderstand more than the living contemporaries of this great act of renunciation of State rights and imposing of asceticism. At any rate, "it is done," as Whittier sang of another amendment, which may politely be described as otiose; and the sincere workers who have passed through a long gauntlet of ridicule are entitled to rejoice in the fruit of their labors.

Mr. Bryan, "beaming with joy," well deserved a pen; and Mr. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League, who used to speak of the Nebraskan's prohibition services with erroneous acrimony, ought to sing a palinode. If, in the wild heat of the race, the Olympian chariot wheels catch fire, the Olympian hubs collide, after the race is won there is glory enough for all the competitors.

To the heads of the great women's temperance societies, to Senator Sheppard of Texas, maker of the Congress resolution to submit the amendment to the Legislatures and an ever-vigilant Dry; to Representative Randall of California, prohibition protagonist of a State with a Dry Legislature and a Wet electorate; to all who witnessed this "historic" signing, whether they got or did not get a pen to treasure and to bequeath as a rich legacy unto their issue, Jan. 29, 1919, will be a memorable day. The Department of State officials mustered to the ceremony are, perhaps, a little callous to these momentous occasions; but on them and on everybody else present the moral effect must have been stimulating. Old convivial Washington, Babylon the great and thirsty, is fallen!

In no spirit of belittlement toward the long, moral activities of Mr. Bryan and his associates, the just memory recalls their predecessors in the days of discouragement, John Peter St. John of Kansas, for example, and, most of all, Neal Dow of Maine. Too lavish importations of West India rum provoked fierce revolt against alcohol in the Dirigo State seventy-odd years ago. Maine established prohibition by law in 1851, and subsequently by constitutional amendment. If prohibition hasn't always been too severely enforced there, at least to Maine belong the laurels of the pioneers. So far as pioneer temperance, a different thing from prohibition, goes, New York might assert priority. In a Saratoga County town, Moreau, 111 years back, a society was formed whose members were not to drink spirits or wine except at public dinners or for sickness. If they did, they were mulcted in the sum of a quarter. Feeble and faint-hearted virtue compared with the heroic ardors of the present, but worth recording. "Pioneers, O pioneers!"

SOCIALISM AND THE POLICE.

There is a difference of opinion between Police Commissioner Enright and the Socialist leaders in this city, a difference which is not called for by the facts and in regard to which plain American citizens will side with the Commissioner. He has called the attention of landlords who are in the habit of renting public halls to persons desirous of holding meetings to the fact that if they rent them to persons preaching sedition or anarchy or violence they will get into trouble. The Socialist leaders have taken this to themselves, and Mr. Algernon Lee, who heads the Socialist delegation in the Board of Aldermen and is also one of the triumvirate who plunged the Socialist Party of the nation into its recent dubious course, attempts to make a partisan case out of the Commissioner's action. He says that hall owners "have no more to fear from "renting to Socialists than to Demo-"crats, Republicans, or Prohibition-"ists."

It so happens that Mr. Lee was one of those responsible for inducing the Socialist Party to declare, early in 1917, in favor of "mass resistance" to the Conscription act, the other two being Victor L. Berger, just convicted of violating the Espionage act, and Morris Hillquit. That seditious declaration still remains the Socialist creed. It has never been repented of or disavowed. It is also a fact, as Mr. Lee knows, that many Socialists—and he will not deny that they are a majority—have been hostile to our allies and have gone as far as they dared in breeding disaffection with our own part in the war.

If public speakers spread the doctrines of disloyalty, if they encourage the sort of anarchy that is raging in Russia and hint that it would be well to bring it about here, they and the hall owners incur certain dangers, and the police are merely doing their duty in delivering this information to the latter. That the danger is real is shown by the fact that such speakers are still being convicted and sentenced to prison terms. It is of no use for Mr. Lee to say that his party is being discriminated against. His party has nothing to fear if it does not preach sedition and anarchy—anarchy, Mr. Lee will observe, not in the economic or political sense, but in the old-fashioned dictionary sense. He says that "the doctrine of the Socialist party is the antithesis of anarchy." As a philosophy it is; but Mr. Lee and his associates succeeded in converting it into something that bears a very close resemblance to anarchy in the judicial sense, and must take the responsibility.

Many of them, utterly disregarding such Socialists as Maria Spiridonova, openly side with the Bolsheviki in Russia and lend encouragement to the I. W. W. in this country; and it is cheap and small for them to call attention to their philosophy when they themselves have outgrown it and use it now only as a mask. What would Karl Marx say of Lenine or of the I. W. W.? As for anarchy, it is not philosophic anarchy but criminal anarchy that the law aims to suppress; and criminal anarchy means violence and revolution and chaos. It makes no difference whether that kind of anarchy is preached by a Republican, a Democrat, or a Socialist. Rosa Luxemburg was as far as possible from being an anarchist in philosophy, but the truest possible type of anarchy in action. That kind of anarchy we will not have in these United States; and persons who dislike the penalties for it need not preach it, whatever party they may belong to, or whatever social philosophy they may pretend to subscribe to.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Big Profit from a Bad Bargain.

As several correspondents of The Times have already revealed by means of appreciative letters, the field glasses which the Government was forced to "borrow" for the use of its sailors when it went into the war are beginning to come back to their original owners—and to come back almost infinitely increased in value by the marks of hard handling which most of them bear. For thus these once prosaic utensils have been made into precious relics and souvenirs. Every mark and mar and stain on them is proof that they have helped to win the great victory, and to have one of these war-worn treasures is also evidence that its possessor made a willing sacrifice, small but real, when a need of his country was brought to his attention.

This whole matter of the binoculars has been managed admirably. It was businesslike to just the extent compelled by the law forbidding our Government to accept gifts from anybody, but a wise Assistant Secretary of the Navy knew that most people would prefer giving to selling, and that for once it was permissible, keeping the letter of the law, to violate its spirit. For every glass, therefore, he sent a draft on the Federal Treasury for $1, saying in a prettily worded letter that if the glasses survived the war and could be returned, the dollar should be considered rent, while if they were lost it would be their price.

That was a miserable bargain, from one point of view, but a most excellent bargain from another, and it was the other view that hundreds and hundreds of people took. Some of them cashed the little checks and some did not. Either course was correct, or at least easily defensible, but the first was probably a little the better of the two, for bookkeeping reasons, and anybody who prefers not to keep the dollar has his choice among a dozen or a score of ways to make it serve a public purpose.

A Bright Future Is Dawning.

Sincere satisfaction will be felt all over the country as a result of the announcement just sent out by the merchant tailors assembled in national convention near the sounding sea in Atlantic City. For they promise all and sundry that the garments to be made for men in the coming year are to have unusual merits—merits that every man desires his clothes to have. They are, it seems, to be "sprightly without conspicuousness," which is certainly a good beginning, but it is only a beginning. In addition to sprightliness without conspicuity, they are to be "dashing without verging on extremes, youthful in temperament and inspirational."

All that is much, but it is not too much. Long enough have women alone commanded the artists who could produce habiliments worthy thus to be described, and men long ago should have demanded and insisted on getting the equal rights now so convincingly promised.

Some men may have secret doubts about their ability to wear as they should be worn clothes sprightly, dashing, youthfully temperamental, and inspirational, but if the men all do their best they will rival the angels, who, as is well known, can do no more than that.

As regards prices the tailors in council seem to have said nothing. Presumably the prices will deserve the same characterizations as the clothes, so everything will be harmonious and consistent, and everybody will be happy.

GOV. ALLEN'S CHARGES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with interest your editorial in yesterday's paper in answer to the somewhat wild statements of Governor Allen in regard to the fearful slaughter of our troops in France, incidentally attributing it to their improper or unwise handling by their commanders.

In your figures giving the losses in the civil war, as compared with those in France, it occurs to me that you have hardly made the case as strong as it should be. Stating the strength of regiments, you have included their total enrollment during their term of service; and, taking their actual losses in some single battle, the percentage based on this enrollment is far from the facts, as in none of these engagements was there any such strength of regiment present.

It must be borne in mind that in the civil war our full complement of a regiment of infantry was about 1,000, and of cavalry about 1,200, whereas, under present organization, our regiments are about 3,000.

At Cold Harbor the 8th New York Heavy Artillery lost 207 officers and men killed or fatally wounded, which would be less than 9 per cent. of the total enrollment as given by you, but as a matter of fact was more than 25 per cent. of the men actually engaging in the battle. Similar facts pertain to the 1st Maine Heavy Artillery at Petersburg. Many regiments at Gettysburg during the three days' fighting of that single battle lost in killed and fatally wounded more than one-quarter of the men participating. The regiment which I commanded—the 7th Michigan Cavalry—which led the charge in the Custer cavalry fight July 3, numbered but 478 men at that morning roll call. The losses of the regiment in killed and wounded were exactly 100, which fact is inscribed on the Custer Monument on the battlefield.

The losses in cavalry regiments during the civil war were generally much less than in the infantry and artillery commands.

It is very probable that there were commanders in the recent campaign in France whose courage, impetuosity, and personal bravery moved them to do things that might be called reckless, but they won; and that is what they were there for. You cannot do real fighting and "go over the top" without loss of life.

It will be a sad return for the splendid service that our troops have recently performed over there if their acts are to be the subject of unfriendly criticism by stay-at-homes here, no matter what their standing or position may be.

NEW ALBANIAN GOVERNMENT

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an article of mine which appeared in the columns of your newspaper on Oct. 20 last, I discussed the problem of Albania in relation to the attitude of the Entente Allies toward it, with especial regard to the treatment of Albania by the victorious Allies. I asked the pertinent question whether the Albanians would be allowed to form a Government of their own. The answer to my question came last week in an official cablegram from the new Albanian Minister for Foreign Affairs, addressed to the Pan Albanian Federation "Vatra" of America, dated Jan. 23, which announced the formation of the new Albanian Government at the provisional capital, Durazzo.

Minister of Finance—FEIZI BEY ALIZOTI, formerly Minister of the Interior.

Ministers without Portfolio—MUFID BEY LIBOHOVA, MICHAEL BEY TURTULLI, MIDHAT BEY FRASHERI, and Mgr. BUMCHI, Catholic Bishop of Alessio.

The formation of this new Cabinet, in which the Nationalist Party holds the majority of the posts, is the outcome of the will of the Albanian people as expressed by the National Assembly which has been sitting at Durazzo ever since Dec. 23, 1918. Moreover, the new Government is made up, as is seen from the list, indiscriminately of Catholic, Moslem and Orthodox Albanians.

The constitution of this new Government marks ipso facto the re-entrance of Albania as a potent factor in the Balkan affairs. The Ministry has already set out to obtain its recognition on the part of the Entente Allies, that of Italy having been necessarily secured beforehand, owing to the Italian occupation of the major part of Albania, and for the admission of the Albanian delegation in the Peace Conference, according to the contents of the same cablegram.

The establishment of the new Government shows, on the other hand, that Italy has definitely committed herself to the policy of the restoration of Albania as an independent State, and for this the Albanians have but to express their deep gratitude to the Government of Rome.

C. A. CHEKREZI,

JUGOSLAVS NOT ENEMIES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

According to the newspapers, Mr. La Guardia, at the meeting in the Metropolitan Opera House last Sunday, in honor of Italy, denounced the claims of the Jugoslavs and insisted that the pretensions of the Jugoslavs were the machinations of imperial Austria. "There is," he said, "a great difference between the Czechoslovaks and the Jugoslavs—the Czechoslovaks fought with us and the Jugoslavs against us."

When Mr. La Guardia mentioned the Jugoslavs he omitted to tell that among these Jugoslavs are included the Serbians, and that there is no difference between Serbian and Jugoslav claims. But even if he had in mind only those Jugoslavs who were former subjects of Austria, the assertions of Mr. La Guardia are very ungenerous.

Czechoslovaks and the Jugoslavs, as well as all other races subject to Austria, among them the Italians in Austria, fought in the Austrian Army because they were compelled to do so. Jugoslav prisoners went over to the Serbians and Russians and formed volunteer legions. In Russia were two divisions of Jugoslav volunteers, and in the battle of the Dobrudja a public declaration of the Russian General Staff said that they saved the honor of the allied flags. When the Serbians broke through the Bulgarian lines Jugoslav blood from Slovenia and Croatia was as freely shed as Jugoslav blood from Serbia. If the Jugoslavs as such have not been officially recognized as Allies, they have to thank for it Italy, which tries now to depict them as enemies. Even in Italy Jugoslav war prisoners sent repeated and urgent appeals to be allowed to form volunteer legions, but Sonnino constantly refused. The reason is now obvious.

Every one knows that the internal collapse of Austria broke the backbone of the Central Powers. And the Jugoslavs were one, if not the main, factor in bringing this about.

The Jugoslavs in America, mostly American citizens, are a substantial element in the American mining and steel industry, and they have done well their "bit" during the war. How they feel at such utterances of an American Congressman everybody can easily understand.

THE MIST.

I had forgotten that old fear
I knew in some far childhood year,
But, as I moved, the building wall
Of mist grew thicker, hiding all.
Then, I remembered . . . and the thought
Again upon my spirit wrought,
Shaping a world all limitless—
A vastitude of loneliness,
A world where save myself was none,
The rest—a figment of my own!
It was a dream—there could not be
Others, like-fashioned unto me;
My moving feet—no other feet;
My heart a-throb—no other beat;
My straining sight—no other sight—
All, all alone, in kinless plight!

In that far childhood time of dread,
Through the white void, I, startled, fled,
And, running, stumbled . . . Arms reached out
To pick me up—I breathed my doubt:
"Oh, are you you—or only It?"
I know not if he made reply;
But friendly was the stranger's arm
That snatched me from the mist's cold charm.

So I was glad when, yesterday,
And though in silence on we passed,
My lonely selfhood off I cast,
Were those could answer to my call.

ARMY PROMOTIONS REVIVED

Baker Modifies Order Issued When Armistice Was Signed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Secretary Baker has issued instructions modifying the prohibition against promotion of officers promulgated immediately after the armistice was signed. He has authorized General Pershing to make such promotions as vacancies in his command may permit, and the same practice will be followed with respect to the army in the United States.

"This relaxation of the rule with regard to promotions," a memorandum issued today said, "does not invite a departure from the principle hitherto established that promotions cannot be made merely as a reward for past services, however meritorious. The rule is relaxed only to permit the army which remains undemobilized to be treated as a living organization with such promotions as would be normal in times of peace to fill vacancies existing or as they may arise."

The new policy applies up to and including the grade of Colonel, and under it officers, both line and corps, who are holding commands or details which should carry with them higher rank than the holders now have will be advanced. This is to be accomplished in the army overseas, even though there may be officers of proper rank for such places, General Pershing being authorized to fill vacancies by promotion rather than by transfer where, in his judgment, that course is wise. He also is directed to send home any surplus officers.

WELCOMES BARNARD STATUE

Manchester Guardian Declares City Will Be Glad to Accept It.

MANCHESTER, Jan. 30.—The Manchester Guardian, in announcing that the Anglo-American Society has decided to offer the Barnard statue of Lincoln to Manchester, comments upon the offer as very good news.

"As Manchester petitioned to have this fine work," says the Guardian, "there can be no question of the gift being accepted with open arms. The intimate trade relations between our city and America and the historic incident of Lancashire's patient acceptance of the heavy trials brought on her by the American civil war, besides the hearty good will which we, like all Englishmen, but in perhaps special degree, bear to our great ally, have doubtless combined to recommend our petition and will make the position of the statue here a permanently appropriate memorial. It is a noble and original work and deserves for its own sake, as well as for that of its great original, all the honor we can give it."

MANY GO HOME TO EUROPE.

More Than 3,000 Italians and Greeks Apply for Passports.

It was necessary yesterday to double the staff of the Intelligence Bureau at the Custom House to meet the rush of Italian and Greek workingmen who are seeking passports to return to their native lands. More than 3,000 of them, most of whom told the Customs officials they wished to return home to assist in the support of relatives whose breadwinners were either killed or disabled by the war, are expected to sail Saturday on the steamship Giuseppi Verdi for Naples and Genoa. In most cases the passports were issued.

Of those who plan to leave on the Verdi, two-thirds were Italians. Of the 1,000 Greeks a considerable number said they wanted to return to Greece to serve in the army. The applicants of both nationalities were from all parts of their countries, and some had come here ten or fifteen years ago.

PLAN A HEALTH CAMPAIGN.

Plans were made yesterday at a meeting in the Municipal Building attended by representatives of the American Red Cross and officials of the Community Councils of National Defense for co-operation in carrying out the proposed health program of the former organization. This plan, if successful, it was said, would make the Red Cross the most effective health agency in the United States.

Dr. John Willis Slaughter, Director of the Community Councils, said that physicians and nurses returning from abroad held the opinion that health was a social problem, to be handled by the community as a whole. Mildred Taylor, Organization Secretary of the Community Councils, explained a plan whereby all citizens able to do public service were systematically enrolled in whatever capacity they were fitted to work. Mrs. George White, Executive Secretary of the Red Cross, spoke of the need of co-operation in the work, and Jane Pincus, identified with settlement work, spoke in a similar vein.

ROOSEVELT AS A BOY TOPIC OF HIS PASTOR

TRIBUTE BY JAMES M. BECK

The panorama of the life of Theodore Roosevelt from youth to manhood was portrayed yesterday at a memorial service in the Church of St. Nicholas, Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street, where he was confirmed and where he worshipped with his family. Pew 104 in the fourth row was vacant, and a wreath placed there symbolized the lack in the life of America since Colonel Roosevelt's death.

James M. Beck, former United States Attorney General, was on the program for an address, and had planned to speak briefly. But he was so carried away by the solemn occasion that he paid a spontaneous tribute to his old friend, and in a voice and manner of unusual eloquence held forth for about an hour and a half.

The Rev. James M. Ludlow, pastor of the church when the parents of young Theodore Roosevelt first took their son to it, told many interesting reminiscences of the youth, whose acquaintance even in those days predicted that he would make his mark, but because of the lad's versatility none could predict in which field he would shine. The Rev. James Malcolm MacLeod presided. A memorial address was also delivered by the Rev. William I. Chamberlain. Colonel Roosevelt's favorite hymn, "How Firm a Foundation ye Sainte of the Lord," was sung.

In his address Mr. Beck described the funeral at Oyster Bay and it seemed to him remarkable to observe in the [illegible] persons in the cemetery so many men with whom Theodore Roosevelt had had acute differences. "But all was forgotten and all differences vanished in love for him when this great man's body was lowered to his last resting place," said Mr. Beck.

"Rheims Cathedral cannot be adequately viewed from the front steps," he continued. "One cannot judge the beauty of those two great towers unless one observes them in due perspective. So it is with a great man such as Theodore Roosevelt. He must be seen in perspective. Some men, as time passes, become great mountains, others diminish in stature. While modesty of judgment ought to be preserved in the presence of the dead I hazard nothing when I say that Theodore Roosevelt was one of the great characters of history, that he opened a new epoch in American history. One thing about him to which no one knew him could dissent was that he was a very noble man. He never had truer friends than in the last years when he had no official credentials except in the title of love and sympathy we all had for him.

"Many who were his bitterest enemies became his warmest friends. In his second administration some of us could not agree with all he said. We shared a distrust that we now see was unjustified. The first time I saw him was at the funeral of President McKinley. I saw him as a young slender man of 43 on whose shoulders had fallen, at an age when no predecessor had assumed such duties, the tremendous responsibility of the greatest constitutional ruler of the world.

"He proved himself a superman. He accomplished things that are not for the day, but for all time. If he had done nothing but his work for civil service reform, for the consolidation and building of a colonial policy, for the building of the Panama Canal, he would have raised himself to the ranks of the foremost of Presidents.

"President Roosevelt's statesmanlike acts made his Administration one of the most brilliant in our history. The net result of his life and work is that he was tried by the arduous standard of things done, and among those accomplishments was that of lifting a nation of 100,000,000 to a higher altitude of thought and action. There must be unspeakable pride in the hearts of all those in this church that it was his dominant energy that made him a preacher and a crusader."

In England, said Mr. Beck, he was told this story concerning Colonel Roosevelt. It appears that the Kaiser and the Colonel were present at a great Court function in London, and as they were leaving Buckingham Palace the Kaiser turned to Mr. Roosevelt and said: "Colonel, I want to see you before you leave London. Come tomorrow at 2 and I can give you forty-five minutes." "Very good, your Majesty," replied Roosevelt. "I shall be there at 2, but unfortunately I cannot spare more than twenty minutes."

As the years go by, said Mr. Beck, the achievements of Colonel Roosevelt will loom larger and larger, and it will be seen that he is typical of the new American who came into being at the time of the Spanish war. It would be necessary to go back almost to the renaissance, he thought, to find so versatile a human being as the late President.

Dr. Ludlow said he had the tenderest loving memory "of the boy who sat in that pew." He told of becoming pastor of the church fifty years ago and of how four years later, when the new building was opened the parents of Theodore Roosevelt came to worship there. "Theodore Roosevelt, the youth, was quickminded, and he had a marvelous power of observing passing things," Dr. Ludlow continued. "He thought of what he saw. Some one once asked him in what part of the body the mind was located. He replied 'In Theodore Roosevelt it is right back of the eyeballs.'

"We all predicted that he would make his mark, but where that would be was uncertain, he was so versatile. Whether his mark would be on the north pole or in the field of literature, we did not know, but we never dreamed that he would mark it on the walls of the White House or on the locks of the Panama Canal. He was always the great big boy of the people."

"It is fitting that we should hold this memorial service here, because it was in this church that Theodore Roosevelt first publicly confessed his faith forty-four years ago," said Dr. MacLeod. "In this temple he was confirmed, and he sat in that fourth pew with his parents and the other members of his family in the first years of Dr. Ludlow's ministry."

"Theodore Roosevelt was bigger than any creed, bigger than any church or denominational harness of any kind. He belonged to what we hope will be the Great American Church. He loved all the churches, Protestant, Jewish, and Catholic. His passing away brought sorrow into every religious fellowship in our land. He was a great American and a great Christian."

PRESBYTERIAN GOAL SET.

Church Will Aim to Raise $1,750,000 of $10,000,000 Fund.

The Interchurch Emergency Campaign Committee announced yesterday that the Presbyterian Church, which in co-operation with thirteen other churches will seek in February to raise a fund of $10,000,000 for reconstruction work by the churches, has fixed $1,750,000 as its goal in the national effort.

A half million dollars of this budget is to be used for practical aid to returning soldiers and sailors and will be disbursed through the New Era Movement, and $500,000 will be used for the reconstruction of churches in France, Belgium, and Italy. It is also stated that $250,000 will be used to equip Presbyterian Chaplains for overseas duties.

BOARD EXTENDS SEA FREIGHT CUT

Tariffs from South Atlantic and Gulf Ports Also Reduced About Two-thirds.

TO MEET BRITISH RATES

Shipping Board Reported Prepared to Cut Still Deeper, if Necessary, to Hold Its Business.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. — Another wholesale rate reduction, this time for shipments from South Atlantic and Gulf ports to the United Kingdom, Holland, Belgium, France, and Italy, which, it is believed, will make it possible for American shipping to compete with the tonnage of Great Britain and other foreign nations was announced tonight by the United States Shipping Board. The new rates are for shipments other than cotton, the reduced rates for the latter commodity having been announced on Tuesday, immediately following the new British schedule.

It is understood that the rates announced tonight meet the British rate reductions for the same rates. The new rate for commodities in general from South Atlantic ports to the United Kingdom are now to be $1.07½ per 100 pounds, while the war rate was $2.95 per 100 pounds. From Gulf ports the new rate will be $1.15 per 100 pounds, as compared with the war rate of $3.20. Quotations are also made for shipments by the cubic foot. Reductions to other European countries named are on a similar scale.

In a recent announcement the Shipping Board slashed the rates on the majority of commodities from North Atlantic ports to the United Kingdom to $1 per 100 pounds, a drop of about 66 2-3 per cent. This action was taken at a meeting of the board last Monday, after the announcement had been received of a 66 2-3 per cent. cut by the British Government. The rates announced tonight represent approximately a 66 2-3 per cent. reduction.

Special Gulf Port Reductions.

In order to meet competition in shipping rates from Gulf ports the Shipping Board, in addition to the general decreases announced, sets a flat rate of $1 per 100 pounds on shipments from Gulf ports to Liverpool, England, on starch, spelter, sulphur, steel billets, lead billets and canned goods.

The rates announced tonight do not apply to vessels on trips to the United States from foreign ports, but it is stated that rates on these routes will be quoted upon application. The new rates for shipments from South Atlantic and Gulf ports will take effect today.

The shipping which leaves the United States from Southern ports has increased appreciably since the war as a result of a policy adopted of shipping much material to seaboard over Southern railway routes in order to avoid rail congestion. The new rates will therefore apply to a large volume of business, it is predicted.

There have been reports that further rate reductions might soon be announced by Great Britain in the competition for trade. If that proves to be the case, it is understood that the United States Shipping Board is prepared to meet them. It is asserted here that, even with the great reductions of shipping rates from all Atlantic and Gulf ports announced this week, a reasonable profit remains for shipping interests under the new conditions brought about by the cessation of hostilities abroad and the release of much shipping for commercial purposes.

The Shipping Board rates will apply to all shipping under its control and undoubtedly will force other shipping interests to meet the reductions.

Bunker Licenses.

In order to aid American shipping interests in the trade competition, the War Trade Board announced today that hereafter a bunker license would be issued at an American port for all bunker fuel and ship's stores aboard the vessel, or to be taken aboard, without requiring the submission of detailed information. The license will be valid at all subsequent American ports at which the vessel may touch on her voyage. That is, the original bunker license taken out at the first American port will hold good whenever additional fuel and stores are needed at subsequent American ports on voyage.

The Italian Government has now put on import restrictions, and the War Trade Board has been asked by the High Commissioner for Italy to announce that the following have been imposed upon the importation of leather and shoes into Italy:

1. Imports of leather of any kind and shoes from any foreign country and for account of private concerns have been prohibited.

2. These restrictions are consequently extended also to the placing of any private contract abroad for the purchase of the above commodities.

3. No authorization will be given for the transportation of leather or shoes from countries of origin.

PROF. REINACH HONORED.

He Speaks on Hebrew Teachings Before the Judaeans.

At a meeting held in his honor by the Judaeans, a society of Jewish scholars and artists, in the Hotel McAlpin last night, Professor Theodore Reinach of Paris compared the ancient Hebrew teachings with the doctrines which control the world of today. He said that the two great principles for which the foremost living statesmen are now contending at the Conference at Versailles are the principles of social justice and established peace; and that these were the very doctrines announced by the Jewish prophets twenty-five hundred years ago.

Professor Reinach, who is also a Colonel in the French Army, asserted that the Hebrew religion may be called the most modern of all the religions, because its chief tenets are those of the leading thinkers of our day.

Louis Marshall, an earlier speaker, paid a high tribute to Professor Reinach as a historian and scholar, and also spoke of the memorable work done by his brother, Professor Solomon Reinach, who had been largely responsible for the revulsion of feeling in France in favor of Captain Dreyfus. "This instance of a country reversing itself, as did France in the Dreyfus case, was one of the greatest events in history," said Mr. Marshall.

The sale of the second part of the library of Herschel V. Jones of The Minneapolis Journal was concluded at the Anderson Galleries yesterday afternoon. The session brought $48,130.75. The highest price was $14,250, paid by George D. Smith, for Catalogue No. 1,167, the first edition of John Milton's "Comus," London, printed for Humphrey Robinson, 1637. The underbidder was the Rosenthal Company of Philadelphia. The sum paid for the work is a record price.

The volume, which is a small quarto, was in the Bridgewater Library from the time of its publication until the library was purchased by Henry E. Huntington, about one year ago, and has always been mentioned among the first of its treasures. The Bridgewater crest was impressed upon its sides when it was rebound in full calf about the year 1800. This copy was one of the duplicates in Mr. Huntington's collection, and, having what he considered a more desirable example, he sold the book at the Anderson Galleries last year. After a spirited competition, Mr. Smith obtained it for $9,200. He subsequently turned it over to Mr. Jones for about $10,000.

No. 1,168—"Justa Edouardo King Naufrago, at Amici's Moerentibus," Cambridge, 1638, first edition of the volume, containing the first appearance of Milton's "Lycidas," the first part consisting of verses by various writers on the death of Edward King in the Irish Sea in 1637; George D. Smith	$4,400

POLITE MEN HOLD UP STORE.

Apologize to Proprietor of 11th Av. Place as They Rob Him.

A tall man, with excellent manners, and three assistants held up the confectionery store of August Burke, at 58 Eleventh Avenue, last night. They took $80 in bills and about $20 in small change from the cash register, and departed after handing Burke back his watch with the remark that it was not worth taking.

Burke was in his store alone just after 6 o'clock, when the tall man came in. He walked to the rear where there are small tables, and as the proprietor started back to wait on the supposed customer he heard the door open and three others enter.

"What will you have?" he asked the customer who stood by a table pulling off his gloves. As he spoke he felt something poked against his back and a gruff voice bade him not to turn around.

"I guess I will have your hands up," said the first man, as though there had been no interruption.

Up went Burke's hands.

"My dear Sir," said the leader, "I am very sorry, but times are hard and necessity drives."

When the register had been rifled and the proprietor's watch taken and returned, the tall man took the revolver and kept Burke with "eyes front" while his pals went out and got into an automobile. Then as he was about to leave he said, "Pardon me," and a soda water bottle came down on Burke's head.

When the victim came to the thieves had departed. An ambulance surgeon dressed his wound, and the police are trying to trace the robbers.

REGENTS DISCLOSE AMERICANIZATION PLAN

ALBANY, Jan. 30.—Extensive plans for combatting adult illiteracy in the State were disclosed today by Chester S. Lord, Acting Chancellor of the State Board of Regents, in a visit to Governor Smith. Arrangements are also being made for a Congress of educators to handle the State's educational problems. It is planned to divide the State into zones to attack illiteracy, which is greatly on the increase, according to Chancellor Lord.

"We would establish a teachers' institute in every centre, which should teach teachers how to approach the foreigner on the subject of education. We would establish classrooms in the schools, in the factories, anywhere, by propaganda, and by publicity. We would endeavor to interest the residents of the State in this Americanization," Mr. Lord told the Governor.

The Governor told the members of the Board of Regents that he would co-operate with them in any way possible to aid in the administration of the schools, so that equal opportunity for obtaining an education shall be provided for all children in the State.

"I should like to see every boy and girl whose home is either in the country or the city and whose parents are either engaged on the farm in the shop, or the factory, or the business house, and whose income is the earning capacity of their day's labor, given the same opportunity to obtain an education to fit them for the service which they must render, that is offered by the school system to the boy and girl who come from the home of favored opportunities and where the financial considerations are not so pressing," the Governor said. "I will do anything in my power to promote your plans for Americanization and for the betterment of educational conditions generally. I pledge you with all my heart and soul my vigorous and forceful support."

Roland Hayes in Plantation Songs.

Recalling the "Jubilee" singers, Roland Hayes, tenor, accompanied by Harry T. Burleigh at the piano, finished a formal début in Aeolian Hall last night with a number of negro "spirituals" or plantation songs, racy of the flavor of the old soil and old times in Georgia, where he was born. He is one of those with natural voices, who have not lost in cultivation that rare gift of unctious humor and pathos of his race. His "Peter, Go Ring Dem Bells" set one's feet unconsciously stepping to ragtime, and earned an uproarious recall in "Didn't It Rain?" The young man's enunciation was remarkable, not least so in the dream from Massenet's "Manon," which he sang in good French. There were other songs by Burleigh, and an air from the English "Hiawatha," by Coleridge-Taylor.

Jury Disagrees in Inch Case.

The jury which tried Mrs. Betty Inch on the charge of attempting to extort $215 from Eugene P. Herrman of 675 Riverside Drive reported to Justice Weeks in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court last night that it was unable to agree on a verdict and was discharged. Mrs. Inch was remanded to the Tombs pending renewal of her bail bond of $5,000 today. The jury had deliberated from 5 o'clock until nearly midnight. Mrs. Inch, who is a moving picture actress, contended the money was for "May Hayes," who had gone to Palm Beach and could not be forced to testify here.

ITALY'S TRAGEDIAN, NOVELLI, DIES AT 67

GAINED HIS FAME AT 25

PARIS, Jan. 30, (Havas.)—Ermete Novelli, the Italian actor and manager, who appeared in the United States in 1907-08, is dead. He was born in 1851, and since 1900 has been manager of theatres in Rome.

Ermete Novelli, the famous Italian actor, whose versatility is said to have been the keynote of his success, was born in Lucca, May 5, 1851, and his first appearance on the stage was in 1866, but he had reached his twenty-fifth birthday before his name became familiar in the larger cities. His father acted as prompter for a low-grade theatrical company, and his mother died when he was little more than a baby. The company to which his father belonged disbanded during the war and Ermete went to work as a waiter in a small restaurant. At the first opportunity he returned to the stage and played small parts in nondescript traveling troupes.

Gradually his talent, both as a comedian and tragedian, was recognized, and by 1886 he had begun to rank among the prominent actors of his own land, and his tours extended into Spain, South America, Austria, Egypt, Germany, and Russia. Two years later he took Paris by storm. Novelli had played most successfully Hamlet, King Lear, Shylock, Macbeth, Othello, Louis XI., Rabagas, Michel Perrin, Corrado (in "La Morte Civile,") Colonel Schwartze, (in "Magda,") Moretti, (in "Le pain d'autrui;") also in "Papa Lebonnard," "Le Petit Haydn," "Ma Femme Manque de Chic," "Jalousie," "L'Alleluia," "Don Pietro Caruso," "L'Apres," "Le Drame Nouveau," "La Macchina per Volare," "Resurrection," "La Vie Publique," "Il Burbero Benefico," and others. In December, 1900, he opened the Casa Goldoni in Rome, a theatre on the same lines as the Comédie Française in Paris, but was forced to abandon the scheme through lack of support.

The noted actor was enthusiastically received on his visit to the United States in 1907-08, being seen here first March 18, 1907, at the Lyric Theatre in the rôle of Papa Lebonnard, in Jean Aicard's comedy of the same name. Novelli wrote a tragedy entitled "La Masque," which was produced in 1911.

McGRAW IS A WITNESS

Long Hearing Is Held Behind Closed Doors, with Both Sides Represented by Counsel.

The Hal Chase case, which has been hanging fire since last August, was heard yesterday before President John A. Heydler at the headquarters of the National League. After hearing witnesses for both Chase and the Cincinnati Club for more than five hours, Mr. Heydler reserved decision. He said he would give the evidence careful and thorough consideration before making a finding. The hearing was held behind closed doors.

Chase is charged by President Herrmann and Manager Christy Mathewson of the Cincinnati Club with violating Section 40 of the League Constitution. This section is as follows: "Any person who shall be proven guilty of offering, agreeing, conspiring or attempting to cause any game of ball to result otherwise than on its merits under the playing rules, shall be forever disqualified by the President of the league from acting as umpire, manager or player, or in any other capacity in any game of ball participated in by a league club."

It was not until after the hearing yesterday that it was announced officially just what the charges against Chase were. It is five months since Mathewson made the charges against Chase. The reason given by the league for the delay is that at the time the charges were made in August, President Tener had resigned and the organization had no President. The league did not elect Mr. Heydler in Mr. Tener's place until December.

Chase was suspended in August and his salary cut off. He brought suit against the Cincinnati Club for back salary, and this case is now pending in the courts.

As Manager Mathewson is in France, his deposition was read at the hearing yesterday. So was the deposition of Pol Perritt, one of the Giants' pitchers. No official of the Cincinnati Club was present, but three players were heard—Mike Regan, the pitcher; Earl Neale, the outfielder, and Jimmy Ring, a pitcher. Manager McGraw of the Giants also testified.

It seems that Perritt claims that Chase approached him at the Polo Grounds with some sort of a mysterious proposition or other about a game he was to pitch. Perritt is said to have told McGraw, and that is the way McGraw happened to figure in the case. Besides Chase, those who testified for his side of the case were I. O. De Passe and L. E. Rich, both of this city, and Sid Mercer, a New York newspaper man. These three were character witnesses for Chase.

John Conway Toole, Mr. Heydler's counsel, sat with him during the hearing, while Chase was represented by three lawyers, Rudolph L. Churerg, J. Franklin Tausch and Harry Cheriet.

Manager McGraw and several others waited around until the hearing was finished, for it was believed that possibly the verdict might be given out at that time. However, Mr. Heydler named no date on which the finding would be announced. There is no doubt that Manager McGraw is displaying unusual interest in the hearing, and this has given weight to the report that if Chase is vindicated of the charges against him, he will come to the Giants. President Herrmann has stated that no matter what disposition President Heydler makes of the case, Chase will not play with Cincinnati again.

The fact that Manager McGraw so willingly permitted such a valuable assistant as Pat Moran to negotiate for the job as manager of the Reds is also taken as an indication that New York will have the first claim on Chase's services, if he is cleared. If President Heydler decides that Chase is guilty, he will be barred from baseball for all time.

G. W. GRANT BUYS BRAVES.

George Washington Grant, a motion picture and theatrical promoter of this city, yesterday bought the controlling interest in the Boston Baseball Club of the National League. While a New York banking concern, Millet, Roe & Hagen, owned the controlling stock, it was held by their Boston representative, Arthur C. Wise, the Boston banker, who was Vice President of the club, and has run its affairs since the resignation of Percy Haughton last Summer.

Grant was advised to buy the club by Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants, who became acquainted with Grant when the Giants and White Sox made the trip around the world in 1913. Grant was in London at that time. He was in the motion picture business, and was also backing the roller skating sport, which was enjoying great popularity abroad at that time.

The price paid by Grant has not been made known, but it is said to be about $400,000. The rental of Braves Field, which is owned by James E. Gaffney, has always been a heavy burden to the club, and it is stated that under the new ownership the Red Sox may share the Braves' ball yard, under an arrangement like that of the Giants and Yankees at the Polo Grounds here.

The concern with which Mr. Wise is connected did not dispose of all its stock. It is understood, and Mr. Wise will continue as a member of the Board of Directors. Mr. Grant was in Boston yesterday, and it was announced that George Stallings will be retained as manager. Stallings has a contract which has two years to run, said to call for $12,000 a year. Walter Hapgood will be retained as Secretary and business manager.

PAT MORAN TO LEAD REDS.

He Signs Contract After Club's Failure to Hear from Matty.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 30.—Pat Moran, former manager of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club, signed a contract today to manage the Cincinnati Nationals during the season of 1919. Moran was assured that he would be signed for the 1920 season if his work proves satisfactory.

Moran was signed to manage the local club only after President August Herrmann had failed to receive an answer to a cablegram sent two weeks ago to Christy Mathewson, who is in France as a Captain in the chemical service.

Faber Signs with White Sox.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Pitcher Urban "Red" Faber, having received his discharge from the navy, signed tonight with the Chicago Americans. Faber pitched the White Sox to three of the four victories in the world's series of 1917 against New York.

The basket ball championship of the Public Schools Athletic League will be decided tonight when the De Witt Clinton High School team, champions of Manhattan and Brooklyn, meets the Newtown High School five, champions of Queens, in the City College gymnasium.

GARDNER DEFEATS LANGDON

Rallies Near Finish in Amateur Billiard Tourney.

A rally in the closing innings of his game gave Gus Gardner a victory over J. R. Langdon last night in the national Class C. 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn. The count was 150 to 129. Gardner completed his string in forty-one innings and had an average of 3 27-41. He had a high run of 31. Langdon's highest run was 16. Gardner's high run furnished the turning point in the game. This cluster came in the thirty-sixth inning and put Gardner in the lead after he had trailed his rival from the start.

Langdon showed to advantage early in the game. At the thirteenth inning he was in the van by 55 to 35. He managed to retain the lead to the twenty-seventh inning, where he was leading Gardner by 79 to 74. Then in the thirty-sixth inning came Gardner's brilliant display, which put him in the lead by 130 to 109.

In the other game an early lead gained by Sydney Brussel proved the undoing of Charles J. Steinbugler. Brussel remained in front from the start and his advantage was never seriously threatened. In the first thirteen innings Brussel compiled 91 points to Steinbugler's 22. This lead was too great for Steinbugler to overcome. Brussel completed his string in fifty three innings, for an average of 2 44-53. He had a high run of 21. Steinbugler had a high run of 21 also.

The scores:

DEMPSEY TO MEET WILLARD.

He Will Be Opponent for Champion, Rickard Announces.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Jan. 30.—Jack Dempsey will be Willard's opponent in the approaching world's championship bout, said Tex Rickard, who was here last night en route to the oil fields. Rickard said no location for the match had yet been decided upon.

Jack Dempsey stands ready to box Jess Willard upon any terms agreeable to Tex Rickard. This statement was made here today by Dempsey's manager, who further announced that Dempsey would meet Georges Carpentier in an elimination bout before July 4 if such a contest was considered desirable.

Blumenthal Wins with Cue.

W. Blumenthal defeated F. Garfunkl last night in the Class A three-cushion billiard tournament of the A. A. B. A. at Thum's by a score of 35 to 28 in seventy-five innings. High runs of 3 were made by each player. A second game between C. Bash and F. Grummel resulted in victory for the latter by a count of 35 to 33 in sixty-one innings. The victor made a high run of 4, while Bash's best effort was 3.

YALE AND HARVARD SQUASH TEAMS WIN

Standing of the Clubs.

Club.	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Harvard	3	1	.750
Yale	3	1	.750
Columbia	1	3	.250
Princeton-Squash	1	3	.250

Squash teams representing the Harvard Club and the Yale Club maintained their lead in the chase for the Metropolitan team squash tennis championship title, under the auspices of the National Squash Tennis Association, as a result of yesterday's play. Harvard's players defeated the Princeton-Squash Club representatives on the Crimson court by 3 matches to 2. A similar score gave the Yale Club team a victory over the Columbia Club on the Eli court. Harvard and Yale are tied for the leadership in the tournament standing, each team having won three games and lost one.

The playing of J. Lee swung the tide of battle in Harvard's favor in the match against the combined Princeton-Squash Club. Lee scored over Robert Monks, after three stiff games, by 15—12, 12—15, 18—13. The match was the closest of the day and the most interesting.

Through the first and second games the lead alternated frequently. Sustained play near the end of the first game gave Lee first blood. The score was 15—12. In the second game, however, the count was evened when Monks took the game by 15—12. Monks started strongly in the third game and gave promise of annexing the match. He led in the scoring at 13—11 and then his game fell off, while Lee scored two points straight, setting the match at 5. He continued his brilliant play, annexing the match and giving his team victory.

J. W. Burden had a difficult time winning in straight games from Dr. A. D. Mittendorf, for another Harvard success. The Crimson player, although forced at top speed throughout, ended his two games on the long ends of 18 to 14 and 17 to 15 scores.

The successful players for Princeton Squash Club were W. H. Vanderpoel and Harold Tobey. Vanderpoel, with greater experience, easily overcame the efforts of W. Rand, who substituted on the Crimson team for F. H. Davis. Davis, winner of many matches for Harvard in the series to date, was sick. His successor fell before Vanderpoel by scores of 15—1, 15—11. Tobey's success over H. Hadden was equally convincing. The Princeton squash player won without extra exertion by 15—3, 15—9.

As was the case in last week's matches, it devolved upon Donald McKay of Yale to score the winning points for the Eli quintet in its match against the Columbia Club. McKay defeated Lieutenant Frank Kidde of the Blue and White aggregation 15—9, 15—7. McKay's victory was easily accomplished, but his teammates, Livingston Platt and J. A. Vietor, encountered stiffer opposition in scoring the other Eli successes.

A rally in the final game gave Platt a victory over H. D. Bulkley of the Blue and White team in the hardest match of the afternoon. The Eli player dropped the first game by 15—6, but took advantage of Bulkley's weakened play in the second game and evened the match by 15—9. Late in the third game Platt developed a smashing front wall game in a rally which enabled him to set the game at 14 all. Then the Eli player smothered his rival's efforts and took the final game by 17—15.

E. W. Putnam scored over D. S. Baker, 10—15, 15—11, 15—12, while R. L. Strebeigh defeated H. W. Carhart 15—10, 18—15 for the two Columbia victories.

HARVARD WINS ON ICE.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 30.—Harvard's Varsity hockey team started tuning up for its game with Yale in Brooklyn next week, by beating the officers' team from Camp Devens, 3 to 0, on the soldiers' field rink this afternoon. The ice was soft and sticky, but nevertheless Harvard played some good hockey and would have won by a larger score had it not been for the rattling fine work in goal of Normal Small, the former Arena Amateur League team player, who made more than thirty stops for the soldier team.

All of Harvard's goals were scored on individual play. The first goal was caged by Bigelow, who picked the puck up at midrink for an open line shot. Smelling a goal in the next period was made on a 35-foot shot. Bigelow scored the last goal.

Summary:

Smelling	L. W.	Codman
Avery	C.	Monroe
Bigelow	R.	McIntyre
Gross	R. W.	Fogis

Swarthmore Gets Field Meet.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—The Middle Atlantic intercollegiate track and field meet was awarded to Swarthmore College at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Middle Atlantic Collegiate Association here today. The date was set for May 17.

ARCOLA GETS TOURNEY.

Women's Golf Championship to be Played in June.

Because of the fact that three clubs were in the field for the championship tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, it was necessary to put the question to a vote at the annual meeting at the Biltmore yesterday. As a result, the Arcola Country Club was awarded the attraction, with twenty-two ballots in its favor to five for Essex County and two for the Montclair Golf Club. That all three of these bids came from New Jersey is explained by the fact that it was that district's turn to stage the event. The matter of the date was left in the hands of the Executive Committee, though it seems to be generally understood that the second week in June will be selected.

Other matters to be brought before the meeting were the resumption of the sectional team matches, the selecting of a course for the Intercity contest for the Griscom Cup and the one-day events.

It is New York's turn to stage the tri-city contest this year, and a letter was received from Miss H. Ethel Maule, President of the Golf Association of Philadelphia, requesting that the metropolitan body choose a date and course. Final arrangements were left to the Executive Committee.

As was expected, no opposition was offered to the selection of the Nominating Committee. Mrs. C. F. Uebelacker of Hackensack was elected President, while Miss Marion Hollins of Westbrook, remained Vice President. Mrs. M. H. Frayne of Dunwoodie succeeded Mrs. J. F. Davis as Treasurer, while Mrs. R. Percy Thompson of Arcola was made Secretary. Others to serve on the Executive Committee are Mrs. F. F. Sanford of Essex County, Mrs. Howard F. Whitney of Nassau, and Mrs. J. S. Irving of Englewood. Sixteen clubs were represented at the meeting.

SCHAEFER GOES INTO LEAD.

Takes Two Blocks in Game with Cochran.

Joke Schaefer completely overshadowed Welker Cochran in the two blocks of their 1,800 points 18.2 balk line billiard match at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. Schaefer took both blocks, displacing Cochran as the leader. Schaefer is now leading by 242 points. The total score is 1,200 for Schaefer against 958 for Cochran.

Schaefer won the afternoon block by 429 to 283, advancing to the lead after being 129 points in the rear at the close of the opening day's play. The victor went out in ten innings for an average of 42 9-10, and had high runs of 115 and 125. In the evening Schaefer again won, the score being 300 to 125. Schaefer finished this block in four innings for an average of 75. He had high runs of 90 and 81. Cochran made a cluster of 117 in his third frame, missing on a heavy massé attempt, which was overdone.

MANAGER WILL RUN B. R. T. FOR PUBLIC

F. P. Royce Says That Way Will Pay Stockholders the Most.

Frederick Page Royce of Boston, recently appointed General Manager of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, now in the hands of a receiver, reported for duty yesterday morning to Lindley M. Garrison. After a consultation with the receiver, Mr. Royce was introduced to all the heads of departments and had a short talk with each. Later in the day he said:

"There is little that I can say at present that would be of interest to the patrons of the properties of which Judge Garrison has appointed me General Manager. I have made only a most casual inspection of parts of the lines and know little about the power plants, the operating department, and the equipment. When I know more I may have something to say, but, at best, I shall be a poor talker. I prefer to let my work speak for me.

"This much, however, I can say: I have been identified with the management of public utilities, including traction companies, for many years, and I have always found that those companies which served their patrons best paid their stockholders most. And so I have always insisted that properties with whose management I had to do should give the best service possible to the public. What 'the best service possible' on these lines means, I cannot say now, but it won't take me a great while to find out. When I do, I hope to be able to help the receiver in giving that sort of service to the patrons of the B. R. T."

Mr. Royce was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the class of 1890, with high scholastic rank. He was not long out of the technical school when his work attracted the notice of the Stone & Webster Management Association, public utilities managers, of Boston, and they called him to their service. He is still with them, but is on leave of absence to serve Receiver Garrison. For the present he will make his home at the Hotel Belmont.

Joseph T. Griffen, a public school teacher in Brooklyn and President of the Passengers' Protective Association, denied yesterday that the association sought to convict the indicted B. R. T. officials and employes in a spirit of vengeance. He said if Supreme Court Justice Callaghan, who changed the venue of the B. R. T. men from Kings to Nassau County, thought so, he was wrong.

"We regret that up to the present," he added, "we have not been very successful in moving the financial mountain, for even today a repetition of the Malbone Street disaster could occur. Three months after the accident, there is not a single automatic stop safety device on trains running from Brooklyn Bridge to Coney Island."

Education Notes.

School teachers' salary legislation, in course of preparation at Albany, contemplates a mandatory increase of $6,000,000 annually in New York City.

The graduation exercises were held in the auditorium of Erasmus Hall High School, Flatbush, Brooklyn, last evening. The speaker of the evening was Captain W. E. Thompson.

The Harlem Evening High School for Men at 31 West 116th Street is conducting an intensive course in stenography, (machine shorthand,) for the term beginning Feb. 3. Registration every night in the week.

At the commencement exercises of the Alexander S. Webb School, P. S. 5, Manhattan, held in the hall of the City College on Wednesday, there was presented to the school a dental clinic by the Parents' Association. In presenting the clinic to the school, Stanley L. Otis said that the community spirit and co-operative effort manifested in raising the $500 needed, were better than the principles and aims of Bolshevism and socialism in solving problems which confront the pupils. The first effort of the clinic was to look after the teeth of the graduating class, probably the only class that has been graduated from any public school in New York City with every boy dentally fit.

There is being conducted at the Manual Training High School, Brooklyn, a course in the designing of textiles. The nights of tuition are Mondays and Wednesdays, from 7:45 to 9:45.

The City College, through its extension division, offers the following free courses in Isaac Pitman Shorthand to teachers, librarians, and social workers. FINANCIAL MARKETS

The forward movement which marked yesterday's dealings in stocks introduced no new element into the market situation and appeared to reflect little more than a reversal of the position of traders in an effort to acquire profits. The turnover was somewhat smaller than the day before, and business grew quieter as prices improved. Steel common regained about one-third of its decline of Wednesday on what appeared to be short covering for the most part. The really strong stocks were limited almost entirely to specialties in which a moderate concentration of buying orders for some time past has easily brought about substantial advances. Thus far since restrictions were removed from the money market the expectations of Stock Exchange authorities in regard to speculative tendencies has been fully borne out. It may be that the lack of a marked interest on the upward side of stock quotations is largely a state of mind, induced to a certain extent by the opinion expressed in many quarters that bankers should not favor enlarged borrowings for market purposes before the Victory Loan was floated. The Steel Corporation's quarterly statement added to the impression of many potential buyers of stocks that conditions in industry were of a character to promote caution in respect to purchases for a time. At any rate, the extent of buying since the loan market was thrown open has not been great enough to cause any real expansion of loans. As stock market values have lost a little ground since the Money Committee acted, it might be assumed that loans are actually less now than they were before.

February is a month in which annual statements of industrial companies for the preceding year are made public in volume. If the practice of other years continues it is possible that a fairly complete survey of earnings and profits of the major corporaions will be available within he next thirty days and through them, as well as the balance sheets, something of an insight into conditions after the armistice was signed and into prospects may be obtained. The desire to wait for the information of this sort which will come out next month is evident in market comment and reflects an additional factor to promote a quiet state of the market. Wide differences of opinion over the labor situation are in evidence, and the chances are that it will be sometime before a comprehensive view of the labor market may be obtained. Secretary of Labor Wilson sees the state of unemployment as less disturbing than reports from particular manufacturing centres indicate, and he would have employers cast aside some of the elements which tend to hold back production. The Secretary, according to his views as recently set forth, holds that prices should be reduced for the purpose of stimulating business and to remove nervousness among manufacturers over possibilities of the future. There are many economists who stand with Mr. Wilson on this platform, but there are also many others who maintain that prices should change gradually in close relation with wages and the cost of living. As time goes on the price situation promises to supply a more interesting field for study and speculation than heretofore.

The Bank of England's weekly statement showed that the output of notes had again increased after four weeks of contraction. The gain was about $1,500,000, but gold holdings expanded nearly $2,500,000, and the reserve ratio of 21.13 per cent. showed an advance more than 1¾ per cent. for the week. Call money in the local market displayed an easing tendency.

Authorization to be Asked at Stockholders' Meeting in March.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announced to-night that the stockholders at the annual meeting of March 11 would be asked to authorize an increase of $75,000,000 in the company's indebtedness, to be made at such times as may be prescribed by the Directors. The purpose is to provide for present and future requirements, including obligations maturing during the year, and reimbursing the Government for additions, improvement and equipment expenditures made in connection with Government control and chargeable to the company.

Through unissued balances remaining from previous authorization the Directors at present are empowered to increase the indebtedness by approximately $46,000,000. The additional $75,000,000 will bring the total authorization to $121,000,000. The whole amount will not be immediately necessary, says the company's statement, but the authorization is required so that the company may be in a position to meet future needs promptly. The statement concludes:

"The budget of additions and improvements for the current year is not yet determined, but the United States Railroad Administration and the corporate officers, in co-operation, are making every effort to limit the expenditures to those actually necessary either for safety or the immediate needs of traffic, in order to avoid as far as possible creating the permanent burden of meeting capital charges on work done or equipment purchased under war conditions."

Hocking Valley Notes Extended.

The Hocking Valley Railway Company, it is learned, has obtained a one-month extension on its $6,000,000 6 per cent. note issue, which was to have matured on Feb. 1. This brief extension, it is understood, was granted in order that the management of the company might have additional time in which to arrange for more definite financing. The plan under consideration at present is understood to call for the marketing of $7,500,000 in serial notes, to mature one-third in two years, one-third in three years, and the remainder in four years.

General Asphalt Retreats.

General Asphalt shares, which have enjoyed a steady advance on the Curb for several weeks, lost ground yesterday, and, while the loss was not so heavy as on the preceding day, there was evidence of profit taking on a sufficient scale to offset buying orders. The stock only a few weeks ago was quoted on the Curb at less than 50, and on Tuesday sold as high as 70. Specialists were inclined yesterday to call the decline a healthy reaction, and there were those who said that professionals were trying to depress the stock. The closing price last night was 62½ bid 62¾ asked.

Government Competition.

The recent announcement by the Shipping Board of the big cut in ocean freight rates was followed by considerable uneasiness among local shipowners, who are inclined to believe that the Government intends to compete with them. If such competition develops to any great extent the shipowners say they will not be able to continue the operation of their fleets. After three days of digesting the attitude of the Shipping Board the vessel owners are not quite so blue as they were at first, as they are now beginning to suggest that the board's action was only temporary to meet the emergency when it arose.

Consolidated Gas Advances.

The declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. by the Directors of the Consolidated Gas Company served to advance the issue in yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange. After an opening at 89½ there was a rise to 93½, and the close at 92½ found the stock up 3¼ points. The annual report of the company, issued a few days ago, showed a deficit for the year, and at that time the stockholders asked as to the continuation of the present rate of dividend payment. No assurance as to the maintenance of the dividend was given, but attention was called to the large surplus, amounting to something like $25,000,000, which had been stored up for a "rainy day." It is admitted in all quarters except those absolutely committed to the bear side that the earnings of the company in an abnormal year can hardly be taken as indicative of conditions as they may be in the future.

Oklahoma Producing and Refining.

When the stock of the Oklahoma Producing and Refining Company was listed on the Stock Exchange several weeks ago, it sold up to 10¼, but since then there has been a decline, the issue closing yesterday at 8⅝, a loss of ⅛ for the day. The decline may have been brought about in some degree by knowledge that the company was preparing to increase the capital stock by $2,000,000. Announcement of this was made yesterday in a circular letter to stockholders, who will be asked to vote the proposed increase at the annual meeting. The new issue, if authorized, will be offered to stockholders of record at the close of business March 20 for subscription at par—$5 a share—at the rate of one new share for each five shares of the old stock.

General Tripp Going Abroad.

General Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the Board of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, leaves for Europe today for a business survey. No intimation has been given as to the exact nature of his plans, but it is believed that the company contemplates an extension of its export interests.

Grain Trading.

Reports from Chicago say that out there plans for a resumption of trading in wheat are in the making. Two factions are at work in the Chicago Board of Trade, and while they fail to agree as to details, they are harmonious on the main subject, which is that resumption of trading is desirable. In New York a different view prevails, and it is felt that as long as the Government has to guarantee a price as high as $2.26, there should be no open market dealings at all.

New Price for Copper?

Reports yesterday were to the effect that some of the smaller copper companies were quoting 18¾ cents a pound for the metal. This is a reduction of 1¼ cents from the price which the small producers were reported as quoting some time ago. The larger companies still maintain that no copper is being sold by them below the 23-cent level which was established as the export price for copper. Demand for the metal appears to be lacking no matter what the price quoted and for this reason it is held that there can be no adjustment of price from the present level until there is real buying in sight. While there are reports from the Arizona region that the wage scale of the miners is to be based on 20-cent copper, other parts of the country hold that no such change is at present contemplated.

Decline in New York Air Brake.

Selling pressure against New York Air Brake developed yesterday, carrying the stock down more than 4 points to 100⅜. This caused the somewhat unusual spectacle of a 20 per cent. stock selling at only a fraction over par. In 1916 the stock, which was one of the outstanding war issues, sold at high as 186, and the high for last year was 139. The 20 per cent. dividend was first paid in 1917 as a 10 per cent. extra and 10 per cent. regular. This was later made a 20 per cent. regular dividend.

Equipment Stocks.

Announcement that the Railroad Administration would ask for $500,000,000 for extensions and equipment, of which $200,000,000 may be used to provide new cars and locomotives was construed as a favorable sign for the equipment stocks, although the fact was not particularly noticeable in the market. The doubt seems to be as to whether the railroads will want to accept new equipment.

MUTUAL LIFE'S REPORT.

$4,789,200 Paid for Deaths in 1918 Due to Pneumonia and Influenza.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company reports that in 1918 it paid its policy holders $69,651,430, this figure exceeding by $2,513,431 the total payments received directly from policy holders during the year. Since the organization of the company in 1843 there has been paid to policy holders $1,468,000,000. Of the amount paid out last year $4,789,200 was directly traceable to deaths from influenza and pneumonia.

The assets of the company are placed at $673,714,294, an increase of $39,714,724 over 1917. The surplus, or contingency reserve, now amounts to $15,731,076. The total amount of the company's new business during the year just passed was $208,920,389, an increase over that reported in the preceding year. The total amount of insurance in force at the close of 1918 was $1,861,881,953. The company owns $63,065,000 of Liberty bonds. OPPOSES M'ADOO'S FIVE-YEAR PLAN

URGES CONGRESS TO ACT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Opposition to the McAdoo five-year plan for extension of the period of Federal control over the railroads was voiced before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today on behalf of the State Railway Commissioners by Charles E. Elmquist, President of the National Association of Railway and Utilities Commissioners. This is an organization composed of the members of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the regulating commissions of all the States except Delaware.

President Elmquist urged the committee to deal, first, in legislation which he hoped would be enacted before the session of Congress ends on March 4, with railroad matters calling for immediate relief, and that it would then turn its attention to those of a less pressing but more permanent nature. He insisted that the present Congress should dispose of the McAdoo five-year plan before March 4.

"The railroads were taken over for war purposes only," said Mr. Elmquist. "They have performed that function well. Troops have been freely and expeditiously moved and necessary supplies and munitions have been furnished to our armies at home and abroad. The real purpose for Government control having been accomplished, good faith and square dealing demand the return of these roads to their owners at a time when it will not embarrass the country or seriously cripple the transportation machine, and under such legislative safeguards as the people may approve.

"We believe that Dec. 31, 1919, would afford ample time for this purpose. If a special session of Congress is called to consider the railroad problem, Congress should either amend the Federal Control act or adopt a joint resolution fixing that date for the return of the properties."

Four reasons were given by Mr. Elmquist why his organization is opposed to the five-year plan, as follows:

1. It continues the present guaranteed compensation of practically a billion dollars per annum to the railroads for a period of five years, as well as the prospect of the present high operating cost. No one can foresee what the operating, economic or financial situations of these carriers or the country will be during this period.

2. It continues in time of peace the alleged war power of the President to set aside State and Federal laws, to initiate rates, to fix wages, route traffic, and consolidate properties and terminals.

3. It continues the uncertain and chaotic condition of rates and practices whereby shippers are denied the right to be heard before rates go into effect, and it purports to suspend, for the period of five years, laws which have been wisely passed in the States for the regulation of common carriers. During this time shippers, claimants and State officers may be required to bring actions against the Federal Government instead of against the railroads.

4. It thrusts prominently into the public forum a discussion of Government ownership before the work of valuing these properties has been completed by the Government, and before it is possible to know what the railroad properties are worth. Common business sense suggests the wisdom of ascertaining the sum involved in the purchase before deciding the question.

Dealing with the matters calling for immediate legislative relief, Mr. Elmquist said:

"Remedial legislation for the protection of the public should be enacted before March 4, but a final solution of the railroad question cannot, and in justice to all interests should not, be solved by this Congress. There is not sufficient time in the five weeks which remain of this session to agree upon a policy which will properly safeguard the interests of the public, the employes and the investors. Hence, first consideration should be given to those matters which can now properly be disposed of.

"We earnestly recommend that this Congress amend Section 10 of the Federal Control Act so as to take from the President the alleged right to set aside State or Federal laws or the orders of commissions applicable to common carriers.

"We recommend that Section 10 of the Federal Control act be amended so that rates initiated by the Director General may be suspended pending a final determination by the Interstate Commerce Commission and State Commissions; and in this connection we strongly urge the immediate adoption of the Cummins bill, with certain modifications."

Mr. Elmquist said his organization also favored the merger within proper limits of the carriers' lines and facilities in such part and to such extent as might be necessary in the public interest to meet the reasonable demands of domestic and foreign commerce; the consolidation of terminal facilities whenever the public interest would be promoted thereby; the development of inland water ways and the co-ordination of rail and water systems, but that this could not be done without giving regulating tribunals the right to fix minimum as well as maximum rates.

The right of shippers to route traffic, except in cases of emergency, was favored but the proposal to appoint a Secretary of Transportation was opposed because it would "make the railroads the football of politics." The organization, he said, also opposed Federal incorporation of railroads.

"We believe that employes in the railroad service should be adequately compensated," he said. "We doubt the advisability, however, of conferring upon the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to fix wages."

SEARS, ROEBUCK YEAR.

Gross Sales Show Increase, but Profits Are Reduced.

The annual report of Sears, Roebuck & Co. for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918, shows net profits of $12,704,064 after allowances for charges and war taxes. This is equivalent, after the deduction of preferred dividends, to $16.10 a share on the common stock. In 1917 the net profits were $14,119,027, and after the deduction of preferred dividends there was left an amount equivalent to $18.08 a share on the $75,000,000 common stock.

The gross sales of the company in 1918 were $198,523,079, an increase of $20,254,856. The net sales of $181,665,829 show an increase of about $15,000,000 over the preceding year. There was a large increase in expenses during the year, the 1918 figures being $158,633,533, compared with $147,103,650. After the payment of preferred and common dividends there was left a surplus of $6,145,630. The total surplus of the company stands at $26,616,134.

The balance sheet shows that inventory is placed at $47,531,096, compared with $36,873,213 in 1917. The company at the close of 1918 held $5,651,656 in Liberty bonds, practically double the holdings of the year before.

Two Seats in Stock Exchange Sold.

The New York Stock Exchange memberships of Allerton W. Kilborne and George E. Dimock have been posted for transfer to Edward E. McCrone and C. Perry Beadleston. The considerations, it was reported, were $69,000 and $68,000, respectively. Irving P. Fay and Mortimer W. Loewi have been elected to membership on the Exchange.

BUY SOUTHERN ROAD NOTES

The Southern Railway has sold an issue of $25,000,000 three-year 6 per cent. notes to a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., and the Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago. It is understood that a public offering of the notes will be made within a few days at 98¾ and interest.

There was a considerable surprise expressed yesterday in the financial district when it was learned that the Chicago syndicate had obtained the notes. Heretofore Southern Railway financing has usually been attended to by Eastern bankers, including J. P. Morgan & Co. Several days ago it was reported that this firm had made a bid to the Director of Finance of the Railroad Administration, and it was assumed that the firm would ultimately get the business. New, however, it is said that the bid the Eastern financiers made, which is supposed to have been in the neighborhood of 97, was about 1 per cent. below that of the Chicago syndicate.

J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday issued a statement in which it was said the Railroad Administration had shown it every courtesy in the matter of the Southern Railway notes. "It gave us an opportunity to submit a bid for these notes," said the statement, "and when it felt unable to accept the bid it gave us a further opportunity to revise our offer if we so desired, which we felt unable to do. We hope this issue will meet with every success."

BUFFALO FEDERAL RESERVE.

New York Bank Will Open a Branch in That City.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank, it was announced yesterday, has decided to open a branch in Buffalo to receive deposits, handling currency, make collections of checks and notes, and transfers of funds. The opening of this branch, which is the first to be established by the New York bank, has been decided upon as the result of a request from the three Buffalo member banks, and has been concurred in by several of the nonmember banks in that city.

When the Buffalo branch is opened the Federal Reserve system will have twelve banks and eighteen branches all connected by telegraph by which the several banks and the member banks may transfer funds, at par, and without cost. The opening of this branch places Buffalo on a par with Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, which have branches of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank, and with Detroit, which maintains a branch of the Chicago institution.

TWIN CITY EARNINGS DROP.

A sharp decrease in the earnings is shown in the annual report of the Twin City Rapid Transit Company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918. The net earnings, after the payment of taxes, amounted to $1,755,554, a decrease of $786,596 from the year before. Other income increased the total to $1,770,769, but interest and other charges took $1,079,467, leaving a balance of $691,302 available for dividends. This is equivalent, after the deduction of preferred dividends, to $2.18 a share on the $22,000,000 common stock.

Common dividends of only $440,000 were paid during the year, as compared with payments on the junior issue in 1917 of $1,320,000. This cut in dividends made the surplus for the year $41,302, as compared with $8,050 after the payment of the heavier dividends on the common stock in 1917. The value placed in the balance sheet on road and equipment is $52,825,771, practically the same as in 1917.

B. F. GOODRICH CO.'S YEAR.

Reports Net Profits of $15,500,000 from Its Operations.

In a preliminary report of the B. F. Goodrich Company, manufacturers of rubber goods, for the year 1918, net sales are shown to have been $123,400,000 and the net profits $15,500,000, before making provision for Federal income and excess profits taxes, but after allowances for maintenance, charges, depreciation and doubtful debts. No provision was made as to the excess profits taxes because the company desired to await the terms of the pending revenue bill.

The Goodrich Company report for 1917 showed profits of $12,704,677 before making off $2,250,000 for such taxes there remained a balance for dividends of $10,544,677.

SERVICE BOARD WINS ITS FIGHT FOR FUNDS

SMITH ENDS THE QUARREL

Governor, at Secret Conference, Said to Have Given an Ultimatum to City Authorities.

A compromise brought about it was said by Governor Alfred E. Smith has ended the long financial quarrel between the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission on the question of the appropriation of money for the continuation of subway building. As a result of the Governor's intercession it was announced yesterday at City Hall that the Board of Estimate today would pass a resolution giving the Public Service Commission $1,952,000. While this is slightly less than the amount originally sought by the Public Service Commission, it was said that it was sufficient to carry out the subway program.

Governor Smith held a secret conference with the Board of Estimate when he was in New York last, at which it is said he delivered an ultimatum to that body. It was reported yesterday that he told the members that unless they took favorable action to safeguard the city's subway program he would be obliged to take cognizance of the charges made to him by Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney that the work was being held up and that the commission had been compelled to drop from the payroll 323 engineers.

The quarrel between the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission began when the latter submitted a budget for the year 1919 calling for $1,999,993. The board refused to pass the budget on the ground that many of the items were not clear to the members. A deadlock ensued and the money was not appropriated. As time went on it became necessary for the commission to discharge 323 engineers and inspectors of subway work for lack of funds. Commissioner Whitney then complained to the Governor that the construction program of the city was threatened by what he called the arbitrary attitude of the Board of Estimate. The deadlock continued and was only broken when Governor Smith took a hand in the situation.

The appropriation of the money makes possible the re-employment of the engineering force and the continuation of all the plans for the present year.

Commissioner Whitney declined last night to make any comment on the victory of the commission. It was also reported yesterday that if the proposed legislation for a single Public Service Commissioner was passed Mr. Whitney would probably get the place.

RECEIVER FOR CAR LINES.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 30.—Frank S. Swan, a Providence attorney, was appointed today temporary receiver of the Rhode Island Company, which owns the State's system of street railways. A hearing on the question of making the receivership permanent will be held on March 4.

This action was taken by Justice Tanner in the Superior Court on petition of John J. Orr of Providence, a contractor, whose bill of complaint alleges that the company owes him $605.25, that it is unable to pay its bills and is insolvent.

The financial troubles of the company have been before the public for the last two or three years. War prices on labor and material have forced the company to seek aid wherever it could be found. A special commission of the General Assembly investigated its affairs a year ago and found conditions desperate.

Under authority from the Public Utilities Commission, a substantial increase was made in fares several months ago, but the rise in revenue failed to cover increasing expenses. Among the largest of these expenses was an increase granted to employes by the War Labor Board.

In 1908 the New Haven Road acquired the Rhode Island company, and in 1914, under proceedings brought under the Sherman law, the New Haven was forced to rid itself of its trolley properties. Federal trustees have since administered the property.

The physical valuation of the company's property, as reported by the special legislative commission, is $29,000,000, and the amount of the investment of the New Haven Road is at the present time $10,000,000.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Securities were in good demand in the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange and final prices represented substantial net gains in most of the active issues. In general, the market movement was narrow with the result that the bulk of trading activity was centred in a small group of stocks, chiefly the industrials. Railroad issues were inactive but firm. Speculative interest centred in the movement of Steel common and the advance in this issue found reflection in the upturn of the general list.

The Advantages of a

Tomorrow is a Bond-Interest Date

FEBRUARY 1st—tomorrow—is a coupon date for a large number of security issues. Have you clipped your February coupons and attended to the details necessary for their prompt collection?

Many bondholders fail to keep track of due-dates, or delay the cutting of coupons and the making out of their Income Tax certificates of ownership. This often results in loss of interest.

By deposit of your securities with our TRUST DEPARTMENT in a SAFEKEEPING ACCOUNT your income, as well as the principal of maturing investments, is collected promptly, and you are relieved of attention to matters of detail.

We shall be pleased to have you call at any of our offices for full information as to how this service may prove valuable to you. Our booklet, "THE SAFEKEEPING OF SECURITIES," will be sent on request.

THOUSANDS PROTEST AGAINST LUXURY TAX

CAMPAIGN GOES ON TODAY

All Opposed to the Measure Are Urged to Express Disapproval Before Tomorrow Night.

Approximately 50,000 New York shoppers, a large proportion of whom were women, yesterday registered their opposition to the so-called luxury taxes on articles of wear and utility incorporated in the pending War Revenue act now in conference by signing petitions against the proposed levy at stands or booths set up in department, dry goods, and other retail stores throughout the city.

Yesterday marked the first of a three days' intensive drive under the auspices of the city's retail dry goods merchants to enlist the aid of the buying public in securing the elimination of this particular form of consumption tax in the measure about to be enacted into law by Congress. Gratifying as the response of shoppers was yesterday, the dry goods store executives predicted that at least 100,000 additional signatures would be obtained today. The local campaign to impress the conference committee and Congress will come to an end with the closing of the stores tomorrow night, following which the petitions will be sent to Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, and Claude Kitchin, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, both of whom are members of the conference committee having charge of the Revenue bill.

Many of the retail stores, big and little, started to gather signatures from their patrons with the opening of the establishments yesterday morning, but in others inability to get supplies of blanks and to school employes in taking names, rendered it impossible to begin appeal generally circulated yesterday in active canvassing until afternoon. The the stores for signatures contained the names of the members of the conference committee to whom the petition was addressed, and read as follows:

In most of the department and dry goods stores the active work of soliciting signatures was placed in charge of department heads. These reported at the close of the day that thousands of persons came to the stores with the express intention of signing their names to the protests, while others, after explanation, affixed their names and addresses to the lists.

Big crowds surrounded the tables containing the petitions in Macy's all day. Posted in a conspicuous place over each table was a sign with big type, which read as follows:

"Do you know that you will pay the luxury taxes proposed in the new Revenue bill?

"These taxes will be troublesome and aggravating. They are not essential to the success of the country's tax program and should not pass.

"This petition will be sent to Congress on Saturday, Feb. 1, 1919."

At the close of the day, a representative of the Macy firm said that 5,000 signatures had been obtained. No employes' names were on the list. The largest number of signatures announced last night by a single firm was B. Altman & Co., with a total of 8,000, while Best & Co. reported 1,100. Cammeyer, West Thirty-fourth Street, and Oppenheim, Collins & Co. both reported several hundred names at the closing hour, while managers of many other department, dry goods, and haberdashery stores said they would be unable to complete the tabulation of the petitioners until this morning.

James McCreery & Co., not content with soliciting signatures, had their salespeople explain to customers making purchases just what additional charges would accrue on their purchases made yesterday should the luxury tax feature remain in the bill and become law. Following the explanation, nearly every patron affixed his or her name to the petition against the tax. One woman after signing her name to the petition said the registering of her disapproval of the tax was almost as satisfying as going to the polls.

The collection of signatures went on steadily all day at Gimbels, Saks's, Bloomingdales, Lord & Taylor's, Stern Brothers, Franklin Simon & Co., Bonwit, Teller & Co., and other establishments, as well as in the leading men's clothing and haberdashery shops.

The fight against the tax was carried on vigorously yesterday in Brooklyn. Hundreds of women shoppers in the Abraham & Straus and Frederick Loeser stores gathered about the tables and affixed their names to the appeal to Congress. Representatives of these two stores said that their patrons needed little urging to sign the petition. The number signing at the two stores could not be estimated at the closing hour, the managers said.

W. de S. Trenholm, Secretary of the Retail Dry Goods Association of this city, which comprises sixteen of the largest dry goods establishments in New York, returned yesterday from Washington, where he as a member of a special committee represented the association in its fight against the luxury tax.

"The public must act quickly, and in large numbers, if the luxury tax provision of the revenue bill is to be eliminated," Mr. Trenholm said. "The time is short, since the lists must be sent to Washington tomorrow night. Accordingly, consumers should lose no time in signing the petitions against the tax today if possible, and, at the latest, tomorrow. While I think that there is a chance of the luxury tax being eliminated from the bill, this can only be accomplished by the public voicing its dissent at once."

Weather Hits Woolen Underwear.

Owing to the continued warm weather, and the stocks that have been carried over from last season by the retail stores, the sale of men's woolen underwear has come to a sudden halt. In the jobbing trade business is very dull in this line, and prices are now being reduced to a great extent. Garments that were formerly sold for $24 a dozen are now being offered by the jobbing trade for $18 a dozen. Apparently the prices are still too high for the retailers, as very few are being sold at this price.

COTTON MARKET QUIETER.

Apprehensive Over Labor Situation Here and in England.

After Tuesday's good advance and Wednesday's sharp break, yesterday's cotton market settled down to an orderly and even movement which, while it was not active, was gratifying to many who were inclined to deplore the recent feverish fluctuations. In yesterday's trading, a firm tone was in evidence at the outset, and this was followed by a quiet advance which took prices up 33 to 50 points above the previous day's closing. Then, in the afternoon, after the market had remained rather dull and almost stationery until the last hour, there was a reaction which took the market back to about where it left off on Wednesday. At the close prices were changed only nominally, being within 10 points either way of the preceding closing.

The trade was interested yesterday with gossip of the labor situation. The serious situation in England is not causing optimising over the potential foreign demand and even though the recent reduction in ocean freights was extremely gratifying to local interests, it is still feared that the foreign mills will go slowly in building up their slight stocks of American cotton. Ordinarily, with American supplies abroad at as low figures as they are now, there would be a tremendous movement across the Atlantic, but the unsettlement in England and on the Continent is sufficiently great to slow up this ordinary buying demand.

At home, too, the labor situation is becoming troublesome. The mill operatives have served notice on the employers that they must accept the forty-four hour time schedule by next Monday. It is possible that some unpleasant developments will occur at that time.

The campaign to reduce acreage is not worrying local interests and there is little or no fear that anything serious will come out of the movement. Some reduction may be expected, but nothing like the 25 per cent. the more radical are talking about.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 7,427 pkgs. There was a steadier feeling on the finer goods. Secondary qualities, including renovated, ladles, and packing stock, without demand and entirely nominal. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb, 47½@48c; extras, 92 score, 46@47c; firsts, 88 to 91 score, 43@46c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 41@42½c; lower grades, 39@40c; unsalted, higher than extras, 49½@50c; extras, 48½@49c; firsts, 45@48c; seconds, 42@44c; State dairy tubs, finest, 45@46c; good to prime, 42@44c; common to fair, 38@41c; renovated, extras, 43½@44c; firsts, 42@43c; lower grades, 37@41c; imitation creamery, firsts, 41@42c; ladles, current make, firsts, 37@38c; seconds, 35@36c; lower grades, 33@34c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 34c; No. 2, 33c; lower grades, 30@32c.

EGGS.—10,426 cases. The market was pretty well cleared of desirable quality. The receipts of Western and Southern stock are still comparatively light, the posted arrivals including several cars of California whites. The market is declining under the influence of much lower Western markets and reports of materially increased shipments in transit, but for the moment the supply of desirable qualities is hardly sufficient to satisfy the urgent needs of the trade, and the market closes unsettled and irregular, with sales of different qualities out of the usual proportion. Nearby white eggs are moving more slowly, owing to the larger offerings of California, and prices rule slightly in buyers' favor. Californias are in liberal supply, and the bulk of the stock is freely offered in range of 62@65c, some lots, more or less broken, selling lower. We see none of the extra fancy Petaluma whites, and values for these are uncertain. Fresh-gathered, extras, a dozen, 60@61c; extra firsts, 58@59c; firsts, 57@57½c; seconds and poorer, 53@57c; dirties, No. 1, 54@55c; No. 2 and poorer, 50@53c; checks, good to choice, dry, 47@48c; under grades, 43@45c; refrigerator, 82@50c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 69@70c; ordinary to prime, 64@68c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 64@68c; pullet whites, 63@64c; Pacific Coast, ordinary to fine, 60@65c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 60@66c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 63@64c; gathered browns and mixed colors, 57½@61c.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Muslin Nightgowns Lower.

The attitude taken by the retailers in regard to lower prices has led to a drop in the price of women's muslin nightgowns. One manufacturer said that he has reduced the price 25 per cent., and is only operating his factory on half time, so as to keep his organization together. The jobbing trade is still marking time, and merchandise of this kind that formerly sold for $12 a dozen is now being offered for $8. So far, this inducement has not proved very attractive from the buyers' point of view.

Men's Flannel Shirts.

Orders that are now being placed for men's flannel shirts are confined mostly to the higher-priced lines. The business this year, however, is by no means as good as last. Many buyers are of the opinion that they will be able to buy this merchandise cheaper, and are therefore canceling orders. In view of this, some reductions have already been made in the price. On the cheaper grade of shirts the price has been reduced about 15 per cent., while on the higher-priced lines there has been a reduction from the top price amounting to 35 per cent. Salesmen who have returned from the Middle West claim that business is very bad.

Laces Going Well.

A big lace house confirms the general opinion that the outlook for the sale of the luxuries in women's dress is good. "We are doing a good business in all lines," they say, "in laces for street and home wear and laces for evening. All are selling equally well, the laces for the rich women and for those who dress more plainly. Expensive metallic laces are in demand, and so are the more inexpensive cotton laces."

Jute Import Restrictions Off.

The War Trade Board has removed the restrictions on jute and its products, effective tomorrow. These were the only remaining commodities over which the Textile Alliance, Inc., had supervision under the direction of that board. In consequence of the action, the alliance will hereafter indorse when necessary and proper all bills of lading without the submission to it of the guarantees formerly required. No charge will be received unless some special service is to be performed. To secure the indorsement, the alliance suggests that the importer write to it direct requesting this and embody a statement that he releases and holds harmless "the Textile Alliance, Inc., its officers, agents, and employes from all liability in connection with the shipment referred to in the accompanying bill of lading."

Good Spring Business on Caps.

The Spring business on men's and boys' caps has shown quite an improvement over that of last year. The local trade has been placing some very substantial orders for the high-priced lines, which appear to be more in demand. Reports from the road indicate that caps are being sold in much larger quantities this year, especially those that retail from $1.50 up. It is the contention of some of the manufacturers that the high price of soft hats has had much to do with the increase in the sale of caps.

Gray Goods Prices Still Low.

Prices showed no change in the local gray goods market yesterday, remaining at the levels of the day before. The sales reported were from first hands and were for February delivery. None of the transactions that came to notice were for large quantities. In printcloths sales were made of 39-inch 72-76s and 68-72s at 13½ and 11¼ cents, respectively, and of 38½-inch 64-60s and 60-52s at 9½ and 9 cents, respectively. Sheetings dealt in were of 36-inch width, 56-60 four-yard goods going at 13 cents and 48 squares three-yard at 16¾ cents. A few fine yarn goods were also disposed of at low prices.

Raw Silk Market Summary.

In the Yokohama raw silk market Sinshiu No. 1 has declined to 1,400 yen. Cables received by G. W. Gwalter & Co. report that the market is affected by the weakness on the Bourse, where former buyers are reselling. In the absence of orders from abroad, shippers are leaving the market alone for the present. Canton continues lifeless and holders are not pushing sales, while Shanghai remains quiet and unchanged. New tussah silks are beginning to arrive and are offered on the basis of $3.50 for the best chops. In Lyons, France, and in Switzerland business is quiet, but prices for ready silk are holding fairly steady. In Italy transactions continue to be confined to the sale of reelers' stock to the Government agencies. Locally, the market is quiet, prices having declined in sympathy with those at Yokohama.

PLANS DAILY GUIDE TO FOOD PRICES HERE

INSPECTORS TO CHECK LIST

Will Urge Retail Dealers to Lower Prices to Correspond with the Rates Given to Them.

As a guide to the proper prices to pay for the different food commodities in this city, Commissioner of Public Markets Jonathan C. Day will make public daily a price list from the dealers at the Washington Market. The first price list was received yesterday. The prices will be checked up daily by an inspector of the Commissioner's office. Inspectors will also check up the prices current in the Fifty-ninth Street, Jefferson and Harlem Markets, and will urge that dealers lower prices to correspond with the prevailing wholesale prices.

The daily price list, in the opinion of Commissioner Day, will be valuable as a guide to the city's purchasers, whether buying in the city or in private markets. The dealers in the city markets, he said, had shown a willingness to lower their prices in accordance with the wholesale prices.

Below is given the price list issued for yesterday. Where different prices are marked in the list it indicates a difference in the quality of the article mentioned. The list follows:

The New York Federal Food Board, which has not done much since the middle of December, will, beginning tomorrow, occupy only one floor instead of five at 6 West Fifty-seventh Street and the force will be cut down to John Mitchell, Chairman of the Federal Food Board for New York State; Arthur Williams, Federal Food Administrator for New York City, and two secretaries. The New York Federal Food Board will go out of existence altogether on Feb. 28, but the State Food Commission will not cease to exist until abolished by the Legislature.

Sale of Boys' Blouses.

The sale of boys' blouses has dropped off to such an extent that it is causing much anxiety among the manufacturers. Some of the firms have closed their plants for the time being, at least until conditions are more settled. It is said that the jobbers are unloading their stocks at reduced prices in order to dispose of the merchandise on hand. Cancellations are very numerous, and some of the out-of-town buyers have returned without placing any orders. One firm which sold $100,000 worth of these goods has received about $35,000 in cancellations.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Ernest Hall, official representative in this city of the Australian Department of Trade and Customs, has been notified that the prohibition has been removed from imports into the Commonwealth of soap and of goods packed in tin-plate containers or manufactured from tin plates.

The Rauchbach-Goldsmith Company, makers of trunks at Newark, N. J., have taken another building adjoining their present plant for the manufacture of traveling bags and leather luggage. Special machinery is being installed for this purpose.

Baer & Lilienthal, resident buyers, of 1,150 Broadway, have added the account of B. H. Levy, Brother & Co. of Savannah, Ga.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

At the extreme lower end of the city an important deal involving property assessed at $500,000 was closed yesterday in the purchase by Norton, Lilly & Co., steamship owners and brokers, of the eighteen-story building at 26 and 28 Beaver Street, running through to Marketfield Street. It fronts 58.4 feet on Beaver Street and 55.2 feet on Marketfield Street by 56.2 and irregular in depth.

The structure, which is between Broad and New Streets, was bought from the 26 Beaver Street Corporation, a subsidiary of the Stock Quotation Company, which is controlled by the Western Union Telegraph Company. The plot comprises 2,888 square feet. The building was erected about eight years ago for the sellers by Thompson Starrett Company from plans by Clinton & Russell. It is in the rear of the low American Bank Note Building, which occupies the Broad Street front.

Norton, Lilly & Co. are one of the oldest American shipping houses, having been established in 1843. They operate the Norton Line to Uruguay, Argentina, and Brazil and are agents for many other lines.

The Charles F. Noyes Company acted as brokers in the transaction, the sellers being represented by Warren & Skillen.

Heidelberg Building, in Times Square, Leased for $50,000 a Year and Taxes.

The Heidelberg Building, occupying the block front on the south side of Forty-second Street between Broadway and Seventh Avenue, has been leased for a long term of years, according to papers filed in the Register's office yesterday.

The lease involves all the property with the exception of the store at the corner of Broadway and Forty-second Street, and was made by the United Stores Land and Improvement Company to the Subway Central Building Corporation. The lease runs from July 1 last till April 29, 1930, and carries the privilege of three renewals for twenty-one years each. The rental is placed at $50,000 and taxes annually.

The Heidelberg Building was designed by Henry Ives Cobb and is erected on land owned by the Coe estate. The structure is owned by Princess Murat and Princess Rospigliosi, daughters of Edmund K. Stallo. The foundations are made to support a structure of thirty-two stories, and two years ago it was stated that the owners planned to make this addition as soon as steel could be procured. It is likely that the project may be undertaken shortly.

SALESWOMEN—
THIS WOMAN'S SUCCESS
IN SELLING
Up to the middle of last month Mrs. Lucy R—— had never in all her life sold anything. She had a room to let which is how our head designer happened to meet her.
"So you design custom-made corsets?" remarked Mrs. R——. "I wonder if I could sell them?"
"Try it," was the suggestion. Next morning Mrs. R—— called at our office. We showed her how to fit. Next day she called on a woman whose name we gave her. The first week she took nine orders and made $36 in commissions. Since then she has made steady gains.
Mrs. R—— is busy, happy, and independent. She is putting money in the bank. Wouldn't you like to hear her story from her own lips? We can offer similar opportunities to a few more women under 40. Write B 191 Times.
